Freedom at last

Most students had their last day of school last Friday. After the award celebrations Frank Maddock students let us know just how they feel about the summer holidays.

Tax increases will be investigated

The town is taking a serious look at recent tax increases.

Mayor Bob Mayhew called for further investigation during last Thursday's council meeting.

He was reacting to a 30 per cent increase or $7,000 for some residents.

"It's dramatic. I agree with whoever comes in," he told council.

Councillor Howard Olson wanted to know if the town had followed the assessment procedure.

He cited a 75 per cent satisfaction level, which was totally unexpected by a lot of residents.

There was some talk of putting a cap on the increases. Or, phasing them in.

Councillor Dave Lundberg suggested that would create some serious ramifications on the budget.

Manny Deol, the town manager, told council his taxes had gone up 36 per cent.

"Personally, I'd like to see the town take a look at and see how they can help people. If it affects the budget, so what," he explained.

Councillor Tom McGee stated, that during the recent open house on assessment and taxes, he got the impression from the provincial assessors that nothing could be done.

After a lengthy debate, administration was asked to investigate and see if they could solve the huge tax differences.

Pelican Mills will get third dryer

By Frank Ryan

Weyerhaeuser has approved the installation of a third dryer at the Pelican Spruce Mills plant in Drayton Valley.

Work on the $3.5-million project is expected to start later this month. Start-up date has been set for April of next year.

The building to house the dryer, on the northeast side of the existing oriented strandboard plant, will be 175 feet long by 60 feet wide.

Bob Olson, engineer and technical manager at the plant, says they have been looking at the dryer plans since last fall.

The third dryer is expected to help with emissions of particulates reduction.

The advantage of putting the third dryer in, which has been substantiated by data from the manufacturer, is that the dryer should be running at temperatures that will allow the mill a per-dryer particulate reduction of 50 per cent.

According to Olson, production will go up once the dryer has been installed. At present, Edson out produces the Drayton Valley mill by approximately five to 10 per cent which they hope to gain back once the dryer has been installed.

In other mill developments, Olson has confirmed that a noise survey is being done by Bolstad Engineering of Edmonton.

"We've had some significant results," Olson says from the original survey done during the first week of June. The engineers will be returning in mid-July for further tests.

And, the way has been cleared for the mill to start hauling chips to Hinton. Olson estimates about eight loads per day will leave the local plant.

Lindale parents riled over boundary issue

By Sue Kenyon

If the Twin River's school board compromises on the school boundary issue, it will be due to pressure from Lindale residents.

The board held two meetings last week in Lindale and Breton to discuss the enforcement of school boundaries.

Temper flared at Lindale school as parents felt the board was taking away choices those residents had enjoyed in past years.

In Breton, the scene was calm. Parents in Breton are more concerned about crossing school district lines, which falls into tuition agreements, not the school boundary issue. Many students living in Breton attend school in Warburg which is under County of Leduc jurisdiction, not Twin Rivers.

The meeting in Lindale was a different story. Parents were concerned with the proposed boundary enforcement and let the board know they would continue sending children to Drayton schools, even if they had to move or transport the students themselves.

"Drayton Valley schools are full, something to think about when talking quality education."

The majority who spoke during the Lindale meeting were dissatisfied with Lindale and Breton schools and said it was Drayton Valley schools which offered quality education.

"The schools in Drayton Valley are full, all except the high school. We have 25 students enrolled in Grade 1. Grades 2 and 3 are pushing the enrolment figure of 40. That is something you should think about when you talk about quality education," Dr. George Bevan, superintendent of the Twin-Rivers school district, said during the Lindale meeting.

The entire boundary issue seems to be a busing issue.

Bevan said the board cannot keep students outside the Drayton Valley boundary from attending Drayton schools but will not, in future, offer busing to those students.

Chairman Vi Helm admitted at the Lindale meeting the board stood pretty firm on the boundary enforcement proposal, which led parents to wonder why public meetings were even being held.

"I don't even know why they brought it to the people, they've already made up their mind," Sandra Masse, a concerned parent said.

Two days later, during the Breton meeting, Helm seemed less determined and agreed the board would consider phasing in boundary enforcement when Jim Musson suggested the idea.

"I think you'd get a lot less feedback if you just phased it in. Enforce boundaries to those who move into the area but allow existing residents the choice," he said.

"The board will consider that at the meeting on Tuesday," Helm said.

Local News Briefs

Councillor Charlie Miner has announced his plans to seek re-election this year.

The Drayton Valley Pipe Band participated in the Canada Day parade in Breton last Saturday.

The local branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society has been presented with a certificate of achievement. This is in recognition of their recent campaign.

Between 700 and 800 people attended the official opening of the civic centre.

The Twin Rivers school division hopes to have a new parking lot at Eldorado ready by the fall.

The town has decided to follow in the steps of the County of Parkland and send out a newsletter to local residents.

Two or three options on the proposed roadway network into the southeast area of town is expected at the next council meeting.

Tenders are out for the sewage treatment plant expansion.

Town council is expected to have a report in the next month on the proposed street reappalling and sidewalk project slated for next year. The government contributes $750,000 toward this.

The installation of traffic lights at the Turbo corner and, also at the Red Rooster/Industrial Road corner is expected to be in place before school opens.

Officially, there are 485 seats in the Drayton Sports Centre. This was confirmed after a seat-numbering project was carried out.

Mobil Oil will be donating $90,000 toward the town's funding of their 'Pulling Together' monument.

Credit cards won't be used at local ALC

By Susan Mosciold
Drayton Valley's ALCB store will not be one of the eight stores involved in a pilot project involving credit card use.

Emil Vogel, manager, confirmed this, but said he could not comment further.

As reported in an Edmonton newspaper, eight Alberta liquor stores will be allowing customers to use credit cards for a period of one year.

Cheryl Anslow, Alberta executive director for PAID (people against impaired driving) said, "This project had better be with monitoring (by ALCB). We're going to follow this as closely as we can."

"What angers us," she

Town installs valves hoping to solve low water pressure problem in Celebrity Heights

Residents of Celebrity Estates Drive have complained to town council about water pressure problems.

Last week 65 pressure reduction valves were installed on lots in the northeast section of town.

It was the town's intention, that once that was done, to increase the pressure.

"It has to be done over a period of time or we'll blow the lines," Councillor Howard Olsen stated.

Olsen also admitted this may not solve the problem for Celebrity Estates Drive residents.

"We have to regulate it. Bear with us," he stated.

Manny Deol, the town manager, indicated it was a complicated problem and the town was doing some experimenting.

One resident of Celebrity Estates Drive who is not at all happy with the present problem is J.D. Anderson. In a letter to council, he stated: "I have the dubious distinction of having both the highest property taxes and the lowest water pressure and volume in Drayton Valley."

Anderson also stated he had installed a professionally designed underground sprinkler system and couldn't use it because of the water pressure problem.

He indicated a desire to drill a water well on his own property and wanted to know what effect that would have on his utility bill.

Lutheran kindergarten closes after 20 years

After 20 years of service the Emmaus Lutheran Church Kindergarten has closed its doors.

"We just couldn't make ends meet. We didn't get enough enrolment. The decision was made during a parents committee meeting June 21, Dianne Baker, coordinator of the kindergarten said.

June enrolment on the average is approximately 40-50. This month the figure was only 17.

"We may have had enough by September but now is the time you have to make decisions," she said.

The decline in enrolment, Baker feels is strongly related to the ECS program starting up in Eldorado.

"They are offering full and half-day bussing. If you live in the country, it's more convenient," she said.

The kindergarten first began in 1969 as an early childhood education service.

This may soon be a familiar scene if the pilot project is successful.

continued, "is the role that ALCB plays.

"They wear two different hats. One hat of making profit off of the sale of alcohol, as well as legislating increasing accessibility of alcohol increases impaired driving."

She also noted, "Alcohol does not cause problems. Abuse causes problems."

Len Blumenthal, chief executive officer of AADAC in Edmonton, said, "I think it's just a logical extension of technology available."

He also said, "We (AADAC) don't think it's going to make any difference to anything. Those people who have a problem with alcohol will find it somewhere."

"We'll still be around to look after alcohol problems."

Blumenthal said he thinks 30 per cent of alcohol sold is sold in licensed premises where the customer already has the option of using his/her credit card.

the sale of alcohol."

Regarding credit card use, however, Anslow said, "I guess PAID views it as not our issue. There have been no studies that show

Man gets five months

A 29-year-old local man was sentenced in Drayton Valley Provincial court last week to five months in jail and has been prohibited from driving for a three-year period.

Orville George Raudebaugh, 29, pleaded guilty to failing to provide a breath sample, care and control of a motor vehicle while impaired, driving while disqualified, failing to appear in court, and driving with no insurance.

Cocaine seized at local home

Police said they made yet another cocaine seizure in Drayton Valley recently.

They used a search warrant to obtain access to a residence in town where they seized a half-gram of cocaine.

As a result, they have laid two charges of trafficking in narcotics.

This brings to four the number of cocaine seizures over the past couple of months.

In that time period, a total of five grams has been seized by Drayton Valley RCMP, valued at approximately $185 a gram.

Although there have been several incidents recently, Cst. Doug Hill said it was no different than any other community this size.

Annexation bids 'tax grab'

Statements, cross-examinations, and people's opinions are still being heard as annexation hearings continue.

The Local Authorities Board is weighing all evidence to determine whether or not to annex Alder Flats, Buck Lake, Moon Lake, the south Moose Hill area, the northern tip of MD Clearwater, and two owners from Leduc, into the MD Brazeau.

"We're giving the people every opportunity we can," said Brian Clark, member of the Local Authorities Board. "Their opinions are definitely a factor."

"What we're looking at is what really are the issues?"

"There are a lot of hot issues," said Bill McCarthy, County of Wetaskiwin superintendent of schools. "I don't know what Twin Rivers (school district) will do with Alder Flats high school students if they should assume the responsibility."

Representing the MD Clearwater, Russell King said he believed the annexation bids "constitutes nothing more than a tax grab. The MD Clearwater 99 is firmly opposed to the annexation bids."

Hal Klucny, deputy superintendent of schools for the County of Wetaskiwin summed up a view expressed by many. "There are going to be people unhappy, whatever decision is made."

RN Betty Lundberg is the longest-employed nurse at Drayton Valley and District Health Complex and is retiring. She has been with the hospital since 1961 and is looking forward to a different routine.

Monument plans for family

Seeing the graves of family members Margaret, Laura and Dallin Henriksen touched Maurice Dunn so much he is proposing to erect a monument in their honor.

Dunn works for Central Monuments Ltd. of Innisfail and does a lot of work for Drayton Valley cemeteries.

"I was out working, measuring for a grave monument. I wasn't aware of what happened but when I saw all those graves of the same family, I knew there must have been a terrible tragedy," he says.

Senior partner Mike Murphy filled Dunn in on the accident, and they decided to look into doing something special.

Dunn says he envisages a monument erected just inside the cemetery. He says it could have a religious blessing for those resting in the cemetery, and would have the Henriksen name inscribed.

Dunn says his company will not make a profit on the monument and they will put up $2,500 towards the project.

"We would like community support on this, not just financial but also ideas of what type of monument people would like and what exactly the inscription should say," he says.

The three Drayton Valley residents were killed June 6 after a two-vehicle accident on Highway 22.

Ideas or donations can be sent to Maurice Dunn, Box 99, 4916-48 Avenue, Innisfail, Alberta T0M 1A0.

Delegates to attend fall convention

The Reform Party has selected two voting delegates from Drayton Valley to attend the fall convention in Edmonton.

Roy Coates and Mark Smith were chosen to represent Drayton Valley at a meeting last week.

In all, the Yellowhead constituency is allowed to send 12 voting delegates to the convention to be held Oct. 27-29 at the Edmonton Inn.

Smith is confident 25 to 30 people, both voting and non-voting delegates, will represent the Yellowhead constituency at the fall convention.

Last week's meeting, attended by 11 people, also discussed some resolutions they hope to introduce at the convention.

'People person' leaving hospital

Drayton Valley Health Complex is losing its longest employed nurse.

Betty Lundberg who has been with the hospital since May 1961 worked her last day June 21.

"I've really enjoyed nursing; it's not routine and it's not dull. There is bad but there is a lot of good in the job," she says.

Lundberg is retiring because she feels it is time and would like to devote her energies to other projects, mainly her house.

A "people person" is what comes across when speaking to Lundberg. When asked what she will miss most of all, her response is the people.

"Both those you care for and the people I work with," she says.

Lundberg took her nursing training at the University of Alberta and worked for two years in Calgary before coming to Drayton Valley.

She worked in the emergency ward at the health complex and has worked in acute care.

Provincial consortiums deserve financial security for doing 'heck of a job'

Growth of the Pembina Educational Consortium is staggering.

Especially when one considers the financial headaches they have to deal with every year about this time.

Getting enough money to offer the programs in Rocky Mountain House, Whitecourt and Drayton Valley causes executive director Joe MacLellan a lot of sleepless nights.

Advanced education contributes about 26 per cent of the consortium's operating budget.

MacLellan has to knock on a lot of doors to get the balance.

And that's most unfortunate.

Since MacLellan took over the consortium reins, there's been a steady growth. This year for example, registrations at the consortium will top the 2,500-mark.

One would think that the job the five consortiums are doing for rural Albertans would be adequately awarded.

But that isn't the case. Their pleas for more funding always seem to fall on deaf ears.

If the provincial government is short of funds, they might consider taking some of the budget from Westerra Institute of Technology in Stony Plain.

Believe it or not, they had an operating budget of $5 million last year. This was for 400 students and a teaching staff numbering 96.

It's about time Premier Getty and his education department took a serious look at the job being done in this province by consortiums.

They deserve to be financially awarded for one heck of a job.

Covering accidents, disasters part of reporters' job

A lot of our readers have expressed their dissatisfaction to me in running accident photos on the front page of The Western Review.

It's news, and that's why we often place the photo(s) and story on the front page.

Covering accidents or attending a fire is an assignment most reporters don't look forward to.

But, it's news, and it's our job to get the news.

Getting information on the accident or a fire, where a fatality is involved, is often frustrating because we try to get it without calling the immediate family.

Our reporters are also instructed not to take a photo of an accident or fire when a human life is in doubt. Often, our people stand back before taking their pictures and let the authorities (RCMP, ambulance and fire) complete their job.

Frankly Speaking

By Frank Ryan

Covering an accident or fire is especially tough when someone's house burns to the ground or there's been a serious accident.

On more than one occasion, reporters from The Western Review have put their camera aside to assist the fire department.

It's especially tough if and when we find out who's involved, and we know them personally. That's not unusual in a small town.

That happened to me recently when three people killed in a two-vehicle mishap were close friends of our family. We got the news the next morning and, thank God, not while I was at the scene.

Writing that story was extremely difficult. Placing it on the front page was even tougher. But, that's the newspaper business.

In fact, it's hard writing up most stories where people you know are involved. I went through that for years as a court reporter.

So, whether you care or not, our job can be painful.

Time to stop taking farmers for granted

Dear Editor,

I was reading with amusement the article about how horse manure found its way onto the high school principal's desk (June 20 Western Review).

It could have been much worse — it could have been my manure.

As I pass by the schools at 3 p.m. and see the lineup of school buses, I can't help but think how much less school space would be needed if they weren't there. I am sure the surrounding farming community must have much more impact on Drayton Valley than just the schools. Even people on acreages have a horse or two, possibly a few head of cattle or raise their own chickens. They all play a part in the food chain.

Anyone who doesn't believe Alberta farmers are doing a good job has never been in a supermarket. Filled to the brim, aisle after aisle with most everything your taste buds want. I think it's time we stop taking our farmers for granted.

"Maybe we'll be sitting down to enjoy a bowl of crude oil, instead of a t-bone steak."

Would one day off to celebrate Farmer's Day really hurt the students? A fun day has been proposed, the only fun the students will have that day is skipping school.

We'll soon see just how well the new Brazeau MD and Twin Rivers school division cares for all its residents.

Let's pay tribute to our farmers and have a proper Farmer's Day holiday, or maybe some day in the future we'll all be sitting down to enjoy a nice bowl of crude oil, instead of a t-bone steak.

Woman receives minor injuries

A 59-year-old Red Deer woman sustained only minor injuries in a single-vehicle accident near Breton last week.

The woman, lone occupant of the vehicle, was proceeding south on Highway 20 when she entered the west ditch approximately four kilometres west of Breton.

Breton RCMP said it appeared her vehicle had been airborne for approximately 100 feet before landing against barb wire fence posts.

They also said alcohol did not appear to be involved.

Road work begins

Earth work is expected to get underway by mid-July on improvements to Secondary Road 620.

Crushing was slated to start last week.

The scheduled earth work will be on Secondary Road 620 (Lodgepole highway) near Violet Grove and Pelican Spruce Mills.

A two-kilometre passing lane on the highway near Violet Grove and better access into the mill are part of a $5 million project.

Also included in the project is base and final paving on Secondary Road 620 from the junction of the Elk River road for 18 kilometres to Lodgepole.

Town gives friendly first impressions

When one wanders through the double-glass doors into the modern, colorful atmosphere of the town civic centre, the first contact one receives is that of the receptionists and secretaries.

First impressions are important, and these ladies put extra effort into ensuring a good one.

"I really like my job because I like the customers," says Pauline Dunn, receptionist. She has been with the town for 10-and-a-half years and says she loves the contact with people.

Accounts clerk Joanne Webb says her job is challenging and keeps her busy. She likes working in the open, sunny building.

The atmosphere is "professional but relaxed," says Sharon Rudyk, secretary. "It's a beautiful building."

Amber Wickstrom, secretary, says she deals mainly with engineering and recreation. She has been with the town for three months and is also very familiar with the civic centre. "It's very comfortable."

Assistant treasurer Linda Mason has worked for the town "on and off" for the past seven years. She says she keeps coming back because she enjoys the work. "There's really nothing dull about it."

"I like the people. People are fun to work with," says Tammy Kostrub, receptionist. She was a work experience student with the town and has since worked full-time for about one year. "It's a warm atmosphere."

Bonnie Hammond, executive secretary, has worked at the town for two years. "It's always different. You meet all sorts of interesting people." She says she enjoys the colorful, bright, spacious building.

"It's definitely a challenge," Dena Olsson, accounts clerk says of her position. "I enjoy working with the public."

Letter asks Joe Clark to stand courageously

The Drayton Valley Ministerial Association has sent a letter to Yellowhead MP Joe Clark addressing legislation for the protection of the unborn.

About a year ago the association received a letter from Clark, in reply to one they had sent, that indicated cabinet was considering, on an urgent basis, practical options.

"We believe that one year has been adequate time to consider practical options and it is now time to present concrete legislation," the ministers say to Clark in their recent letter.

"Understandably this is a politically sensitive issue. Therefore we urge you to stand courageously for justice in spite of the temptation to be motivated by political expediency," the letter suggests.

"As external affairs minister you have taken a courageous stand for justice regarding the plight of people in other countries of the world. We expect that you will take a similar stand for unborn Canadians," the letter states in part.

Bowling alley/bingo hall concerns council members

Some members of town council are concerned about a combined bowling alley/bingo hall being planned in town.

Council was informed last Thursday the municipal planning commission (MPC) had approved the proposal on land west of the Derrick Mall.

MPC chairman Charlie Miner said his group had a long discussion on the parking requirement for such a facility.

While the parking issue was discussed, the real concerns were over the proposed bingo hall.

Mayor Bob Mayhew expressed his concerns about the possible effect on other bingo halls in town.

Councillor Dave Lundberg raised the question of afternoon bingos.

Miner replied that the proposal would undoubtedly affect other community bingo halls. He didn't see any problem with afternoon bingos, if that was to happen.

Job 'good' for Reich

Laurie Reich is the new executive director of Big Brothers/Big Sisters in Drayton Valley and district.

Reich has experience working for both Big Brothers/Sisters and social services.

She has been at home for the past six years, spending time with her four children, but took the position because she was ready to go back to work.

"This job is really good for me because it is only a part-time position and I like this organization. It's a community job and I like what it stands for," she says. Reich has a diploma in social services and enjoys working with people. She feels the Big Brothers and Sisters organization is a real necessity for the area as there are many single families.

"I know from working at social services here that there are single families. A lot of people may not yet be aware of how it can benefit them. It is simply a great service for children. It's great for the child, and it's just one more person who cares about that child," she says.

Her goal is to see the numbers of both big brothers and sisters and the "little brothers and sisters" grow.

The organization is in great need of adults who are willing to become big brothers and sisters as they have several children waiting for someone, Reich says.

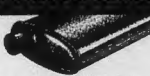

'The wish tree'

Bruton elementary school students tied their wishes to this tree in the gymnasium. Among the dreams of these little folks were two particularly touching wishes: "I wish the hole, wide world to care," and "I wish all the murderers would turn into nice guys." May all their wishes come true.

'Bird man' says he works only when he wants to

By Sue Kenyon

You may choose to call him the bird man. With doves and chickens amongst what looks like junk, LaVern Gillespie is a fascinating character.

Gillespie lives just off Hwy 39. Driving by, all one can really see are old cars and what looks like junk. But investigating further, one finds such elegant features as orchids and doves.

Gillespie started out with six orchid plants four years ago and now has 18.

"I saw them down by the creek so I dug them up. I planted them here and they've been doing well ever since," he says.

He has lived in the area some 45 years and says he only saw two clumps of orchids in all those years.

He doesn't do anything to them, doesn't fertilize them, just waters them daily.

Gillespie appears to enjoy plants. He has carefully put a fence around the orchids to save them from his dog. He admits to planting gladiolas and one can see the odd flower in his yard. He won't, however, admit to being a gardener or to really care about the plants.

"I've got plants in the house," he says proudly.

"Everyone wants to know how to grow them. I don't even know what they are. They were here when my wife left so I've kept them. They are really just a damn nuisance," he says.

Walking on the other side of his house one finds wooden structures, like that of tool sheds.

"Ever seen a dove?" he asks. Following him into one of these sheds you find four tame doves he has taken on as pets.

The doves are securely penned in from his chickens which roam freely in the yard.

"I only work when I want to, and only when I feel like

With caring for dogs, it," he says proudly.

Birds of a feather flock together with LaVern Gillespie.

'Looking fast all part of racing psychology'

By Paul Cudla

Ken Froese nudges his drag-bike up to the start-line looking fast — menacingly fast.

How does a bike racer look fast? According to Froese, several elements make up the image of speed. A mean-looking helmet; sharp, clean leathers, and a clean, professional-looking pit area.

Up at the line it's not how fast you are, it's how fast you look," Froese says.

"It's all part of the image. It's all part of the psychology of racing. It's all part of the show."

Froese, an electrician at Pelican Spruce Mills three years, uses a racing formula which is made up of three main ingredients.

"They say racing is 30 per cent ability, 30 per cent machinery and 40 per cent psychology."

Froese has used that racing formula successfully for the last two of his four years in racing. He was named 'Rider of the Year' in 1988 by the Alberta Drag Bike Association. His list of wins include five in 1988 (out of a total of 10 races) and two so far this year (out of five).

Froese attributes his recent winning ways to two factors.

"The main thing was attitude. Trying hard, and concentrating and putting a positive attitude forward."

"The second thing was learning how to ride."

Froese tries to race 10 weekends a year, concentrating on Calgary's Race-City speedway.

His most recent victory came June 17-18 where he won the final round race by a hundredth of a second.

The preciseness of timing and handicapping in drag-bike racing is staggering.

"I lost a race once for leaving 1/1000 of a second too early."

Froese was disqualified in that race for starting too quickly. His timing of the 0.004 second span between the last amber light and the green light was a millisecond too quick. In drag-bike jargon it's called reaction time.

"You have to get it (reaction time) as close to perfect as you can."

Besides his riding victories, Froese also designed and built his bike which is quite unique in drag-bike circles. Froese's bike is a 350 cc, two-stroke, two-cylinder bike, whereas his competition generally will race 1000 cc, four-stroke, four-cylinder bikes.

The difference becomes weight; Froese's bike weighs in at 238 pounds while other drag-bikes tend to be up around 400 pounds.

"Basically when you are trying to accelerate from a standstill it's (weight) a factor."

'Something different'

"Right from the start I intended to build something a little different. It (the bike) usually sticks out a bit. It's just a different approach at trying to achieve the same thing."

"Right from the start I intended to build something a little different. It (the bike) usually sticks out a bit. It's just a different approach at trying to achieve the same thing."

Froese's building expertise won him Top Line Sales' 'Best Engineered' racing bike for 1988.

At the end of last season, Froese earned himself a major sponsorship with Walt-Healy Yamaha. A sponsorship which helps Froese out financially and technically. And of course, helps Walt-Healy market its product.

The 5,000 fans who pack into Race-City Speedway can't help but notice the Walt-Healy logo as they watch in awed anticipation as drag-bikes tear down the quarter-mile track at 110 miles an hour.

Froese's bike is unique in drag-bike circles. It's a two-stroke, two-cylinder, 350 cc while his competition generally races four-stroke, four-cylinder, 1000 cc bikes.

"Drag-bike racing draws a little more attention. They (fans) think we're all crazy and we're going to kill ourselves."

To date, Froese has not experienced the misfortune of a wipe-out, but feels it is inevitable.

"It hasn't happened yet. I've been lucky so far but it's going to happen someday. You can't race a bike and say you're never going to (wipe-out)."

Three ball teams vying for title

The Drayton Valley Minor Baseball Association will end its 1989 campaign with three representative teams competing in provincial qualifying tournaments.

A mosquito team, ages 10-11, a beaver team, ages 12-13, and a bantam team, ages 14-15 will be representing Drayton Valley in bids to make it to the provincials in upcoming weekends.

Sandy Buchan, president of the minor baseball association, said the teams had a pretty fair chance at qualifying for the provincials, especially the beaver team which won a tournament they hosted June 24-25.

"We had a fairly successful year. We had about the same number of boys, and we had about 20 more girls," Buchan said.

Overall about 300 boys and girls participated in minor baseball this year.

Buchan said there were a couple of areas he would like to see improvement in for next season.

"Next year we'd like to run a few more clinics," Buchan said.

Minor baseball is also looking into getting more uniforms and possibly some funds for the purpose of getting another field.

Cubs coach confident of team

By Paul Cudla
Ed Hutzal, assistant coach with the Stony Plain Cubs, is confident about the team and its chances at repeating as provincial champions.

"We really have a lot of depth. I've been coaching 10 or 12 years and this is the best team I've seen. I think our chances of repeating are excellent," Hutzal said.

The regular season for midget baseball is now complete, and the Cubs have finished with a 14 win 1 tie, and 5 loss record, good for second place.

The Cubs are coming off a six-game winning streak during which they captured the Sherwood Park tournament held June 4 and 5.

The Cubs could go into the Zone 5 qualifying tournament and the provincials four players short. Four members of the team are going to Calgary July 1 to try out for an Alberta youth team.

Each province is developing an elite youth squad (17-18 years old) to participate in a national tournament to be held in Brandon, Man.

Three Drayton Valley players: Trevor Fedorus, Corey Dusterhoft and Joe Hutzal, will be trying out for the youth team.

The team started out with 400 candidates for the team and has narrowed it down to a final 21. The team will make four cuts, to narrow down to an 18-player team.

If the Cubs do lose the four players they will consider calling up a bantam player.

Hutzal maintains that while losing four players to the Alberta squad will hurt, the team "does have a lot of depth without those four boys."

"These boys are dedicated. They work hard and I can't say enough about them."

Skate-a-thon

Local courses in good shape

Drayton Valley: Mike Townley, club pro, called conditions at the 18-hole course, "excellent, with all the rain it's just dynamite."

Chris Kelly aced the 135-yard eighth hole. The hole-in-one occurred June 25th.

The golf club is having a Mr. and Mrs. golf tournament Aug. 26. Putt around the green with the girl of your dreams.

Fairways West: The 18-hole Fairways West course has undergone some upgrading with a new lounge and pro shop. The course also has nine rooms for rent, and a fully equipped 31-stall trailer facility.

A new driving range is planned for a July opening.

Tournaments on the way include the men's open July 22, ladies' open July 23, and the ninth annual oilmen's Aug. 25-26. An alternate-ball twosome is slated for Aug. 27.

Kent Steele, golf course superintendent, said the course was in "excellent" shape, and the greens were "the best they've ever been."

Pembina Valley: The course has some low-lying water, but is considered to be in good condition.

Upcoming tournaments are the ladies' and juniors July 16, Legion goofy golf July 23 (sign up at Evansburg Legion), mixed two-ball Aug. 13 and the closing tournament Sept. 17.

Minor soccer association progresses

The Drayton Valley Minor Soccer Association enjoyed a progressive 1989 campaign.

Twenty teams participated in the program including an under 12-year-old representative team.

This was the first year a 12-and-under all-star team was put together and it did quite well finishing second in the six-team tournament which it hosted June 17-18.

"I think it has been a successful year. All the kids as far as I know, enjoyed it and the skill levels were really good," Les Hewlett, coordinator of 10-and-over soccer, said.

The Drayton Valley all-star team lost in the final game 3-2 at the hands of Hinton, a team Hewlett described as "probably the best team around" for that age group.

For next season, Hewlett is hopeful there will be more soccer participants and an under-14 representative team similar to the under-12 team fielded this season. "Soccer is a very good conditioning sport, especially for hockey. A lot of the principles are the same," Hewlett said.

Soccer coaches promote fun

By Paul Cudla

Don Baker, coach of the five- and six-year-old blue team typifies the volunteerism which is prevalent in minor soccer.

Baker, and 16 other minor soccer coaches, have put in substantial amounts of free time in order to oversee the operation and maintenance of fun' soccer.

"This is more just having fun while still trying to familiarize them with some of the rules," Baker said.

There are 52 boys and girls at the five- and six-year-old level of soccer, a division that consists of four teams.

Baker, a district supervisor

Sports Profile

Don Baker

in the public lands division for three years, started coaching soccer because his son was playing. He would like to continue coaching next year and will probably follow his son up to the next age group.

"In any sport you have to start them out and make it fun. You don't want to drill them on the rules too much," Baker said.

Other coaches in minor soccer who deserve credit for distributing fun this season are: 5-6 year olds - Dietmar Tews, Tom McGee, and Leonard Legas; 7-8 year olds - Les Sigal, Ray Duperron, Allan Hicks and Ken Thesen; 9-10 - Bill Palmer, Lyle Fiedler, Dieter Rumba, Bill Bailey, and Charlie Swap; 11-12-13 - Les Hewlett, Larry Nelson, and Terry Drader.

DVHA pushing for 2nd ice

Because of the need for more ice time, the past president of the Drayton Valley Minor Hockey Association is continuing the push for a second covered ice surface.

Lanny Schultz, in a letter to Mayor Bob Mayhew and council says he would like to get more positive response for such a facility.

Schultz indicated in his letter that if a second covered ice surface was available, minor hockey would probably use 30 hours a week.

In response to Schultz's letter, the mayor replied: "Town council is aware of the limited amount of ice time available to the many users of the arena and has directed administration to monitor the demands and use of the arena on an ongoing basis. While the need for a second ice surface may be justified as a capital project, it is the escalating cost of operating such a facility that needs to be closely examined."

The mayor also went on to say that at present, "the priority of council is to finish the sports centre, including paving of the parking lot and landscaping."

Schultz also says many local teams are lacking in the basic skills of hockey due to the limited ice time.

Minor hockey registered 270 players last season, up 40 over the previous season.

Blue Flame Torch run finalized

Details of the Blue Flame Torch Relay have been finalized.

Sponsored by Northwestern Utilities and Canadian Western Natural Gas, the blue flame torch will be lit in Strathcona, site of the last Alberta Summer Games (1987) and will pass through communities in the province en route to Brooks, to officially open the 1989 Games.

About 600 teenagers will have the opportunity to join other young Albertans in carrying the torch throughout Alberta. Participants in the relay will each run one kilometre along the 600-km route.

Beginning in Strathcona Aug. 1, the run will head west to Edmonton. After receiving a send-off from officials at the legislature and city hall, the torch will travel south to Calgary along Highway 2A, stopping at communities along the route including Leduc, Hobbema, Lacombe and Red Deer.

The torch will arrive in Brooks Aug. 9 to officially open the Games.

Application forms for torch runners are available in junior and senior high schools along the route. Application forms should be submitted by June 30.

If chosen, torch runners will receive a commemorative t-shirt. All runners will be responsible for transportation to and from their designated kilometre along the route.

The 1989 Alberta Summer Games, from Aug. 9-13 in Brooks, will involve 3,500 participants in 21 events.

Play money

Gall Woynerowich, left, president of the Eldorado School Parents' Association, accepts a cheque for $21,415 from MLA Tom Thurber. The money, along with $6,000 each from the town and Twin Rivers school division will go toward a new playground structure at the school.

Action plan going red tape

Drayton Valley's tourist action plan could be ready this summer.

Vice-chairperson Jean Saunders says the committee hopes to wrap up the draft this week.

Then it has to go to town council for their approval in principle.

Saunders isn't sure when the tourist action plan will be submitted to the province.

"I hesitate to put a date on it. We want to do it slow and carefully," she says.

Funding for team tourism projects approved to date have topped the $1-million mark.

"We have approved over 100 projects and additional applications are pouring in," says Tourism Minister Don Sparrow.

Team tourism is a $220 million funding program, jointly administered by Alberta Tourism and TIAALTA. Funded by Alberta lotteries, the five year-program is intended to help Alberta's 14 tourism zones better market their regional tourism industries.

Moving up and moving out?

Tineta (centre) 'under the wings' of Hank Snow and Dottie West.

By Susan Moscicki
Tineta Couturier may be moving up and moving out if all goes well in the next few months.

If the 16-year-old's tape is well received when it is released in September, she said her plans are to move to Nashville when she is finished school.

The Drayton Valley resident went to Nashville June 5-12 to record a six-song tape with two songs of her own composition. The tape is called That's What Love's About.

The song, That's What Love's About, was sung by Tineta on the stage of The Grand Ole Opry in the Grand Ole Gospel.

"I was very nervous (on stage)," she said, "I thought this is where everybody comes to sing, and I'm here." But Tineta said she seems to sing best when she's nervous, and added, "The people were great. Dottie (West) took me under her wing." She also met Hank Snow while she was there.

The most exciting part was the recording, according to Tineta. "When I was recording, I felt like I was finally doing something with my career. I'm getting a step closer to the real thing."

Country with a beat is Tineta's love, and it's also a favorite with Tineta's many fans, locally as well as new fans made at the Grand Ole Gospel.

Tineta said she was asked for her autograph while in Nashville but she doesn't feel she's hit the big time yet. "You have to build yourself up to that level."

But with style like Tineta's, it should make the building project seem little more than a song.

Town/Valley in court over hoarding

Town council has decided to take legal action in regards to a temporary hoarding issue with Valley Concrete.

Council took the action last Thursday following a brief presentation by Valley Concrete owner Dennis McGinn.

Council was in receipt of a letter from McGinn's lawyer, that asked for a delay until July 31, at which time Valley Concrete would make their expansion plans known.

The letter also stated Valley Concrete hoped to keep the hoarding around the hoppers until the spring of 1991.

McGinn informed council negotiations were underway regarding his expansion, and he would have all the details by the end of July.

He did indicate the expansion called for a new location out of town.

The present permit on the temporary hoarding expired May 31. When council hadn't heard from Valley Concrete at their June 8 meeting, they decided to inform the owner to remove the structure.

Since that time, it has been in the hands of lawyers for the two parties.

Members of council were also in receipt of a four-page report from their own lawyer that included eight options.

After a lengthy debate, administration was instructed to proceed with legal action.

Councillor Tom McGee opposed the decision.

Wrong dump

When the garbage contractor arrived at the Rocky Rapids transfer station recently, he found the dumpster full and this pile of wood blocking his path from removing the bin. It took three hours to clean up.

Drayton Valley town council has busy year in the works

- Highway buffer project that will include a beautification plan for the three entrances to town.
- West Valley Park master recreation plan.
- Completion of a $134,000 computer service.
- New car for the fire chief.
- Shop and yard renovations at $85,000.
- New sand truck with front blade attachment at a cost of $70,000.
- Festive lights. Cost: $10,000.
- Installation of lighted crosswalk.
- Signal lights. Cost: $180,000.
- Flushing of water main. Cost: $40,000.
- Landscaping, lobby furniture, railing and seat numbering at the sports centre. Cost: $40,000.
- Playground structures at Eldorado and St. Anthony's school. Town's cost: $15,000.
- Rec Plex gym floor repair at a cost of $6,000.
- Downtown parking lot expansion at a cost of $20,000.

Council also wants to see the completion of the Civic Centre and the sewer plant expansion and infiltration control.

Evergreen caps off interesting year

The Evergreen elementary school capped off what was an "interesting" year with its year-end awards presentation June 27.

Principal Chris Kelly described the school year as "a very interesting year. We had a lot of ups and downs, but it was a successful year...a learning year."

Enrolment at Evergreen was up in 1988-89 to 437 students from last year when it was 397. Kelly said this caused some overcrowding in Grade 5 and made it necessary to move a French class around because of a classroom shortage.

"There were quite a few changes that went on at Evergreen this year," Kelly said, adding that one of those changes involved an expansion of special education services.

But with the 1988-89 school year coming to a close all the changes were culminated in the final year-end awards presentations.

"The awards went well. It was nice to see so many kids up for awards," Kelly said.

Major award winners at Evergreen this year were:

Beavers keep MD busy

The MD is as busy as beavers lately.

Agricultural fieldman Barb Shackel said there are a lot of beavers plugging up culverts. "Water rises and washes out roads and people's land gets flooded."

A trapper has been hired to trap problem beavers.

"We don't like getting rid of them, but we can't afford to let them plug up our culverts," said Shackel.

She said clearing the culverts is time consuming and expensive, and stressed the MD is only dealing with problem beavers blocking culverts.

Town council will support food bank

Town council has directed administration to see what can be done to help local food bank organizers.

The decision followed an appeal last Thursday by Catherine Meredith, one of the food bank organizers.

She asked for the town's assistance in acquiring space and assistance with utilities.

"This is the kind of role I envisage the FCSS doing," Councillor Jean Saunders stated.

Meredith told council she had a 548-name petition, supporting the idea of a food bank in Drayton Valley.

Rain slows construction

Road construction in the MD. Brazeau is being affected by recent wet weather, according to Richard Tatro, director of public works.

"We have lost 11 days of construction time since May 6," he said.

One of the problems, Tatro said, is that the weather can cause deterioration to a road where construction was already underway, which would increase cost.

The approximate cost per mile of standard gravel rural road construction is about $70,000, said Tatro. "We (the MD) are going to undertake about nine miles. We have finished one mile and are into the second mile."

Logging legends

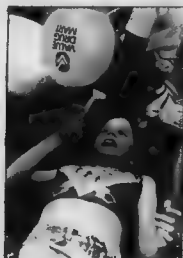

This year's Easyford Loggers' Festival was a time of fun and competition for all ages. Less than ideal weather did not stop any of these dedicated loggers from competing with zest.

Roll out the barrel...

Daddies come in handy.

Please don't break.

Just a little farther.

Grass-skilling proved to be a real test of coordination.

Irony? Back-to-back races keep people together.

Home of the Week

This immaculate, 1,132-square-foot bungalow is nestled away in a quiet setting on picturesque 12 acres.

The landscaped yard has caragana hedge, green house, machine shed, granaries and utility shed. A large deck overlooks a pond and bubbling brook.

Inside the two-by-six construction this home is carefully decorated with cedar and pine. The kitchen has oak cupboards, countertop stove with grill and rotisserie, wall oven, dishwasher and built-in microwave oven. Also included is a washer and dryer.

The large living room has a custom-built bookcase and patio doors. The large master bedroom has aromatic cedar-lined closets. In the bathroom, special attention should be aimed at the luxurious whirlpool tub and gold-color framed corner shower cabinet.

This acreage borders hardtop, has $1,700 yearly oil revenue, two wells and private phone line. All this for $89,900 or will consider house in Drayton Valley in trade.

Relentless disease strikes two in same family

By Sue Kenyon
Hospitals can be scary places to little boys and girls three years of age.

But to Tarra and Zane, it became home. A place to live, and, for Tarra, a place to die.

Brother and sister, Tarra and Zane Lindsay of Drayton Valley, have been suffering from the rare and fatal illness, Batten Disease, since they were three years of age.

Tarra died June 15, at nine years of age after three years of sharing the same hospital room with brother Zane, who is still suffering from the illness. Zane turned eight April 12.

For Coreen and John Lindsay, having the disease attack both children was a nightmare. After Tarra was diagnosed, the fear was Zane would also develop it. Hopes that doctors gave the Lindsays proved false.

"We were told at one point after Zane had been tested, there was a 90 per cent chance he wouldn't develop it," Coreen Lindsay, the children's mother said.

From there the response for the Lindsays was denial and hope.

"All we could do was pray for a miracle in medical science," John Lindsay says.

Batten Disease is a very rare, fatal disorder which has no cure or treatment.

It is a progressive, neurological disease which causes compounds to build up that affect the brain.

These compounds are made up of substances like fat, associated sugars and proteins which can not be broken down due to a missing enzyme in the body makeup.

Only one in 500 people carry the gene and in order for children to develop the disease, both parents must have the gene, Coreen says.

Tarra showed her first symptoms in January 1983.

"She had a seizure and at first she was diagnosed with epilepsy, but for some reason, I knew there was more to it," Coreen says.

By October 1983 the Lindsays realized what they were fighting against when test results came back, stating doctors guessed it was Batten Disease.

Sixteen months and seven days later, Zane began showing his first signs of the tragic effects of the same disease.

Zane has lived in the Drayton Valley Health Complex since August 1986 and until June 15, he shared a room with his sister who was admitted at the same time.

Recent photographs of both children show how quickly the disease progresses.

It affects the muscles, speech, eyesight and children isn't really sure whether or not Zane can even see her, or if he knows her.

"When I hold him he smiles. But whether he is responding because he knows it's me, or just to the touch, I don't know," Coreen says.

Because the Lindsay family isn't sure how much Zane understands, he has not been told of his sister's death.

"We were told by nurses that he was unsettled the day after she died, but whether it was caused by that or something else, it is hard to say," John says.

The Lindsays have three other children who are free of the disease: Clayton, 14, Kaelene, 12 and Karla 10.

One thing the Lindsays are thankful for is the treatment they have received from the community.

"We had Tarra in kindergarten for one year before she got really sick. It was surprising they even took her, but they did and the staff and other children were just great," Coreen says.

Others Coreen praises are the hospital staff who spend so much time and who have been really good to the family.

"Everyone there is just terrific," she says.

Scientists continue to search for an enzyme that can be used to break down the substances and bring an end to the disease—but there is still no sign of a treatment or cure.

Following a six-year struggle, Batten Disease claimed the life of Tarra Lindsay (right), 9, on June 15. Brother Zane, also suffering from the fatal disease, continues to reside at the Drayton Valley and District Health Complex.

Seniors' events planned

Drayton Valley Municipal Library hosted an open house for seniors June 8 in celebration of Senior Citizens' Week.

Library staff conducted individual tours and showed visitors the various types of books and special services available free of charge to library patrons. Seniors also receive a free library membership.

Included in the displays were large-print books, talking books, and a special play-back tape machine for the visually impaired, as well as foreign language books (available in more than 30 languages from Arabic to Welsh).

Judging from the positive response and enthusiasm from both seniors and staff,

Between Covers

with the library will be planning regular library time especially for seniors beginning later in the year. Special programs will be offered. Please call the library at 542-2228 with ideas for speakers, topics, films, etc. Anyone willing to be a speaker or give a presentation is welcome to call, also. Your suggestions will help in program planning of particular interest to seniors.

The library mezzanine is now open and is proving to be very popular with young adults. It provides a relaxing area for junior and young adult fiction reading.

Rest seems hard to get on holidays

By Rev. Barry Parker
All Saints
Anglican Church

By the time this column is read, all of us will be recovering (in one form or another) from the proverbial long weekend.

Some will have had to work, others will get a day away, while many will take the weekend to travel and visit. What seems to be common for all is, "The weekend is gone before we know it" and "I need to get home for a rest." The latter statement is typically heard at holiday time: "I need to go back to work to rest."

What an interesting phrase. Holidays, long weekends, vacations: all are built upon the premise of time needed for recreation.

The word itself has an obvious intention. It is a time to re-create, to create or make anew, to refresh. Yet, as is common with our society, we view rest as "doing something."

We rush here and rush there; we spend two days to load the trailer, two days camping and two days unpacking and cleaning the trailer. It seems to me, and maybe this is my problem alone (but I doubt it), that rest is hard to come by on holidays.

Like the child who looks to Christmas with building excitement and then Christmas morning is anticlimatic, so too we live our year looking into the future for the great holidays we're going to have and then they're over before we've had a chance to enjoy them.

Right there is the crux of the issue. We want to pack so much recreation into a short time, that something has to give, and it is usually real rest.

Let's back up and consider a few points about our present lives in terms of recreation.

True peace, rest and recreation will not come by our well-intentioned efforts. True peace, at the deepest level of our beings will only arrive when the peace and light of Jesus Christ dwell inside, when He lives with and in us during our busy and often chaotic lives.

Re-creation is a daily event and this takes the form of prayer. Even words as simple as the Lord's Prayer are the words of re-creation.

Weekly re-creation is a Sunday event. God in His wisdom gave us Sunday to rest, to pull ourselves together for the other six days. Yet, in our community, Sunday is often the busiest of days, with the gathering of God's re-creating community, the church, not being a part of the re-creation for many.

Finally, holidays and vacations are not built on the trip or the skiing or the trailer as much as your time of re-creation is built on restoration; the restoring of relationships with God and loved ones, the restoration of a sense of equilibrium and peace in the lives that are oft fragmented at best and breaking down at worst.

Take time. Re-create. Restore. Enjoy your summer.

HATS OFF TO OUR HEROS

Steve Cox, emergency medical technician, says his job is interesting, fun, and a great way to meet people.

"The biggest part about it is the variety.

Everybody is different and everybody has to be approached in a different way."

The 20-year-old has been an EMT for one year, and was previously in the armed forces medical reserves in Edmonton for one and a half years.

When he is not working, this single young man might be found on the tennis courts, on the slopes, or on the lakes.

Towering inferno near Breton

Lightning turned a Canadian Oxidation Petroleum battery near Breton into a blaze which could be seen for miles early Saturday, shooting flames almost 300 feet into the air. RCMP from Thoraby, Breton and Drayton Valley along with Drayton Valley fire department and Offield Firemen were on the scene trying to contain the fire. Drayton Valley firemen remained on the scene until approximately 3 a.m. Saturday morning.

$3.5 M will be spent on renovations to Breton high school, says board

By Sue Kenyon

Twin Rivers school board is planning to spend $3.5 million dollars on renovations to Breton high school.

Work which includes a gymnasium, swimming pool and new parking facilities will not be done immediately, but over the next few years if the board receives approval.

School superintendent Dr. George Bevan, has said the board will be spending $30,000 to establish new bus lanes which should be ready by this September.

"Bevan says the reason for the urgency on the bussing lanes is that contractors begin work for the Village of Breton, paving streets and doing work on curbs.

"While the contractors are out there working on the streets, we will get them to do the bus lanes," Bevan says.

The cost of the complex which will house the gymnasium and swimming pool will be shared with the Breton Swimming Pool Society.

"They will be paying for half the frame of the building, where the pool will be installed and the board will pay the other half," Bevan says.

The society will also have to come up with the funds for the installation of the pool.

Renovation plans to Breton high school include the "disposal of the junior high wing," Bevan says.

The junior high wing was built in 1956 and 1957, making it the oldest section of the school.

Lindale wins battle

By Sue Kenyon

Lindale residents won their battle last week when the Twin Rivers school board decided to allow students crossing boundaries, to continue to do so and the board would supply the transportation.

The conflict between the board and residents arose when the school board made a change to existing school boundaries and then proposed to enforce them. Lindale residents were especially upset as they wanted their children to continue attending Drayton Valley schools, contrary to the boundary proposal. The board was contemplating removing bussing for those who crossed boundary lines.

Boundaries will however be in effect for new residents. It will also be in effect for those children who have not yet entered the school system.

One issue of the boundary argument which the board has not made a decision on is split families.

As the boundary policy sits now, those children living in Breton or Lindale and attending Drayton Valley schools will continue to be bussed by Twin Rivers buses. However, if in the same family, a child reaches school age, that child must attend the school which is within their boundary.

"I think if the family wishes to stick together and you believe they should, there is something to think about. It is the humanitarian consideration. What a lot of people are concerned about is parent interviews. If a child is attending Drayton Valley and another goes to school in Breton, parents

Waiting game begins

By Susan Moscicki

Annexation hearings are now over and the waiting game has begun for several areas hoping to become part of the MD Brazeau.

Moon Lake, Alder Flats, Buck Lake, the northern tip of the MD Clearwater, the south Moose Hill area, and two owners from Ledus, are among those seeking annexation.

MD Brazeau manager John Eriksson said, "The board has said they will be making a recommendation to cabinet (provincial government) by the end of September. Cabinet will make the final decision."

"The board has the authority to grant nothing, the whole thing, or anything in between," said Eriksson.

During the hearings, two residents on the east side of the Buck Lake area expressed concern they had not been petitioned.

Eriksson said after the hearings, "We may recommend, if it's a concern to the board, that they can back off the extreme easterly proposed line (Wetaskiwin county) one mile, or perhaps to Buck Lake."

For the MD, having all these areas included would mean a 13-and-one-half per cent increase in assessment base (taxes), approximately 35 per cent more road mileage to maintain, and approximately 30 per cent more population, he said.

There are currently 325,000 hectares of land in the MD. If all areas seeking annexation are included, the MD stands to gain another 103,000 hectares.

"We've done what we set out to do," Eriksson insisted. "That is to give an avenue, a chance to be heard fairly and responsibly, regardless of the outcome."

He said he got to know a lot of the people involved fairly well over the two weeks the hearings lasted. "They're really sincere folks. I certainly wouldn't mind serving them."

Local News Briefs

Work is expected to start this week on a new floor at the Rec Plex.

Both the town and the Twin Rivers school division will contribute $6,000 each toward the cost.

The town has transferred $40,000 from capital contingency revenue to recreation capital for arena completion.

The money was used for lobby furniture, railing and seats in the sports centre.

A building located on the old water tower site will be removed to make way for more parking.

The format of the library board has changed.

The town still has two members on the board, while the number of members from the community has been reduced from five to four to make way for a representative from the MD.

Several Drayton Valley players are currently attending hockey schools in Pentiction and Sylvan Lake.

The communication system between the water treatment plant and the reservoirs is continually being knocked out during storms.

The recreation department plans to repair diamond 18, located south of the high school.

Plans are to remove the clay, replace it with black dirt and seed the playing field. Red shale will be placed on the base paths next spring.

Fire hydrants around town are being repainted... for the first time in two years.

A black bear was spotted on Hwy 39 across from the entrance to the Willey West campground during the Canada Day weekend. According to the fish and wildlife department, it hasn't caused any problems.

Baseball bats used in bar-room brawl

By Susan Mosicki

Three people were admitted to hospital and several others treated as outpatients following a bar-room brawl in the Winfield Hotel last Wednesday evening.

Breton RCMP said there was an altercation between patrons (mostly from the Winfield, Buck Lake and Breton areas). The patrons then pulled out baseball bats which resulted in several injuries (broken noses, etc.), some of which were "fairly serious" according to Cst. Steve Shamber.

Garry Mackinaw, 31, of Buck Lake appeared in Drayton Valley Provincial Court last Thursday charged with three counts of assault with a weapon, and three counts of aggravated assault. He reserved his plea and has been remanded in custody to Breton Provincial Court July 12.

Police confirmed they also have another person in custody.

The investigation is continuing, and it is expected numerous other charges will be laid against a number of other individuals, Shamber stressed.

Storm causes several problems

The thunder storm which hit Friday afternoon created many problems and forced sports activities to be put on hold.

TransAlta says they were battling problems due to lightning.

Bill Hiebert, manager, says most of the problems were oilfield-related with burned-out fuses and transformers. Two transformers were also burned out in the Lindale area while another was hit near Tomahawk.

Sheldon Fuson, fire chief in Drayton Valley, says no fires were reported over the weekend and they had no problems in town due to the lightning.

Cpl Dave Caporale of the Drayton Valley RCMP says the weather caused only minor accidents.

Although it seemed like a lot of rain, the Edmonton weather office says the amount of precipitation for July in a 24-hour period is 68.6 millimetres. From Friday to Sunday at 6 a.m. the Drayton Valley area received 55.6 mm.

The average rainfall for July is 128.7 mm.

McGee considering running for mayor

Tom McGee is very seriously considering running for mayor in the October municipal election.

McGee, who is currently in his sixth year as a town councillor says he will make a decision in early September.

Bob Mayhew has already stated he will seek reelection for the position.

McGee, who has lived in

Tom McGee
Drayton Valley since 1961 has adopted the slogan

Shopping spree

Cathy Pfaff scrambles to get $350 worth of groceries within the two-minute time limit. She was the recent draw winner of the IGA shopping spree.

"Working for the future together."

McGee's confession that he is seriously thinking of running for mayor ends months of speculation.

Although he can't nail down any figures, the clothing store businessman sees tremendous growth for the town.

He's looking forward to servicing the people, through such channels as a Family Community Support Services (FCSS) agency and recreation.

When he originally decided to run for council in 1983, McGee's mandate then was to get more involved in the community.

McGee was actively involved as a coach in the minor soccer program this year, plays slow-pitch and enjoys swimming.

Texaco building new West Pembina plant

Texaco Canada Resources has awarded a $7.4 million construction contract to build its new West Pembina gas plant to PCL Industrial Constructors of Edmonton.

The new gas plant, located 40 kilometres west of Drayton Valley, will have a capacity of 50 million cubic feet of natural gas per day and will recover 8,400 barrels per day of natural gas liquids.

The facility which is scheduled to start up in November will create 21 permanent jobs.

The work force is expected to peak next month at 100 jobs.

A spokesman for PCL says they will try to hire as many local residents as possible.

After that, people will be brought in. They will stay in the local hotels and motels during the construction period.

PCL say they looked at the idea of a camp to accommodate the workers, but felt that wasn't practical. The contract covers all mechanical work associated with the grass roots facility. Engineering design, civil and building erection contracts have been awarded.

Construction has already started at the gas plant.

Speeder lands in ditch

Charges are pending following a single vehicle accident in Drayton Valley July 1.

According to RCMP, a truck heading south on 50 St. at a high rate of speed, went straight across Highway 22, and landed in the south side ditch.

The driver was unscathed, but his passenger received slight injuries in the mishap.

The accident is still under investigation. No names have been released.

First token new car key winner will be keeping fingers crossed

Carl Pasay doesn't consider himself lucky.

But, for the next two months the Frank Maddock high school teacher will be keeping his fingers crossed.

Pasay is the first recipient of a token key in the chamber's second annual car give-away shopping promotion.

The 10-week promotion will be followed by a supper in mid-September, at which time the winner will be announced.

Pasay, who has lived in Drayton Valley since 1976 filled out his car give-away coupon at Value Drugs. But only at the advice of one of the clerks.

"My wife and I went in and it was the clerk who suggested we fill out a coupon," Pasay admits.

Pasay, who admits to buying lottery tickets, says he was quite excited when contacted by the chamber.

However, he's not about to sit on pins and needles all summer waiting for the draw.

Right now, Pasay is thinking about summer holidays.

Noise higher than ERCB guidelines

By Sue Kenyon

A survey is underway to detect noise coming from the Pelican Spruce Mill.

In a report to council, the Pelican steering committee says a noise unit was set up on lot 64, block 112 which is located at 5443 43 Ave. Howard Olsen, chairman of the committee, says it is on a corner lot, the closest lot to the mill.

It was determined that noise was higher than ERCB guidelines, however, the ERCB doesn't see a problem.

"I'd like to make it clear that our guidelines do not apply to logging and forestry operations," Jim Reid, of ERCB says.

One factor for noise, the report points out, is a muffler system which has not worked since one month after being installed.

"The muffler system worked for a month and then plugged up and apparently hasn't worked since," the report says.

Bob Olson, of Pelican Mills said a noise abatement system should be engineered to deal with the problem.

Postal changeover going smoothly, says Robinson

Things are setting down a little at the Drayton Valley post office following the total changeover of box numbers.

Postmaster LeRoy Robinson said there will be a little bit of a slow-down for a couple of weeks while people switch their mailing addresses to the new boxes.

In the meantime, postal employees are cross-referencing. Robinson didn't feel this to be a problem. "It just takes a little longer, that's all."

"It's going fairly smoothly. Most people are quite patient," he praised.

Consistent enrolment

can't attend both," Dr. George Bevan, school board superintendent said.

The board declined to set policy on split families; they will make their decision according to individual cases, Bevan said after the meeting.

Enforcement of boundaries arose out of concern for Lindale and Breton school enrolments. By enforcing boundaries the board believes enrolment will become more consistent in those areas.

Opinions

Local residents busy sprucing up yards, gardens

This is one of the nicest times of the year.

Not only because it's summer and school's out, but for the impressive way residents take to their yards to beautify everything.

It's not unusual to see people working in their flower beds, cutting the grass or shaping trees.

Add to that, all the landscaping that's going on in the new residential areas.

Besides beautiful yards, people are sprucing things up their yards with a deck, where families gather for barbecues and other events.

Parks are also extremely busy at this time of the year, as young and old alike get out and enjoy the weather.

The Drayton Valley Agricultural Society is sponsoring its annual rural and urban beautification contest, especially for those who put a lot of time and effort into their yards.

The awards are not that great, if you measure it in dollars and cents, other than the personal satisfaction.

The chamber's annual Christmas light-up competition held in December has generated a lot of community spirit in past years. There's no reason why this rural and urban beautification promotion should be any different.

Even if you choose not to get into the competitive spirit, Drayton Valley residents are to be commended for all the time and effort they put forth in making this one of the nicest times of the year.

Drayton Valley has lots to promote: let's get busy

I'd sure like to see a well organized promotional committee established in Drayton Valley.

The chamber's tourist committee or even town council are the likely choices to get the ball rolling.

We have a lot of things to promote. Unfortunately, no one seems to be doing much.

For example, the following paragraph about Drayton Valley was listed in a Travel Alberta touring guide brochure: "The first government-planned model town in Alberta, Drayton Valley is situated in the heart of the largest oil field, by area, in the nation." It also mentions the Brazeau Dam and Powerhouse and tours that are available.

Frankly Speaking

By Frank Ryan

That sort of promotional item isn't going to attract a lot of visitors.

What about promoting our indoor swimming pool and 18-hole golf course? Add to this, the tremendous fishing and camping opportunities in the area.

Besides promoting the town, this volunteer committee could look at ways of welcoming the many teams and organizations that come here for such things as sports events and meetings.

Membership on this committee should represent all the areas that benefit from tourism. Plus those who are truly interested in promoting the community.

There's a lot of satisfaction in promoting your own home town.

Newsroom Comment

By Susan Mosicki

Canada's birthday ignored by town

Canada Day has come and gone, but in its wake there is no after-celebration mess to clear away.

I can understand that everyone forgets birthdays once in a while, but Canada Day appears to have been forgotten by a whole town.

Or am I the only one who noticed?

Perhaps Drayton Valley does not have funds available for a parade or fireworks display, but organizing a family picnic in the park would have sufficed to at least acknowledge the birth of our great nation.

Even a family picnic would have been nice.

I took the liberty of phoning 20 people at random in Drayton Valley to see if they would have attended a celebration July 1: 13 said yes and seven said no. Of these seven, two said they would have attended if they hadn't had previous plans.

Tomahawk, Entwistle, and Breton all had parades to honor Canada Day, but our town appears to have ignored the occasion.

Is there no longer any pride attached to living in the 'true north strong and free'?

Our country provides us with freedom to believe what we choose, and to express those beliefs with no fear of repercussions.

We are able to take advantage of family allowance, health care, old age pension, etc. I can't bring myself to believe that most of us don't realize how lucky we are to have these benefits.

One day a year is set aside to celebrate our Canadian status and this year Drayton Valley blew it.

Maybe next year, O Canada, Drayton Valley will 'stand on guard for these,' or at least have a family picnic.

Reader offended by 'careless journalism'

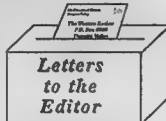

Dear Editor,

I was very concerned about your article 'Lindale parents riled over boundary issue' (July 6).

As one who has attempted to serve the Drayton Valley and Lindale community for the past seven years, I was offended at how your reporter chose to report such a sensitive meeting; I was also offended that such a careless piece of journalism would make front page.

First, the Lindale parents are not riled over the boundary issue, a decisive majority is very supportive of it. The parents of our community realize that securing the student population is critical to the future of the school.

Secondly, if it were the intent of your reporter to report information as opposed to manipulating information, then why was there no mention of all those parents who spoke in favor of securing our boundaries and for that matter, Lindale school's future?

Why was there no mention of the parent who had taught in other provinces and stated that the education of Lindale compared favorably with any place she had been?

Why was there no mention of the parent who demanded to send his children to Lindale because the teaching staff was so strong?

Why was there no mention of the parent who applauded the board decision because by securing the student population the intent to modernize our school becomes more real, thus returning tax dollars back into the community from which they came?

Why was there no mention of all the others who spoke for Lindale school and the board decision to protect it?

I am a strong supporter of the 'open forum.' I support the open forum because it allows for all views to be heard, but it is a pity your reporter chose to concentrate on the views of the minority without any provisions for the majority.

I take nothing away from this group of people. They are fighting for their children and this is deserving of great respect. However, the majority of the people at the meeting supported securing the boundaries and they too, are fighting for their children.

I hope what I have written serves to clear up any unfortunate misunderstanding created by the article in question.

Denis Harris
Principal, Lindale school

Pembina Educational Consortium director Joe MacLellan.

Two years in Grade 12 is provincial norm

By Sue Kenyon

One quarter of all Grade 12 students are taking two years to complete their final year rather than one year, Dr. George Bevan, Twin Rivers school superintendent says.

Bevan says it has become a provincial norm and it is no different in Drayton Valley.

"Historically high schools would see a 10 per cent drop-out rate every year from Grade nine to 12. We are still seeing a decline in enrolment from 9 to 11 but in Grade 12 enrolment is rising," Bevan says.

He attributes the rise to Grade 12 students returning to complete their year.

Bevan says the reason for students taking two years to complete their last year is due to more students wanting to break up their day with school and work. And universities in the province have made entrance regulations more stringent.

"Where the University of Alberta used to accept students with a 65 per cent average, it has risen to 70 per cent; in some faculties the percentage is higher," Bevan says.

Consortium in 'midst of steep growth'

By Paul Cudla

The Pembina Educational Consortium finished an unprecedented year growth-wise with award and scholarship presentations June 30.

Awarded Edmonton Northlands scholarships were Margaret Mills, secretarial, and Carolyn Stevens, registered nursing assistant. Receiving Pembina Educational Society scholarships were Joan Mastre, academic upgrading, Margaret Mills, secretarial and Heather Barrett, registered nursing assistant.

On hand to assist with the consortium awards were dignitaries Tom Thurber, MLA and Bob Mayhew, mayor.

Joe MacLellan, executive director of the Pembina Consortium, said he was extremely pleased with the growth experienced at the consortium this year.

"It has been a banner year in our history. We're in the midst of a steep growth curve as far as enrolment in all our programs.

"We expected a 15-20 per cent increase and we did better than 60 per cent," MacLellan said.

The consortium served 2,500 students in three areas: Whitecourt, Drayton Valley and Rocky Mountain House this year.

MacLellan said the astounding growth of the consortium in 1988-89 was due to a "combination of factors."

"An understanding of adult learners in the region of the services that are available through the consortium and an understanding of the need for education," MacLellan said.

MacLellan added he believed in consortiums and their ability to provide valuable, affordable education.

"We're identifying that there is a need for technical training in specific areas. An upgrading and updating in technical areas that we are able to address.

"It is very effective programming and very efficient programming. Our full-time costs are very favorable. We are saving taxpayers money because we can do it in a very cost efficient manner," MacLellan said.

MacLellan began with the consortium in 1982 and at that time there was not one single full-time program offered. Now there are 11 available through Pembina.

'Instrument of glory' preserves highland bagpipe music

By Paul Cudla

To some, the raucous sound of the Drayton Valley Pipes and Drums Association is sensational teenage for the music-thrifty ear. To some, it's just a lot of noise.

"I'm always surprised by the enthusiasm showed by other people over Scottish bagpipe music," Joe McLellan, member of the pipe band, said.

"People are very kind in giving us compliments about our music...maybe it's just that there's a lot of people who don't like us who haven't said anything," McLellan added laughingly.

The bagpipe and drum brigade has been together for three years and has treated all sorts of local event crowds to their brand of highland music.

"It's the greatest instrument in the world. It's an instrument of glory. What other instrument has led soldiers into battle," Lynn Davis, member and founder of the group said.

"Davis started the corps with an ad in the paper which attracted one other piper and a drummer.

From that modest beginning three years ago the group has expanded to five hard-core members and is hoping to expand to 10. The band has recruited some local youngsters and plans to integrate them as full-fledged members shortly.

Davis said the pipes association is, "always in need of more pipers, but has trouble attracting youths to the instrument.

"If you're a teenager, what do you want to do — chase girls or play the pipes?" Davis asked rhetorically.

The bagpipe and drum music the Drayton Valley pipes band plays is a cultural restoration of traditional Scottish highland bagpipe music.

Davis, who has Scottish ancestors, began playing the bagpipes 21 years ago.

"My landlord in B.C. told me if I played the pipes he would keep my rent down...and he did.

"It's the easiest instrument in the world to play. If you can play a recorder, you can play the pipes."

Davis maintains he will play the instrument for, "as long as I have wind; forever, until I can't blow.

Lynn Davis is proud of the pipes.

Local inns busy with expansion guests

Wearily travelers stopping in Drayton Valley and looking for a place to rest their heads may find it difficult, though not altogether impossible, to find a hotel or motel room.

According to local hotel managers, most establishments in town are running between 80 to 88 per cent occupancy rates.

"Most of the people that are in now are construction workers working on these (gas) plant expansions," said Bill Campbell, manager of the Valley Motor Inn.

Black Gold Inn manager Gunter Schmidt agreed. He said his establishment is extremely busy most of the time. "We think our famous, popular smorgasbord is the reason."

Tourism is not a reason for the bustle, according to Aspen Motor Inn manager Ann Schmidt. "As far as tourism, we don't really get much in Drayton Valley. People who would formerly cut through here to save miles now go through Edmonton to West Edmonton Mall."

Most of the managers of local establishments seemed to agree weekdays were the busiest, while weekends were a little slower.

The exception is the Coach Motel according to manager Eileen Meszaros. "During the week I've got crews in here, and on weekends I've got weddings," Meszaros said this is because of the Coach's bridal suite.

So if you're looking for a home away from home, a place to spend your honeymoon, or a bed to crawl into after a rough day at work, you'll probably find just what you're looking for in Drayton Valley.

As of press time, other information was unavailable.

Local jobs hard to find for teens

Jobs for students are scarce in Drayton Valley.

That's the word from Hire A Student coordinator Tracey Vatter.

Vatter says there just aren't the jobs in construction and the oil patch there was last summer.

And she's finding students in the 16- to 18-year-old age group are choosy about the jobs they select.

Money, or the lack of it, is the reason a lot of students are not taking the first job that comes along.

"The problem is, that in the past students had better paying jobs than what's available, and they're holding out," Vatter says.

In the past, the Hire A Student coordinator says, students were satisfied with the jobs she had.

Now, most of the older students are looking for a 40-hour per week job that pays $7 per hour.

Vatter reports that a lot of students, 15 and under, come into her office in the chamber building daily to check out potential job offers. "They're good workers," Vatter explains.

The lack of construction activity is hurting the post-secondary students (university and college) Vatter admits.

Fortunately, most of them find a job before they decide to come home for the summer.

Man fined $1,000

Gordon Scott Kynoch, 19, was fined $1,000 in Drayton Valley Provincial Court last week.

The local man pleaded guilty to driving over .08 and received the fine, and in default 60 days. He will also be prohibited from driving for a 12-month period.

Salary payouts will increase

Salary payouts will increase approximately $200,000 for the Twin Rivers school district, Dr. George Bevan, superintendent says.

The district has lost 18 teachers through retirement, resignations and leaves but has hired 20 teachers and still needs to fill six vacancies.

"We are having a problem finding French teachers. We are short two and recruiting them seems to be a problem all over the province," Bevan says.

The reason for the increase in staff is due to an increase in enrolment, Bevan says. He also attributes it to the new early childhood education course in the Eldorado school.

Breton blazes during weekend tournament despite storm

By Sue Kenyon

Breton Beavers won three games out of four last weekend, and coach Gerry Polei says they have a good shot at advancing to the provincials.

Teams played early Saturday but games were rained out later in the day, leaving Sunday to finish off the tournament.

Saturday Breton beat Consort 8-7 but then Consort came back and took Jasper 6-5.

Four games were played Sunday to make up the loss of Saturday.

In the first game Breton slammed Jasper 13-1, and after such a strong win, Breton lost their first and only game to Consort 6-5. Consort again beat Jasper 14-4 and Breton won the last game against Jasper 14-4 in five innings.

Polei says the one loss Breton suffered was an interesting game as they were leading right up until the second last inning.

"The score was 5-4 for us and then Consort had two runs in the bottom of the seventh," he said.

Overall Polei said the tournament went really well although there was a lot of work to do to on the diamond Sunday morning after all the rain.

"We really appreciated all the parents who turned out to help work on the diamond, it was great," he said.

The provincials are taking place July 28-29 and 30 and Polei sees his team as having a good chance. They will be played in Ardrossan.

Strike1 for this Breton Beaver.

And he was safe.

Breton pitcher tossed a good game during the tourney.

Corina Kelepouris shot a two-round total of 161 to win the Edmonton ladies junior title.

Teenager captures Edmonton junior title

By Paul Cudla
Corina Kelepouris continues to be a force to be reckoned with on the junior ladies golf circuit.

Kelepouris, 16, won the Edmonton Junior Golf Association championship June 30 at Stony Plain.

With a first round score of 88 at Riverside and a final round 73, Kelepouris captured an eight-stroke victory over Jennifer Calderback of Lacombe.

"I thought I played pretty good. My putting was pretty good, I sank some long putts that kept me going."

"When it came to the greens I was pretty calm," Kelepouris said.

Kelepouris was staked to a five-stroke lead on the first hole at Stony Plain. While she birdied the par 5, Calderback had troubles with the water and sand on the hole and ended up with a 9.

Buoyed by the first hole lead, Kelepouris continued to play steady golf despite a minor battle with nerves.

"On the back nine she started coming back and I started getting nervous," Kelepouris said.

She reaffirmed her lead and assured herself the junior ladies championship on the 16th hole where Calderback carded a double bogey and Kelepouris sank a putt for a birdie. Kelepouris finished with a 36-hole total of 161.

For the Edmonton tournament Kelepouris, who lives in Drayton Valley, golfed under the Windermere golf club which sponsors her and keeps her up to date on upcoming tournaments.

SPCA says chucks unsafe

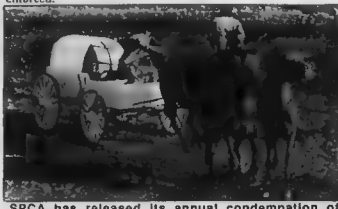

The Alberta SPCA strongly opposes chuckwagon races because of the high risk of injury and death to horses.

During 1987 and 1988, Alberta SPCA constables attended 41 races, during which there were 19 accidents. Fifteen horses were injured of which seven had to be killed.

"I cannot believe the majority of Albertans want to see horses suffer pain, stress, injury or death for the sake of entertainment and financial gain," says SPCA president J. Joy Ripley.

To mitigate animal suffering, under the present conditions, the SPCA urges that:

- An independent veterinarian be present at all meets to provide immediate treatment for all injured horses.
- All horses be inspected by the veterinarian prior to the race to ensure they are fit to run.
- All chuckwagon associations conduct random drug testing at all meets.
- The figure eight start and the unlanced entry onto the track be eliminated.
- The rules governing chuckwagon racing be strictly enforced.

SPCA has released its annual condemnation of chuckwagon races.

The following is a humorous account of the Modeste Creek League slow-pitch journey submitted by George Tryon, with the permission of Breton RCMP:

Police Bulletin

On or about the 26th of June A.D. 1989, at or near Heart Break Ridge, situated north and west of the Carnwood store in the province of Alberta, Cst. D. Heslop while on duty found the GT Commandos in the act of trapping and slaughtering fur-bearing animals out of season.

Charges of slaughtering Martins may be laid. Upon inspection of the hides and carcass Cst. Heslop noticed the Martins had just had a fresh feed of Moose Juice and an odd Sardine, causing him to make the remark: "These must be Old Slo Martins."

Heslop stated that one hide in particular stretched out at a 16-7 ratio, which should give the Commandos a trophy. Charges may be dropped if the Commandos promise to change their name to the Mad Trappers.

Cst. Heslop stated that if the Commandos continue these illegal activities however, the case (game) may have to be reviewed, as there is a severe shortage of good quality Martins, Moose and Sardines in this area.

The Commandos' only defense was they thought they were on the other side of the river, where trapping season is extended for one more day.

Yellow team goalie Dave Elwood captured playoff MVP in ball hockey league.

Ball hockey caps season

The Drayton Valley Ball Hockey Association ended its season with a bit of an upset in the A side finals. The Black squad fresh off an undefeated season went up against the Yellow team in the best of three playoff and lost in two straight. The Yellow team took the first game 5-2, and the second 6-3.

Most valuable player in the playoffs was Yellow team goalie Dave Elwood who sparked with an impressive 1.3 goals-against average in the playoffs.

In the B-side playoffs, the upset trend continued with the last place Blue team winning the final.

Kevin Thompson, league treasurer, said the league which ran from April to the end of June, "went fairly well, there were only a few minor cuts and scrapes."

Eight teams competed in the ball hockey league, and Thompson hopes the league will increase in size and length for next season.

"We're hoping to have a 10-team league next year, and have it run through the summer," Thompson said.

The league is also seeking certified refereeing for next year; interested parties can give Kevin Thompson a call at 542-7407.

Minor ball active right up to end

Minor ball holds wind-up
Breton Minor Ball Association held its wind-up and appreciation evening June 24.

The Brad Meade Memorial trophies for most improved (MIP) and most sportsmanlike (MSP) players were presented to David Williams and Michael Halushka in the mosquito category. In beavers, Tom Harstand won the MIP and Randy Pumm MSP.

The beaver players, coaches and parents were unable to attend as they were involved in the A final of the double A tourney where they lost to host Drayton Valley by a single point.

Coach of the Year award went to Colleen Pittman. Colleen attended the coaches' clinic, coached mosquito and helped with t-ball. Her name will be submitted to the Alberta Baseball Association and Alberta Sports Council for provincial consideration.

MLA Tom Thurber presented $1,400 from Alberta Sports Council to minor ball treasurer Doreen Ellis, to help purchase a pitching machine.

Year of the Coach certificates were presented to all minor coaches and managers. Recognition was given to Dave Heaslip for the time and effort he put into the league tournament.

hosted by the Sardine Lakers June 24 and 25.

First place in the A event was won by the GT Commandos with the Gearjammers finishing second. First in the B event was taken by the Drifters with Warburg second.

Tournament participants report the tourney a great success.

Beaver provincials
The Breton beaver baseball team began its first round of provincial elimination tournaments July 1 and 2 at Kinuso.

Heavy rains delayed the start of the tourney until 2 p.m., July 1 on a shale diamond in Slave Lake. The Breton team lost their first game to Kinuso 6-4. In the second game, they soundly beat the Athabasca team by more than 10 runs.

Sunday morning the sun shone after another evening of heavy rain and Breton met Kinuso again, defeating them 23-1. They then beat Athabasca, again by a large margin.

Good defence, pitching and solid hitting were all in place for Breton the last three games and the team came out of the tourney with a three win, one loss record.

Local teams win titles

Two Drayton Valley slow-pitch teams won division titles at a Canada Day weekend 170-team tournament in Vernon, B.C.

Both the Grim Reapers and MD Fowl Balls rolled through their divisions with four wins, only to be eliminated in the playoffs.

Shork Squad, a third Drayton Valley team who made the long trip to the B.C. tourney failed to make the playoffs.

After eliminating four B.C. teams to win the recreational division, the Grim Reapers dropped a 12-11 decision to Hawaiian Punch of Edmonton.

It was a heartbreaker for the Fowl Balls, as their perfect record in winning the intermediate division was gone when they lost an extra inning decision in their playoff match up.

Meanwhile on the local slow-pitch scene, a total of 45 teams are playing in the second half of the 1989 schedule. This is down nine teams from the May/June lineup of teams.

Club to host trap final

On Sunday, July 16 the Strathcona Gun Club will host the Zone 5 trap shooting playoff for the 1989 Alberta Summer Games.

The competition will include four events: juniors (13-17 years), men's open, ladies' open and vets (60 years and older). Registration will start at 9 a.m. with the competition at 10 a.m.

For juniors who may not have much experience with trap shooting, a free clinic is being offered Saturday, July 15 at the range. All equipment will be provided, as well as instruction in the finer points of trap shooting. Any juniors interested in attending the clinic should call Shirley Olsen at 988-5081.

Further information on trap shooting and other Alberta Summer Games events is available at the Alberta Sport Council, 963-9158.

Fire calls up in '88, says Fuson

Fire calls were up last year. Sheldon Fuson, in his annual report to town council, reports his volunteer fire department attended 143 fires last year.

This included 38 in town and 105 in the County of Parkland/MD of Brazeau.

The 38 fires in town is an 11 per cent increase over 1987 while the 105 fires is up by 84 per cent over the previous year.

The 143 fires is the highest total the department has attended in the last 10 years.

The first quarter of 1988 was relatively quiet for the fire department with 27 fire calls.

However, in his report, Fuson says, "The second quarter was of a nature that the department has never experienced before. There was a total of 67 calls."

The fire chief says the main reason for the 84 per cent increase was the dryness of the year which resulted in an extraordinary number of grass fires.

The busiest days of the week for fires were Saturdays and Mondays with 25 calls each followed closely by Sundays with 24.

The weekends accounted for 41 per cent of the alarms, occurring on Saturday and Sunday. This compares to 30 per cent on weekends in 1987.

The majority of the alarms received in 1988 were between 10 a.m. and 8 p.m. This 10-hour period accounted for 76 per cent of all alarms.

The most frequent hours for alarms was 4 p.m. through 7 p.m. The busiest hour was 5 a.m. with 18 calls.

It was a very busy year for firemen.

The fire department did a commendable job in 1988, keeping the dollar loss figure at an acceptable level of 2.6 per cent overall, based on the estimated figures for dollar loss as well as estimated market value.

Tourism receiving priority in Battle River Country

The Battle River Tourist Association held a meeting in Fort Saskatchewan recently.

A discussion was held in regards to setting up an information centre in the Reynolds Museum in Wetaskiwin.

Battle River manager Sylvia Clemens told the members that with numerous projects on stream and many new and exciting happenings throughout the zone, tourism is receiving priority attention. With a new marketing focus in place, Battle River country is being produced at a higher level than at any previous time.

Members were advised there is still about $3,000 available under the tourism events promotional assistance program. The program is designated to offer promotional support grants to organizations that have limited funding for such purposes and is available to any tourist association member organization.

A team tourism update indicated that of the $300,000 allocated to Battle River, there is still close to $200,000 unspent.

MD's master plan taking shape

Recreation and culture master planner Jeanine Glassford is compiling information received from societies and organizations in the MD Brazeau to put together a detailed assessment of resources.

"Something that gives direction to the MD in terms of what should happen in recreation and culture services in the next five years," she said.

"It's really a management plan," she explained.

The master plan will include an inventory of facilities and programs available, as well as who uses them (age groups), their source of funding, etc.

The MD will touch base with the societies and organizations in workshops planned for July 25, 26 and 27 in Lodgepole, Drayton Valley, and Breton areas.

I am also required to contribute to every charity, society and organization which the genius of man is capable of bringing to life; to the hospital expansion, to minor hockey, to figure skating, to senior hockey, to the curling fund, to the United Way Fund, to the Centennial Fund, to the Red Cross, the White Cross, the Blue Cross, the Purple Cross and the Double Cross, etc.

For my own safety I am required to carry life insurance, health insurance, accident insurance, fire insurance, property insurance, liability insurance, earthquake insurance, tornado insurance, old age insurance and unemployment insurance.

Simply because I refuse to donate to something or other I am boycotted, talked about, lied about, held up, held down and robbed until I am almost ruined.

I can tell you honestly that, except for a miracle that happened, I could not enclose this cheque for payment. The wolf that comes to my door nowadays just had pups in my kitchen. I sold the pups and here is the money.

Ag ministers announce division of ministerial responsibilities

Agriculture Minister Ernie Isley and Associate Agriculture Minister Shigley McLellan have announced the new division of ministerial responsibilities in Alberta Agriculture.

The minister of agriculture will, as always, maintain final accountability for Alberta Agriculture. Responsibility for the department's various divisions and for the councils, commissions, institutes and other bodies attached to the agriculture minister will be divided between Isley and McLellan.

Isley will be responsible for the operations of the Alberta Agricultural Development Corporation, the office of the Farmers' Advocate of Alberta, the Alberta Grain Commission, the Alberta Dairy Control Board and the Alberta Agricultural Products Marketing Council.

His areas of departmental responsibility will include the plant industry, animal health, animal health, economic services, finances and administration, marketing services, systems development and information services division. In addition, he will be responsible for the department's planning and trade policy secretariats.

The new separation of Alberta Agriculture responsibilities reflects an expanded role for the department's associate minister.

McLellan will be responsible for the Alberta Hail and Crop Insurance Corp., the Irrigation Council, the Alberta Agricultural Research Institute, the Agricultural Research Council and the Surface Rights Board.

Her departmental responsibilities will include the research division, the irrigation secretariat, the irrigator and resource management division and the rural services division, which includes agricultural and community services, education, engineering, home economics and 4-H branches.

The associate minister will also be responsible for Alberta Agriculture's six regional offices.

Tourist plan set for summer

Drayton Valley's tourist action plan could be ready this summer.

Vice-chairperson Jean Saunders says the committee hopes to wrap up the draft this week.

Then it has to go to town council for their approval in principle.

Saunders isn't sure when the tourist action plan will be submitted to the province.

"I hesitate to put a date on it. We want to do it slow and carefully," she says.

Funding for team tourism projects approved to date have topped the $1-million mark.

"We have approved over 100 projects and additional applications are pouring in," says Tourism Minister Don Sparrow.

Team tourism is a $220 million funding program, jointly administered by Alberta Tourism and TIAALTA. Funded by Alberta lotteries, the five year-program is intended to help Alberta's 14 tourism zones better market their regional tourism industries.

Farm Safety Week stresses 4Es

Each year a number of children lose their lives needlessly on Canadian farms. Many more sustain injuries, often with long-term effects.

Statistics gathered by the Canada Safety Council indicate an unnecessary proportion of farm fatalities in 1987 were to children under the age of 15 years. Many of these accidents would have been prevented had action been taken to eliminate the hazard, educate the child on how to behave around machinery, livestock and farm buildings, and enforce safety rules. Make safety a habit by setting a good example.

By incorporating the four Es of farm safety, the 1989 theme for National Farm Safety Week, July 25-31, "Children on the farm - Keep them safe," aims to have adults take responsibility for the safety of children in agricultural environments.

Implement the four Es of safety on the farm:

Eliminate the hazards. Anything that is a risk to your well-being can be an even greater risk to a child.

Dangerous equipment and hazardous materials such as pesticides should be stored in well marked containers and locked away.

Practice good housekeeping on farm grounds, both in and around machinery, buildings and within fenced regions.

Ensure all equipment shields and guards are in place and in good condition.

Lower front-end loaders; leave "power take-off" gears in neutral when not working.

Build safety into the farm structures such as silos, by making them inaccessible.

Educate and caution children on procedures and behavior around livestock, machinery and farm structure.

Inform children which areas are "off limits" and why.

Ensure children have respect for and the knowledge to handle themselves safely around livestock.

Prepare children by teaching them safe steps and procedures to follow should they require your attention while you work.

When children are old enough to assist on the farm, familiarize them completely with assigned tasks and chores and provide ongoing supervision.

Don't assume your child will know automatically what to do under all circumstances. Explain everything about safety. Discuss the "hows" and "whys" and be prepared to re-explain to ensure their understanding.

Enforce the safety rules. Establish and enforce such rules as: No passengers ever for any farm vehicle; work areas are off limits; machinery is not a toy and not for playing on; enforce areas that are off limits such as chemical storage sites.

When rules are broken, reinforce and explain why they must be followed.

Example! Set a good one. Your actions speak louder than words. If you work safely and follow recommended safety procedures, your child will follow your example.

Practice safety in everything you do. Don't let your oversight in safe farm procedures be the cause of an accident involving a child.

Municipal District of Brazeau No. 77

NOTICE OF APPEAL

Pursuant to Section 84 of the Planning Act, Notice is hereby given that an appeal hearing will be held on July 14, 1989 at 9:30 a.m. in the Council Chambers of the M.D. of Brazeau No. 77 in the Town of Drayton Valley, Alberta to deal with an appeal received as a result of a Municipal Planning Commission decision to refuse the issuance of a Development Permit for a racksite for oilfield and related equipment storage site on Block 1, Plan 4065 TR, NE 33-48-7-W5. Parties claiming to be affected by this decision must submit written submissions stating comments/objections to the Secretary of the Development Appeal Board, M.D. of Brazeau No. 77 in the Town of Drayton Valley on or before July 13, 1989.

Mosquito spraying continues

The town is conducting a mosquito breeding-site program.

Council heard at the June 26 meeting the program had identified 63 breeding sites which exceed the Department of Environment standards.

Last year's program indicated a large number of mosquito larvae were eliminated due to rapid drying of ponds. This indicates the water level of these areas would have to rise above last year's high in order to activate new and dormant mosquito eggs.

Council was informed this has occurred but only slightly as results show a dramatic drop in the numbers of pond larvae.

It's administration's recommendation the program should continue to monitor both pond larvae and adult mosquitoes to ensure that once the water levels increase the numbers of larvae and adult mosquitoes is recorded for future reference.

The town receives a $3,235 mosquito control grant from the provincial government to assist with the program.

The purpose of this program was to identify mosquito breeding sites and

New tenants for old Shell

New tenants will be moving into the old Shell service station on 50th St. in mid-September.

Al's Glass has purchased the lot and building.

Renovation plans include re-siding and insulating the building.

Terry Huyghe, co-owner of Al's Glass, says the old service station will give them about 4,000 square feet, twice what they currently have.

Huyghe and partner Darrell Fuechtmann have operated Al's Glass for 11 years. They purchased it from Al Chesterman, the original owner.

count both adult and mosquito larvae at these sites.

A three-mile radius around the town was recommended by the Alberta Ministry of Environment as boundaries for the project.

The program has identified 390 potential breeding sites.

It was found that three permanent ponds and 90 semi-permanent and temporary sites supported mosquito larvae. Another 167 sites showed the potential for supporting larvae but remained dormant due to insufficient rainfall.

Renovations planned

The town has announced plans to spend $80,000 on renovations to their public works and utility shop on 54 St. The building is 25 years old. Exact plans for the renovations are still on the drafting board.

Building permits down

Building permits for the first six months of 1989 are roughly 24 per cent behind last year's figures.

Al Chesterman, the town's building inspector, reports that permits at the end of June totalled $4,300,600. This compares to $5,428,650 for the same six months a year ago.

Permits last month totalled $206,000. This included $106,000 for residential construction and $100,000 for renovations currently underway at the Pembina Educational Consortium's new offices in the old town hall building.

The $206,000 compares with $1,487,500 for June of last year.

Residential construction, which has enjoyed a boom in Drayton Valley for several years is also lagging behind.

The six-month total for 1989 is $1,829,800 compared to $2,366,150 in 1988.

Following is a breakdown of building permits for the first six months of the year:

January.....	$95,000
February.....	$2,310,500
March.....	$238,500
April.....	$675,000
May.....	$776,600
June.....	$206,000

Parkland raises taxes in face of split

By Christine Vanzella
Stony Plain Reporter

Amidst threats of a Spruce Grove split, Parkland county has passed a pared down school board budget and raised school taxes an average of 16 per cent around the county.

About 30 people showed up at council chambers June 15 to witness as trustees voted 5-4 in favor of the increase during a meeting of the school board.

The board dipped into its capital reserve building fund for $400,000 and put $1,240,000 from its transitional grant into the budget to lower the tax increase from a proposed 22 per cent to 16 per cent.

The 1989 school requisition is now $18,685,004, down $1.73 million from the $20 million previously needed.

Spruce Grove trustees were opposed to the changes and voted against the budget.

"Everything was done to us short of hitting us over the head with a hammer," said Grove trustee Perty Miller, referring to a public meeting with Spruce Grove ratepayers held earlier in the week. She indicated the budget changes do not reflect the citizens' concerns raised at the meeting.

"I don't think (the budget) has been reduced enough and I can't support it," she added.

Fellow Spruce Grove trustee John Wilson said there is a fear the city is being victimized, and the board has not listened to points raised during the public meeting.

"I feel we got a major message from the meeting that included a list of recommendations on where the budget should be pared and result in a decreased tax levy. I don't feel we've addressed those issues," he stated.

Wagons ho!

Visitors to Em-T Town near Alder Flats during the Canada Day weekend may have spotted this covered wagon making its way down the road. Despite its slow pace, the strange sight drew a lot of attention from passersby.

Airport deficiencies taken care of Deficiencies reported at the Drayton Valley airport in April have been taken care of.

Airport manager Ron Wade told a recent transportation committee meeting that crack filling, pavement markings, lawn mowing, lights, windsock, refuelling site, signs, sidewalks, first aid kit, fire extinguisher and the landing/log airport register have been taken care of.

The deficiencies were originally reported by Transport Canada.

Wade has been asked to submit a report twice a year on the condition of the airport.

New process will retard oil reservoir water flow

A new technology developed by Alberta Energy Company Ltd. and its partners, Alberta Oil Sands Technology and Research Authority (AOSTRA) and Westcoast Petroleum Ltd., is expected to improve recovery from oil wells.

Dubbed AWACT (anti-water-cut-technology) the process retards the ability of water to flow within an oil reservoir, thereby increasing the oil production rate and extending the economic life of producing wells. It is expected AWACT will find widespread application in Alberta. Researchers estimate more than 50 per cent of oil fields experience excessive water production, causing early abandonment of a well.

The technology evolved through research activities originally related to fireflooding heavy oil deposits in the Suffield region of southeast Alberta. During this experiment it was observed gases produced during the combustion process reduced water production. Subsequent testing at 23 different oil wells at Suffield has shown a one-time injection of a small amount of chemical and gas will significantly increase oil production.

Over $2 million has been invested in this technology since 1987.

Thieves plague Buck Lake

Breton RCMP are seeking public assistance in solving two separate thefts in the Buck Lake area June 10 to 12.

On June 10, between 11:30 a.m. and 1 p.m., a thief or thieves removed a gas can with gas, booster cables, a downrigger, two oars, a life jacket, and a fish net, from a boat on the southeast side of Buck Lake near Willow Haven Estates.

Between 7:30 the following evening, and late evening of June 12, an unknown person(s) forced their way into a 23-foot holiday trailer at about lot 31, Willow Haven Estates, and removed fishing equipment valued at approximately $2,000.

Please call Breton RCMP or, if wishing to remain anonymous, contact Crime Stoppers.

Farmers offered incentives

Ducks Unlimited is offering farmers in designated areas across the Prairie provinces a variety of incentives to adjust their land use practices.

The program, Prairie Care, is a $4.8-million dollar resource conservation program aimed at soil, water and wildlife. Prairie Care's objective is to halt soil degradation and wetland losses by providing cover for ducks.

Incentives range from annual acreage payments to outright purchase of some land parcels. Ducks Unlimited has also hired agronomists in each province to assist with the program and develop close working ties with the agricultural sector.

Students have opportunity to visit legislature building

Grades 5/6 Alder Flats students paid a visit to the Provincial Museum, rode the LRT and toured the Legislature building in Edmonton June 26. They were accompanied by teachers Heather Brown and Jere Geiger and parents Gary Brown, Wendy Poudrier and Joan Elmont.

The highlight of the trip was to sit in on 'Question Period,' be introduced to the MLAs by Tom Thurber and stand and be recognized. Each grade had a photograph taken on the main steps with MLA Thurber.

A wind-up supper for the second anniversary of the Alder Flats/Buck Lake baseball teams was held at the hall recently.

Seventy-five players were registered in the baseball program and 19 in softball.

A pot-luck supper, award presentations and team photographs celebrated a successful year.

Twelve seniors from Caroline toured the area June 30. They visited Norman Moore's elk farm, Lodgepole museum, Elm-Town and were treated to a wet buggy ride by the Oliver family. In spite of the inclement weather, they voted unanimously they had a wonderful day.

The heat is on

Chad Shewfelt, 6, and Jessie Binkley, 7, get into an all-out battle with their water pistols. What a great summertime diversion.

Transportation moving?

Alberta Transportation is looking for a new home.

This comes on the heels of a suggestion from the town. Robin Wenbourne, municipal secretary, says the town has received numerous complaints from nearby residents about sand blowing off piles in the highway yard on 50 St.

Although the department doesn't have any immediate plans to relocate, they have indicated to the town the possibility was good, if another site could be arranged.

Council heard at the June 26 meeting that if equivalent property and facilities could be provided at minimal or no cost in the form of a land exchange, then Alberta Transportation would give consideration to the town's proposal.

Venture Realty has reportedly already supplied Alberta Transportation with information on alternate sites.

Despite the complaints from the town, Charles Lenzion, regional director for Alberta Transportation, says the yards in Drayton Valley are kept in a neat and tidy fashion at all times.

Zone delegate nominations wanted

The Alberta Cattle Commission (ACC) is now accepting nominations for zone delegates.

"Our election process is the democratic basis of the organization. Every producer has a vote and all delegates and directors are elected," says Gordon Mitchell, ACC spokesperson.

"The ACC is working hard to encourage producers to get involved and run as a candidate for zone delegates. We are also trying to encourage producers to attend election meetings this fall," adds Mitchell.

"Producer participation is the key to understanding the issues facing cattlemen and women at the grassroots level.

To ensure equal representation from all parts of Alberta, the province is divided into nine zones. Ten delegates are elected from each zone. From the ranks of the delegate body, a board of directors is elected.

The deadline for nominations is Aug. 18. Eligible producers can contact their local delegates or the ACC office in Calgary for nomination forms and any information.

Mitchell explains all candidates must submit a resume with the nomination form. The resumes will be published in the ACC annual publication to familiarize producers with the candidates in their area.

Election meetings will be held Oct. 30 to Nov. 10 throughout the province. The ACC will be publishing the details of election meetings to inform producers of the time and places, as well as the issues to be discussed that will determine policy for the next year.

THE WESTERN Review

Is rough and tumble image false?

By Samia Vallemand
For many Canadians, this year's new car may not be a car at all. Minivans, light trucks and off-road utility vehicles now make up a third of all new vehicles sold.

Many are used as family cars because of their spaciousness and comparative fuel economy. Buyers are also attracted to the rugged, rough and tumble image emphasized in the advertisements. However, these vehicles may not be as tough as they appear. Many are exempt from important safety standards applied to more traditional transportation.

Consumer's Corner

For example, while most manufacturers now include head restraints in their trucks and vans, they are not required to. Anchor points for child restraint seats are mandatory in passenger cars but not in other vehicles. Side doors of passenger cars have to meet crush resistant standards and the roof must provide similar protection in rollovers. That is not the case for trucks, vans and 4x4s.

The standards do not cover all vehicles because when the rules were drawn up, trucks and vans were more likely to carry cargo than people. The design of some vehicles may make extra protection unnecessary as well. Pickup trucks, for example, suffer little damage in collisions with cars because they are higher off the ground.

CAC Alberta can give you more information on this subject. Just call 420-0747.

Mph or km?

Motorists travelling along Secondary Road 629 (Lodgepole highway) might be questioning what the actual speed limit is. The new 90 signs don't indicate whether it's mph or km. The other sign indicates the letters km have been added to clarify the situation.

This 1,300-square-foot bungalow has all the extras to make it a prestigious home.

The bright, big living and dining area features patio doors on to the large deck facing south overlooking the fountain.

Custom built and energy efficient, this

Hillside bungalow is already piped in for a swimming pool and wet bar.

The basement is developed complete with a jacuzzi room and sauna.

This home is reduced to $92,000. Call Venture Realty for a closer look.

Farm incomes may drop

After a sharp rise in 1988, farm incomes are projected to drop back to 1987 levels this year.

The 1988 level of just over $1 billion was a significant increase over the $709 million estimate for the previous year, according to Alberta Agriculture.

Net-farm income is projected to be $714 million in 1989. Substantial reductions in program payments in combination with increases in operating expenses will contribute to the decrease.

Farm cash receipts for 1989 are expected to total $60 million less than 1988's $4.4 billion.

Operating expenses are predicted to increase by almost 10 per cent to over $3.6 billion in 1989. As well as increases in fertilizer and other crop inputs, livestock expenses will likely increase as more feeder cattle enter the province.

Town considering safety association

The town has been invited to join a municipal safety association.

The Alberta Urban Municipalities Association (AUMA) is in the process of trying to make application for the formation of this association through the Workman's Compensation Board (WCB). In order to proceed with the application, the AUMA must determine majority support by the municipalities.

For Drayton Valley to join, it would mean a three-cent increase in the WCB assessment rate per $100 of payroll. The town's assessable payroll for 1988 was $1,030. The increase would amount to $302.

Town manager Manny Deol advised council at their June 29 meeting to sit back and see what happens.

"We're not sure of what we're getting into," he told council. Deol says there's a possibility the program may become mandatory.

'Tremendous year' for team, coach

In appreciation:

Featured coach — Dave Davies

By Paul Cudla
Dave Davies coaches the Drayton Valley Beaver representative team and tries to instill a spirit of sportsmanship.

"We're pretty adamant about sportsmanship. We try to teach the kids to be gentlemen first," Davies said.

Davies coaches the 12-13 year-old all-star team which plays in tournaments each weekend. The team is presently in the midst of the provincial qualifying tournament and Davies is confident the team will make the top four round-robin.

"We've had a tremendous year. We've only lost three or four games this year. The team has played in a tournament every weekend and the worst we've done is second," Davies said.

Davies has been coaching minor baseball for 17 seasons, the last three here in Drayton Valley. Davies works at Norcen Energy Resources as an area supervisor.

He has been encouraged by the parental participation the team has received this season.

"We have an excellent group of parents and we've had good participation," Davies said.

"But," Davies continues, "we need more qualified participation with baseball (as far as coaching). There are a number of qualified individuals who are not coming out."

Cynthia outlet moves

The Canada Post outlet in Cynthia has moved.

It is now located in the Black Bear Cafe after being located in the hotel for several years.

Lloyd Milton, spokesman for Canada Post, says the change will result in increased service. The post office outlet will be open the same hours as the cafe.

Milton called the Black Bear Cafe a perfect location.

Canada Post customers in Cynthia and area have been notified of the change.

HATS OFF TO OUR HEROS

Brad Huising decided to train in paramedics because "it seemed interesting."

"I like the excitement. It's never dull."

The second-year paramedic student at NAIT is working as summer relief at Associated Ambulance Service until Aug. 5.

He also worked for Leduc Tri-County EMS for one and a half years.

Huising, who lives in St. Albert, says he enjoys working in Drayton Valley. "It's a nice town, nice people."

Although spare time is scarce for paramedics, Huising says he doesn't have trouble finding time to get away. "I make time."

But any single women thinking of spending their spare time with Huising better work fast. This single young man will be heading home to St. Albert soon.

Town council decides not charge tie-down fees at airport

Town council has decided not to charge tie-down fees at the airport.

Anyone who has paid the fee for this year will get a refund.

Council was told at the June 28 meeting that a number of pilots have refused to pay this in the past.

Ron Wade, airport manager, recommended the fees be dropped as it's not worth the hassle to try and collect.

Transportation chairman Howard Olsen says that since the airport is outside town boundaries, the tie-down fees are a problem to enforce.

'Bottom line is to create jobs'

Town council is planning an economic forum for October.

Forestry will be the major topic discussed at the day-long session.

According to town manager Manny Deol, the forum will look at what's feasible for Drayton Valley in the area of forestry.

"The bottom line is to create jobs," Deol says.

Experts will be invited to look at future prospects and to see what the local potential is.

Manufacturers, investors and government people from both Canada and the United States will be invited.

Weyerhaeuser, owners of Pelican Mills oriented strandboard plant in Drayton Valley, are expected to play a key role in the forum.

Yellowhead MP Joe Clark has also been invited to participate.

Red Deer swine seminar July 17

International swine experts will bring their expertise to three seminars across Western Canada this month.

The full-day pig management seminar comes to Red Deer July 27, following stops in Winnipeg and Saskatoon. A wide variety of topics will be presented in mini-topic presentations, concurrent sessions and a wind-up panel discussion.

Each participant will receive a set of notes on the slate of presentations. Advance registrations are recommended.

Employee honored

Terry Teeter, left, a waitress at the Black Gold Inn for five years, receives the May employee-of-the-month award from chamber of commerce representative Ann Krawchuk.

New logo replaces Better Buy Alberta

Expect to see a new logo appearing on grocery store shelves and on Alberta food and beverages proclaiming products from Alberta as "Alberta Made."

The Alberta Made logo has recently replaced Better Buy Alberta as the symbol to identify Alberta produced food and beverage products.

The Better Buy Alberta slogan has been useful and well recognized in Alberta for a number of years. The Alberta Food Processors Association started evaluating it last year and eventually the new slogan was developed.

While the Alberta Food Processors Association has a growing list of members -- 150 food processors plus another 50 associate members -- a small percentage of the members were using the Better Buy logo on their products. The association says it expects more members will use the new slogan and logo.

Tourist counsellor attends seminar

Service of excellence was the theme of the 1989 Battle River Tourist Association (BRTA) information centre training seminars held for travel counsellors who staff tourist booths throughout the zone.

Cindy Walters who works in the Drayton Valley chamber information booth attended the seminar held at Camrose.

One hundred and 94 counsellors attended the sessions held in Bashaw, Camrose, Castor, Sedgewick, Stettler and Viking.

The sessions emphasized the importance of knowing about Zone 5 attractions, facilities and events, the benefit of tourism to Alberta's economy, ways and means of providing excellent service to the visitors.

Using the new 1989 literature published by the Battle River Tourist Association manager Sylvia Clemens stressed how the various tools of the trade can be used in assisting visitors and encouraging them to spend more of their holidays in the Battle River area.

One of the main objectives of the BRTA is to encourage efficiency and to promote a high standard of service to all visitors to the Zone 5 area.

Counsellors were told it is an established fact visitors will often return to an area where they receive courteous and friendly service.

Top carcass worth $4,000

Raising quality hogs is a goal of every producer. An annual competition at the Alberta Pork Congress has the additional challenge of producing that quality in a limited time period.

The top 10 carcasses from the annual barrow competition were auctioned at the showcase 'ballroom sale' during the congress main event banquet. This year, the top carcass brought the winner, the Beedale Colony of Rimbey, $4,000.

All breeds and crossbreeds were eligible for the competition. The 65 entries also included out-of-province competitors. Barrows were tagged and weighed on the producers' farms during the last two weeks of March. They had until June 12, the Monday before the congress, to bring their pig to a 100 kg (220 pound) market weight.

Competition hogs were slaughtered June 13 and judged by Agriculture Canada graders. Carcass quality and growth rate characteristics were considered in the scoring. Marks were given for loin eye per 100 pounds, carcass visual quality, index and average daily gain.

The average price of the carcasses was $1,900. Most buyers donated their purchases to Red Deer and area charities.

'Chase and grabbits' causing new trends in food industry sales

By Bev Brooks
District Home Economist

Are you one of the "chase and grabbits"? If you're the typical food shopper this is the term Pillsbury has coined for you. Chase and grabbits are young urbanites with good incomes.

The chase and grabbits now make up about 23 per cent of the population, compared to 11 per cent back in 1973. They are causing some trends in the food industry. The swing is toward health and freshness, microwave foods, ethnic foods and gourmet delights.

At a recent program I had the pleasure of listening to Dr. Fred Wolfe, a food scientist at the University of Alberta. He talked about the changes we see in the marketplace and the forces causing these changes.

We see it in the foods available. The deli counter, bakery and other food service sections make up 20 per cent of the floor space in some grocery stores. Down every aisle ready-to-eat foods and partially-prepared foods take up the majority of the shelf space.

Of all the poultry sold apparently 40 per cent is now pre-cooked. Beef and pork are moving in the same direction but much slower. The modified atmosphere packaging will help these meats compete.

The most common breads in North American households are white (No. 1), brown and bagels. This ties in with the ethnic foods popularity. Notice the packaging. The words Cantonese, Italian, etc. are in larger letters than the food name. Ethnic foods sell.

We cannot underestimate the role of the microwave oven. One of the latest products advertised has a thermostat on the package which changes color when the food is hot enough. Apparently 766 new foods for the microwave were introduced last year.

About 63 per cent of all Canadian households now have microwave ovens. This is expected to be 75 per cent by this Christmas.

The food industry is following the lead of the fast food restaurants with their breakfast selections of muffins, eggs and hotcakes. From the picture on the package many of these are duplicates of the restaurant variety. One of these foods sells for $2.19 at the store and $1.99 at the restaurant. They believe the consumer will pay the extra in order to have the convenience of eating in his own home.

Convenience is a top concern. With 60 per cent of all supermarkets now having deli departments and nearly three-quarters of these offering hot dishes there is great competition between the take-out food restaurants and grocery stores. In Europe 43 per cent of the food dollar is spent on refrigerated entrees. North Americans now spend about 15 per cent on the refrigerated entrees. About the same amount is spent on take-out foods. This converts to $62,400,000,000.

The food business is big business. The agriculture industry depends on it.

Convenience for the increasing percentage of chase and grabbits seems to be the direction in which our society and food industry is moving. Even the most traditional families are affected by the trends.

Sock it to ya

No relaxation for this little sports fanatic. When he has to sit still, he even exercises in his stroller.

Being a parent is also being a friend

By Robert Cochrane
DV Baptist Church

It would be wonderful if parents could always be called the friends of their children. There is so often a strange and almost unbridgeable gap between parents and children so they are almost strangers to each other. There are reasons for that gap.

A mother said to her little girl that, when she was a little girl there were certain things she was not allowed to do.

"But you must remember, mommie," the little girl said, "you were then and I am now."

Parents do not bridge that gap by being determinately "with it." Each generation must be itself. Age trying to behave like youth is worse than youth aping age. We must be ourselves.

From the

There is, so far as the so-called generation gap is concerned, the gap produced by the whole concept of authority. No one likes the feeling of being subject to authority. There was a time when a child had to obey, and if he asked why, he was told by the parent: "Because I said so."

Nothing but trouble can emerge from an attitude like that. There must always be sympathy, there must always be a genuine attempt to understand the other point of view, and there must always be communication. A person is much more likely to obey if he knows the reason why he is being asked to do a thing.

The parent who is a dictator is simply insulting his child's intelligence and personality by demanding a blind and unreasoning obedience. The parent who is a guide and a counsellor in the business of life is at least treating the child as a person — and that is the first essential. If a parent is to be a friend to his child, there must be communication.

The tragedy of modern family life is that so very often parents and children drift so far apart from each other that in the end they cannot even make conversation. They have nothing to say to each other. This is the situation which must not arise; and that it should not arise is the responsibility of the parent.

Happy is the child whose parents are not only his parents, but also his friends.

Something to consider—

It's unwise to pay too much... but it's worse to pay too little.

When you pay too much, you lose a little money... that is all.

When you pay too little, you sometimes lose everything, because the thing you bought was incapable of doing the thing it was bought to do.

The common law of business balance prohibits paying a little and getting a lot—it can't be done.

If you deal with the lowest bidder, it is well to add something for the risk you run.

And if you do that, you will have enough to pay for something better.

Inquiry to follow bar brawl

By Susan Moscicki
A preliminary inquiry has been set for Oct. 30 and 31 for Garry Mackinaw of Buck Lake, pertaining to his involvement in a bar-room brawl in the Winfield Hotel recently.

Mackinaw entered not guilty pleas in Breton Provincial Court July 12, to one count of possession of a weapon dangerous to the public peace, two counts of assault, four counts of assault with a weapon and four counts of aggravated assault.

According to Breton RCMP Cst. Shamber, two other men from Buck Lake, Dean Mackinaw, 24, and Curtis Mackinaw, 21, face related charges.

Shamber said there was an altercation between patrons (mostly from the Winfield, Buck Lake and Breton areas) which resulted in several injuries, for which three people were admitted to hospital and several others treated as outpatients.

The investigation is continuing, and police expect more charges will be laid.

Winfield Hotel manager Ed Piesmany said the brawl broke out "for no reason at all — just something over the pool table".

"I've been in the business 15 years and I've never seen anything this bad. I sat around in a daze for about 24 hours."

Piesmany said a good friend of his was severely beaten. "One guy was shoving a jack-all at his back, one hitting him with a baseball bat, and one with a Man dies in three vehicle pile-up

One man is dead and two people injured following a three vehicle collision on Highway 22, nine kilometres south of Entwistle, last Thursday.

Wendell Glen Ford, 51, of Entwistle, died in hospital as a result of injuries sustained in the accident and his wife Kathleen is being treated for minor injuries in Drayton Valley Health Complex.

Conrad Topstad, 67, of Drayton Valley, was the sole occupant of his vehicle which was struck from behind by the Ford vehicle. He was treated in hospital and released. None of the occupants of the third vehicle were injured.

Evansburg RCMP, investigating the incident, say charges under the Highway Traffic Act are pending.

No room for renters say real estate agents

By Sue Kenyon

Drayton Valley is experiencing a rental boom and local real estate agents say it is next to impossible to find apartments.

Demand far exceeds supply as far as rental units go, and one agent feels there is no real hope the situation will change.

Rod Schultz, manager of Venture Realty, blames the situation on the federal government for cutting tax incentives.

"Years ago there were tax incentives for developers. Since the government cut them, it has affected development all over the country," Schultz says. Only when rents justify costs can developers afford to keep building.

"When you can collect $600 a month on a two-bedroom apartment, it pays to keep the supply up," he says.

Locally, the only way he can see the town of Drayton Valley encouraging new development is if they drop all off-site levies.

Anita Layden, manager of Nichols Property Management agrees with Schultz in as much as rental units are impossible to find.

"There is nothing to rent, there are no vacancies at all," she says.

Layden says she would love to be able to offer all the people looking for rental units a home.

"When a rental property comes available, I can rent it six times over."

She says, though, the situation is not a new one.

"It has always been like this and it is just as difficult to find places in Edson and Hinton," she says.

Evelyn Johnson of Johnson's Realty says her building is always full.

"It is kept clean and neat and people are impressed, so I think that is one reason why I don't have problems keeping people."

She says just recently five tenants moved out and were replaced immediately with five new renters.

Johnson believes though the rental situation isn't too bad. She says it usually takes people two weeks but they usually find something.

"You just have to keep looking," she says.

Bikers may soon be off the road

By Paul Cudla

Drayton Valley motorists who regularly curse bikers for infringing upon their road space, will eventually receive relief in the form of a bike path.

A proposal is in the works for building a bike path/walkway which would inevitably trail through the entire town of Drayton Valley.

A bike path is currently in existence around the Northview Pond.

PAUL NIELSEN

"Since we put that bike path/walkway in, we've seen a tremendous amount of use," recreation director Paul Nielsen says.

A consulting firm is setting up a bike path plan which will attempt to connect the path through all major centres in Drayton Valley.

"Once the plan is done we're going to go to the public for some reaction."

Nielsen adds he feels the bike path, in its entirety, is a 10-year project.

"Passive facilities are relatively inexpensive to develop and they're something anybody can use."

Nielsen added the bike path will not only be a valuable recreational facility but it will also be a factor in transportation.

"Facility-wise, we're in good shape; we have to start looking more at outdoor recreation. The way leisure is going is towards more passive recreation."

The bike path has received strong backing from town council.

Local News Briefs

Town council has decided to transfer $6,836 from the swimming pool trust savings account to the pool capital account.

Funds in the account originally came from local donations during the construction of the indoor pool.

The MD expects new signs for Willey West campground will arrive by the end of the month.

Playground equipment for the Eldorado school is on order while similar changes to the playground at St. Anthony's school are still in the planning stages.

The MD is looking at experimenting with a new road surface—much like an oil base, for the hill into the Willey West campground.

Mobil Oil has forwarded a cheque for $12,000 to the MD as their contribution to the construction of the Willey West road.

And, the oil company has also agreed to carry out any regular maintenance on the road during the off-season.

The MD has awarded their fuel tender from July 1 to June of 1990 to the UFA.

Range Road 80 between Secondary 620 and 50th Ave. has been added to the MD's dust control route. There will be no charge.

Town council is expected to award the contract for their sewer plant expansion at Thursday's meeting. Six bids were received.

The MD has decided not to get financially involved in the town's mosquito control program.

The MD has announced a major lighting project.

This will see 25 street lights erected along the Poplar Ridge road and at the Lodgepole (on Highway 620) and Cynthia intersections.

$60,000 bill for Breton battery blaze

By Sue Kenyon and Susan Mosicki

A fire which destroyed a Canadian Occidental battery near Breton will cost approximately $60,000.

Blaine Seby, district manager of the company says the loss of tanks will cost the company about $25,000, but including firefighting, oil clean up, the purchase of new tanks and equipment, the total bill will be about $60,000.

The first fire call went into Breton fire department at about 10:30 p.m. according to dispatcher Jim Saunders. Firemen stayed at the scene until 3 a.m.

Three fire departments were called out: Breton, Drayton Valley and Canadian Firemaster oilfield.

Canadian Occidental will replace the tanks with temporary ones as the company was in the process of converting the battery into a satellite facility.

"Six months from now, those tanks would never have been there," Seby says.

The company is not ready to make the changeover so temporary tanks will take the place of those damaged by the fire.

The fire which seems to have been caused by lightning, could have been worse than it was for various reasons, according to Seby.

"The first reason was because of the quick reporting of the resident across the road who saw it; the second was the containment of burning liquid by earth dykes surrounding the tank and the third was the quick response of Canadian Occidental and the Breton fire department who were among those first on the scene.

Seby says it was the combined effort of all three fire departments coordinated by Drayton's fire chief, Sheldon Fuson which eventually smothered the fire.

Batteries have been hit by lightning in past years but not many of the strikes have caused so much damage according to Seby.

The ERCB that was also on Lightning appears to have been the cause of the Canadian Occidental battery fire.

the scene has not completed its investigation, Jim Reid of the ERCB says.

Breton RCMP say there were no injuries and they have ruled out any suspicious cause.

Fire chief Al Smith of the Breton and Rural Fire Protection Association, was pleased with the cooperation between fire departments.

"We've never been in a situation where we worked with Drayton Valley before.

It was a good experience to work beside the Drayton Valley fire department who are better trained than we are," Smith says.

Fuson says it took firemen a half-hour to put out the fire engulfing the tanks. The Drayton firemen were on the scene for three hours.

Many don't like them, but detectors are legal

By Susan Mosicki

Although there is no law against owning and installing radar detectors in a vehicle, opinions differ regarding their use.

Police have no real problem with radar detectors, according to RCMP Sgt. Don Welke of K Division in Edmonton.

In fact, he said, there is even a positive side. "Some people, I've been told, use them as a constant reminder the police are around."

There are, however, statistics that show a rise in drivers cited for speeding by air patrol in the 151-kph category increasing each year since 1986/87.

Welke said 408 were clocked at 151 kph plus in 1986/87, representing five per cent of all people ticketed in aircraft operation during the year.

In 1987/88, this figure increased to 468, representing 5.5 per cent, and in 88/89 rose to 562, or 5.9 per cent of all people ticketed.

Regarding the "slight trend in increase in speeds," said Welke, "we will continue to monitor them."

"...allowing radar detectors is like giving somebody a beeper to go shoplifting..."

If increases can be attributed to the use or abuse of radar detectors, Welke said, "We will bring it to the attention of the people who make the laws."

In patrol cars, he explained, there is a standby mode on the radar sets which basically blocks the signal until a speeding vehicle is in close range, and then the policeman can lock in the speed. In this manner, the officer in a patrol car can still catch a speeder with or without a radar detector.

Anne Hutchinson, driving instructor for Spruce Grove Driving School, said it is a common known fact that speeding causes accidents.

"Basically, it's (allowing radar detectors) sort of like giving somebody a beeper to go shoplifting. Then it could go off every time anyone was looking," she said.

"My own opinion is, I don't like them because people go faster and with speed you've got increased chances of accidents," said Cpl. Dave Caporale of the Drayton Valley RCMP detachment.

"People are relying on them to beat the radar and are going at speeds they wouldn't go without the radar detector."

Louise Bremness, senior information officer at the Insurance Bureau of Canada in Edmonton, said the IBC hasn't taken any official stand on radar detectors.

She did say, however, "In the event of an accident if you are speeding, then the chances are greater for frequency of injury and property damage."

"I find that without having one, I'm more conscious of my rate of speed," she said.

piece of pipe. We got ambushed. There were about 20 altogether."

"He's walking now, but he's pretty stiff and sore,"

Fyessmany said of his friend. "He's pretty tough—he took a lot of pounding."

"I was pretty scared," he admitted. "I don't know what got into those guys."

Third dryer coming

A third dryer at the Pelican Spruce Mills oriented standboard plant will not be ready for some time according to Bob Olson.

Olson expects construction to begin near the end of August. It is not expected to be in full swing until sometime next April.

The $3.5 million will cover the cost of the building and dryer.

Breton firehall opens

Five years in the planning stages, the Breton and Rural Fire Protection Association new fire hall project finally culminated last Friday with a grand opening celebration.

The new building provides Breton firefighters with approximately 1,700 square feet of extra space.

Breton and Rural Fire Protection Association, the village of Breton, and the MD Brazeau funded the $52,000 project.

Fire chief Al Smith couldn't say enough about the new hall. "It puts all our equipment together in one place, adds to the morale of the firefighters, provides more room for instruction in firefighting."

The old fire hall was only about 700 square feet, compared to 2,400 in the new one.

Smith said the fire trucks (two pumper units and one tank truck) could not all be housed in the same building in the old hall. They now sit side by side in the new one, with room to spare for coat racks, an office desk, etc.

"Compared to what we had (he and the other dozen or so volunteer firefighters), we feel pretty good about it," he said.

Bus assoc. to be debt-free

The Drayton Valley Community Bus Association would like to get out of debt.

In an effort to do this, the association's board of directors has made some changes.

The manager's position has been dropped and there's a slight increase in user costs.

Bookings for the community bus are now being accepted at D.V. Answering Service on a 24-hour basis.

And, due to fuel increases, the cost per mile has increased by 10 cents to $1.10.

The out-of-province rate is $1.25 per mile.

There's also a driver rate. Information on this is available upon bookings.

Association president John Mulligan says the association still owes $31,000. Originally, the association was looking at an outstanding debt of $45,000 but they've been able to reduce that in the past 18 months.

The bus association receives $1,500 yearly from the Kinsmen, Lions, Legion and Elks to assist with maintenance.

Their fleet includes two buses and a van.

"We're not in it for the profit. We want to ease the deficit," Mulligan says.

One of the tasks facing the board now, is to compile a list of drivers. Mulligan says they are under strict supervision on this from Motor Transport. All drivers have to be approved by the executive.

Oilfield worker injured

An oilfield worker spent an undisclosed amount of time pinned between a vehicle and a piece of oilfield equipment approximately one-half mile from Lindale recently.

The unidentified worker was taken to hospital, but injuries were not life-threatening.

The vehicle was owned by Nicorette Trucking Ltd. of Drayton Valley.

No other details were available. Police are still investigating.

Several members of the Breton Fire Department proudly stand in their new fire hall.

Opinions

Favorite pastime can be enjoyed without leaving the area

Golfers are in seventh heaven this season. The Drayton Valley club added a second nine last year, opening the door to accommodate more golfers.

It's a first-class facility and it's certainly pleasing to see the fairways busy.

If you're not a golfer, you might want to have lunch or supper upstairs in the clubhouse.

Just down the road at Lindale, the Bucars — Stan, Doug and Brian, have done incredible things with that nine-hole course, appropriately known now as Birchwood Village Greens.

Besides the very challenging course, the 640-acre site includes a new $750,000 clubhouse, several hundred resort lots and a campground.

A little further down the road, at Breton, golfers will find a much improved course. Some of the fairways have been altered this past year, which makes it just a little more challenging.

If you're a long-ball hitter, the 18-hole layout at Fairways West, on Highway 22 near Alder Flats, will provide you with lots of open spaces.

Besides the excellent course, the owners have added a nine-room hotel/motel unit which is already proving to be very popular. And their campgrounds always seem to be busy.

Their restaurant is also a big hit with everyone in the Alder Flats area.

It's obvious from all the improvements, that golfers don't have to leave the area to enjoy their favorite pastime.

Em-T Town

Couple of bucks okay...but $4 too much to pay

Many of us have taken family and friends to Em-T Town near Alder Flats.

Until recently, all that was required was a token contribution.

However, that has all changed.

During a Monday, July 3 trip to the western town, we were asked to shell out $4 for adults and $2.50 for children. Families only have to pay $12.

However, I'm of the opinion, the asking price for adults is too much. I might agree to a couple of bucks, but certainly not four.

It will be interesting to see how this new rate structure affects traffic.

By the way, Len Mohr has sold Em-T Town.

Frankly Speaking

By Frank Ryan

A lot of money has been spent on improvements to Willey West campground.

But it seems all the funds spent on the main road was almost a total waste.

Recent rains have taken their toll on the steep hill into the site.

Instead of pouring more bucks into the road, Alberta Transportation and the MD should either look at paving the existing road or building another route to the campground.

We've been getting a lot of requests lately to print colored pictures.

Unfortunately, most of them are not suitable for our publication.

The background either goes black or it's impossible to see the faces. As a result, we haven't been using them.

If possible, please bring in the colored negatives.

Local post office loses cans but not the garbage

Newsroom Comment

By Susan Mosicki

The post office in Drayton Valley appears to have had a case of the 'grubbers' lately.

For several days, patrons entering the box lobby found counters heaped with flyers, 'junk mail', etc., and the floor scattered with the same.

It appears that garbage cans were removed from the lobby and rather than take the junk mail home, it was left on the counters, and eventually some of it fell on the floor.

Imagine the reaction a tourist might have if he/she walked into the post office to purchase stamps and saw that mess. I don't think it would leave them with a very good impression.

Flyers were heaped on the counters.

I questioned why the garbage cans had been removed and was told by an employee that Canada Post had removed them. However, postmaster LeRoy Robinson denied this and said the cans went missing after renovations in the lobby and were recovered from the storage room where Robinson feels they were left by the men doing renovations.

'We feel that's what happened,' he said.

Regardless of why the cans were not in the lobby, I personally am glad to see them back.

Investigation into accident continues

Police are continuing to investigate a recent injury accident on Highway 39 near Carnwood.

Janice Williamson, 41, of Carnwood, and Darla Trask, 17, of Calgary, were taken to hospital after the truck they were in was struck from behind. According to Breton RCMP, both women appear to have suffered neck injuries.

The driver of the other vehicle was Robert Allison of Warburg.

Approval for expansion expected soon

Full approval from the ERCB is expected this month for Amoco Canada's major expansion at their West Pembina plant.

The plant is located approximately 100 kilometres southwest of Drayton Valley.

On-site engineering work is underway and tender bids are being prepared.

The expansion, scheduled for completion in 1991 is being undertaken by D.M. Wolcott and Associates of Calgary. Amoco Canada is the contract operator at the plant.

Once the expansion is completed the West Pembina plant will be able to handle 95 million cubic feet of gas per day compared to 60 million at the present time. And the expansion will allow for 450 tonnes of sulphur per day compared to 300 tonnes at the present time.

Over budget, but MD will get trucks

Despite coming in over budget the MD has decided to proceed with the purchase of two tandem trucks.

Quinl was informed last Wednesday the total cost of the two Ford trucks which includes special equipment is $221,077. This is $39,000 over budget.

One truck will include a tank, sander and plow while Features on the other unit include a box, sander and plow.

Between 100 and 150 men are expected to work on the project at the peak of construction. Living quarters will be provided on site for the crews.

MD manager John Erickson says half the funds will come out of equipment reserve and the other half from tax levy.

The trucks are being purchased from a dealership in Wetaskiwin.

Brazeau MD feels new caretaker is incredible

The new caretaker at Willey West campground is doing an incredible job, according to Terry Fleming at the MD Brazeau.

Talking to Jim Roos, though, the story is a little more modest. "I've done what I felt needed to be done. I'm just cleaning everything up."

Roos spent a lot of time camping in the past and says he's always wanted to do what he is doing now. "I just got lucky and got in here."

Jim Roos

Some attractions he has added to the campground include horseshoe pits, sand pits for children and he is currently making hiking trails through the bush.

"I'm trying to set it up like a park should be set up," he says.

Roos says he hasn't had any trouble with campers in the park, and he attributes it to his MD hat and the sign on the side of his truck. "They see those and quiet down."

His contract to care for the 36 campsites and group area runs from May until September, and Roos hopes he will do this again next year. "The MD are a nice bunch of people to work for."

Jim has 'tamed' one of the park squirrels to eat out his hand.

MD upset over changes to recreational grants

The MD plans to let the minister of Recreation and Parks know they are unhappy with the mid-season changes to the Community Recreation and Cultural (CRC) grant program.

"It's after the fact. It's affecting recreation in the area," Reeve Henry Rondeau stated.

Councillor Bob Booth also expressed his frustrations. "What frustrates me the most is the timing. Some groups already have their grants. That irks me to no end," Booth stated.

"It also puts us in a most difficult position," he added. "The changes to the CRC funding came when most municipalities were six months into their budgets. In some areas, projects funded by CRC money had already started."

Olsen wants action on walkways

Councillor Howard Olsen wants some action on the town's proposed walkway.

"I'd like to see some action now," he told a recent council meeting.

"It's time we acted. The community needs it," he added.

Council has directed administration to start planning and developing the walkway around town.

Manny Deol, the town manager, says consultants

Howard Olsen

some plans by the end of August.

A concept plan and costs could be known as early as the end of July.

The budget only allows for planning this year, according to Deol.

Councillor Charlie Miner expressed disappointment that budgeting doesn't allow more. "I had hoped to see some physical action this year," he told council.

The two 4-H members have plenty in common. Heather Isenor, left is visiting Molly Davis, right.

Young 4-H friends meet again

By Sue Kenyon

Have you ever wondered what the difference was between Alberta and Nova Scotia?

It's the twisting roads which Alberta lacks.

Heather Isenor, 17, is staying with the Davies family of Violet Grove for the next two weeks. She is on a 4-H exchange visit from her home in Nova Scotia.

It's the lack of trees and our straight roads which she finds the most different between here and her home.

Isenor lives in a small village, Hans, which boasts a population of approximately 100. She says she enjoys living there as Halifax is only 30 minutes away.

This is not her first visit away from home, nor is it the first time for meeting Molly Davis, daughter of Dan and Coleen.

Molly and Heather met last year when Davis was a 4-H exchange student and stayed with Heather and her family. Since she has arrived July 5, Heather has been to Banff, the Calgary Stampede, Lake Louise and the Davies went on a shopping spree to West Edmonton Mall.

Heather has one more year of school back home and then plans to attend Dalhousie University and study dental hygiene.

Problem dandelions not caterpillars

Recreation director Paul Nielsen will be looking for fewer and fewer caterpillars next year.

That's his feeling after the town's caterpillar spraying program this year.

"There wasn't much of a problem," he said last week.

Compared to the problem two years ago, Nielsen says there was nothing this year.

While that has been the situation in town, Nielsen says he's seen plenty of evidence of caterpillars north of town and near Medicine Lake.

One of the reasons for the decrease according to the recreation director, is the amount of spraying.

"People are getting more concerned about the environment," he added.

While the town seems to have the caterpillar problem under control, Nielsen admits there is a problem with dandelions.

"It's a big problem in town," he says.

Next year it's Nielsen's intention to raise public awareness about dandelion spraying, much like the caterpillar program.

Customers won't see any change

Parkland Industries' recent purchase of 35 Red Rooster gas outlets will only have minor effects in Drayton Valley. Ann Schmidt at the Red Rooster, located on the south side of town, says customers won't see any change. The only internal change will see the gas report and money directed into a different account.

Murray Galavan, owner/manager of the Northend Red Rooster says the purchase will not, in any way, affect his business.

Majority of booths booked

Seventy-one booths have been booked for the chamber's annual trade fair Sept. 8-10.

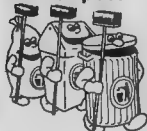

Only 100 booths are available for the trade fair to be held in the Drayton Sports Centre.

While the confirmation of booths is progressing, one concern the chamber has is the completion of the lobby at the new curling rink.

It's the chamber's intention to hold their entertainment in the lobby of the adjoining curling rink that is presently under construction.

If it is not ready, the chamber will have to investigate other alternatives.

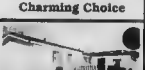

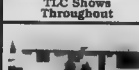

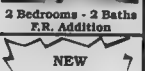

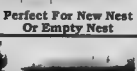

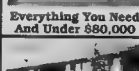

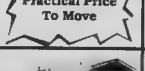

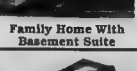

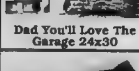

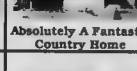

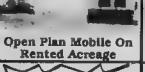

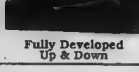

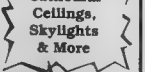

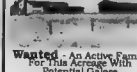

Please put them in their place

Evansburg token key winner 'beside herself' with excitement

Winner of last week's token key in the chamber of commerce second annual car give-away, Kate Young, said she'll be "beside herself" if she wins a car.

Young, from Evansburg, said she was in bed sleeping when a chamber representative phoned her with the good news.

"Even to think that my name was drawn," she said excitedly. "I never won anything before except the odd bingo."

During the first week of the shopping promotion, Young said she filled out several entry forms, but last week she said she only entered three times.

"It was a complete surprise," she said of the token key. Young knows last year's car winner (also from Evansburg) "really well" and is hoping history will repeat itself and Evansburg will be the home of this year's lucky winner.

She said she is not going to stop entering the draws. "I'll keep entering, although they say lightning never strikes twice in the same place."

Young will be thinking positive in the next two months prior to the draw in mid-September.

"I should say, I'm going to win it, I know I am."

New bylaw in the works for parks

The MD is working on a new parks bylaw.

The purpose of the bylaw, that received first reading at last Wednesday's meeting, is for control and operation.

Parks to be affected by the bylaw include Willey West, Easyford, Lodgepole and Modeste.

Highlights of the bylaw include:

- * No person shall interfere with the rights of others. Quiet time is designated between 11 p.m. and 7 a.m.

- * Liquor may be consumed with food in any of the parks between the hours of 10 a.m. and 10 p.m. or such hours as designated by the council or MD manager.

- * Animals will not be allowed in the parks unless caged or restricted by a leash, chain or other device that is not greater than two metres long.

- * Horses will not be permitted into the parks, other than into areas established for equestrian use or, unless a special permit has been issued.

- * Off-highway vehicles or any other specialized means of conveyance, whether motor driven or propelled by human power will not be allowed except on trails or an area designated for this. This does not apply to bicycles.

- * A charge of $6 per night per individual campsite will be levied.

- * No person shall camp overnight in a park, unless it is otherwise authorized.

- * And, no person shall camp for more than 16 consecutive days in the same campground without written permission.

Terry Fleming, supervisor of land services; Mike Anderson, special constable; Alberta Fish and Wildlife and the RCMP were involved in drafting up the bylaw.

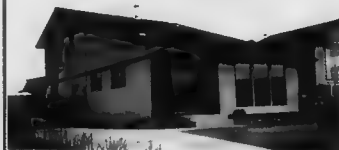

Olson to muffle noise

Bolstad Engineering of Edmonton should have some findings for the Pelican steering committee sometime this week, Bob Olson of Pelican Spruce Mills says.

The engineering group has been surveying the noise coming from the mill, taking special care to determine what can be used in lieu of a muffler for the fan system.

"There is one fan which is loud that had a muffler attached. It's the same thing you do to a car. Bolstad will have to come up with something that will work," Olson said. He said the problem is not inside the mill; the noise is emitted out of the mill and dispersed through the town. He would like something designed that would cut down that noise.

More elimination playoffs for Bantam and Mosquito teams

By Susan Mosciicki
Bantam AA and Mosquito AA provincial play-offs that were held in Drayton Valley last weekend will not be the end for either of the local teams.

Drayton Valley Andex Oilers (bantam AA) did reasonably well, winning one game and losing two out of three games.

The Brandette mosquitoes didn't fare as well, winning only one out of four games.

Both teams will continue in another round of play-off elimination games in the next week.

The Oilers won 13-6 against Stony Plain, lost a close 2-1 game to Sherwood Park after two extra innings and lost 4-1 against Olds.

The winning pitcher, Tony Kopp, had 10 strike-outs, and only gave up three walks, according to tournament director Sheila Thompson. "He pitched a real nice game."

"The team played the best ball this weekend and it's unfortunate they came away with two losses which were close," she said.

"When the kids play that well, we've really got to congratulate them."

Brandette won the first game of the weekend 11-8 against Sherwood Park, and lost against Lacombe, 6-3; Sherwood Park, 16-4; and Lacombe, 13-2.

"Nine out of 11 (on the team) are all first year kids. It's a pretty young team that we have," said coach Wade Patten. "I thought the kids played really well."

Great catch.

A little humor.

What an arm!

Tricky, tricky: Get that ball over here, please.

Neptunes place second during St. Albert meet

The Drayton Valley Neptune Swim Club took a relatively small contingent of swimmers to a meet in St. Albert July 16 but still managed to finish second.

St. Albert won the meet they were hosting with an aggregate total of 507. The Neptune club finished second with 293.

"We did pretty good. Some of the kids had good days and improved on their times."

"They're getting into good condition and dropping time," Loren Regnier, head coach, says.

St. Albert remain as the Neptune club's main nemesis.

"We kind of figured they would be. They have a good club. They're club is roughly the same size as ours but they are a bit more balanced," Regnier says.

The Neptune Club took a team of 47 swimmers to St. Albert, whereas St. Albert had about 80.

Individual aggregate medal winners for the Neptune club were: girls 8 and under, Tara Brigley (silver); boys 9 and 10, Tim Regnier (gold); girls 15 and 16, Georgienne Rurka (bronze).

"It kind of stopped at 13 and 14 for us. If we had a couple more swimmers in the older groups we would have done a lot better."

"There is always kids on holidays. You never have all your team until the regionals," Regnier says.

Local golfer competes will in BC

Corina Kelepouris of Drayton Valley remains active on the ladies junior golf circuit as she competed in two weekend tournaments in B.C., finishing third and fifth.

In the Junior Third-Centennial tournament in Kelowna, Kelepouris finished third as she shot a round of 82. She finished two shots back of the winner.

Kelepouris also played in the B.C. Provincial tournament in Vernon where she shot rounds of 88, 85, and 84. Her three round total of 257 placed her fifth in the tournament which had over 50 golfers from B.C. and Alberta.

"I did hit the ball straight, but not with much distance. I wasn't hitting the ball really good and I didn't feel very good," Kelepouris says.

Kelepouris wasn't overly pleased with any facet of her game but still was slightly satisfied about finishing fifth in the B.C. Provincials.

"The course (Vernon) wasn't that hard, if you were hitting the ball well, which I wasn't, you could get some low scores," Kelepouris says.

Kelepouris's next tournament will be July 19-20 in Lacombe where she will be playing in the Alberta provincials.

Her goal for the remainder of the summer is to lower her handicap from 10 to six.

No playoffs this year

For the first time in nine years there will be no playoffs in the Evergreen Men's Fastball League.

The playoff tournament, scheduled two weeks ago was rained out.

League president Wayne Bourneur says a combination of holidays and tournaments makes it impossible to run the playoffs now.

MD may assist ski team

By Frank Ryan

The MD is giving serious consideration to a funding request from the Brazeau ski team.

Lyn Jeesting appeared before the MD council last Wednesday, requesting a $5,000 contribution to assist with a new ski program.

The MD was told that with the donation their logo would be included on a number of equipment items.

However, several council members have some thoughts about granting the request.

Bob Booth was one of those.

"Now you have a ski team. What's next?" he asked.

Booth indicated that if the MD okayed the request for funding, they could have 50 other groups banging on their door for the same thing. "We'll be opening the gate," Councillor Neil Norton added.

"We have to be very careful," Booth explained.

Reeve Henry Rondeau suggested the MD could explain to the group that it was a one-time donation.

"How big can it mushroom? How fast?" Norton wanted to know.

Jeff Wardlow, director of administration, informed council the skiers had missed the CRC deadline by a week.

Instead of an outright grant, Booth said he liked the CRC approach better.

"We have to try and be fair to everyone," he stated.

Some members of the board were concerned as to how their logo would fit into the ski team's plans, if the donation wasn't what they asked for.

As a result, the request was tabled.

At the present time 85 skiers, between the ages of five and 18, have signed up for the program. There's room in the first-year program for 100.

The MD was presented with a $37,890 budget for the Brazeau ski team.

Some of the items included in the budget was $6,000 for coaches training, $3,000 for video equipment and $1,000 for a computer computation system.

Skiers will be required to pay a $125 registration fee and another $65 for insurance.

While the program may be new in the Drayton Valley area, a number of local skiers have been attending Nancy Greene Ski League programs in Jasper, Lake Eden and Rabbit Hill.

Hockey coach will stay

Despite rumors there's no change in the coach for the junior hockey team.

While Randy Rook is not working in town any longer, club president Bill Ballas says he will still be the club's head coach. Rook will be travelling here for practices and games from his home in Spruce Grove.

The club has also announced that Associated Ambulance will handle their trainer duties.

However, the search is still on for a manager.

Anyone interested in filling this position is asked to call Ballas at 542-2340 or 542-7858.

In preparation for the 1989-90 Heritage Junior B hockey league, club officials are attempting to arrange ice for a three-day camp in mid-September.

Ice in the Drayton Sports Centre won't be started until Sept. 18, following the annual trade fair.

Two youths make all-star

Joey Hutzal and Corey Dusterhoft, both from Drayton Valley, have made Alberta's elite youth all-star baseball team.

Team Alberta will be competing in the first annual National Selects tournament which will feature teams from each province. The youth teams consist of players who are 16, 17, and 18 years old.

The Alberta team left for Brandon, Manitoba July 12. Hutzal and Dusterhoft have been playing in a tournament in Calgary from July 3-8 to try out for the Alberta squad.

Twenty-one players went to Calgary to try out for the team. Initially the all-star team was looking at about 400 players from all over Alberta.

Hutzal was chosen as one of the MVPs of the Calgary tournament; he plays shortstop, second base and catcher. Dusterhoft made the team as a pitcher.

The national tournament for youths is being sponsored by the Montreal Expos.

Diamonds are forever

Mike Dancy, a student employed for the summer by the Town of Drayton Valley recreation department, is using this heavy piece of machinery to pack the infield of diamond #4 at West Valley Park. After this summer, he'll probably hope that diamonds really are forever.

MD of Brazeau finalizes 27 internal committees

The MD of Brazeau has finalized its committees.

Jim Coombes sits on 17 different committees. He is followed by deputy reeve Bob Booth with 16 portfolios, Reeve Henry Rondeau, 14 with both Neil Norton and Wes Tweedle sitting on eight committees each.

Following is a list of the committees and which council members to call if you have a problem.

Agricultural services board - Norton and Tweedle, municipal planning

HATS OFF TO OUR HEROES

Instead of sitting at home and watching television all the time, Chris Ollson thought it would be a good idea to join the fire department and help people in his community.

In his month-and-a-half of service, Ollson has been out on two calls and feels a sense of satisfaction every time he goes out.

He says he didn't do anything but direct traffic and ask a lot of questions, but "all the guys here really helped me out. Being a rookie, they answered all my questions."

He says he has learned a lot since he joined. He has been involved in training to roll up hoses properly, work with breathing apparatus, and various other things. Ollson says he needs to know in order to perform his duties.

St. Pauli council concerned over RCMP dress code

St. Paul town council recently wrote a letter to Drayton Valley council expressing their concern over the Solicitor General Department's decision to alter the RCMP dress code. They requested if local council concurred, that a resolution be passed to that effect and sent to the local member of parliament and the solicitor general.

Councillor Miner suggested the letter be accepted as information, but that he was not prepared to act on taking council into the matter.

Charges are pending

Charges are pending results of an investigation into a three-vehicle accident six miles west on Elk River Road last week.

No injuries were sustained when an eastbound water truck lost control on ice and hit a parked Alberta Transportation vehicle and bounced into a parked grader.

RCMP Const. Grant MacDonald said he believes the Alberta Transportation truck is a write-off. He also said the other two vehicles were considerably damaged.

Mechanic rates expected to rise 5-10 per cent

Shopping around may be profitable this year if you need repairs done to your vehicle. Labor rates in local garages range from about $38 to $48 per hour.

All owners or managers agree the cost of overhead, equipment and training of mechanics contribute to the rate per hour and say it is difficult to keep good mechanics if they are not paid a competitive rate.

One manager said his mechanics take two-week courses every three to six months to update their training.

Most local garages said they do not offer discounts to large companies that bring in several vehicles throughout the year because they feel it would be discriminating against the individual.

Many expect an increase of five to 10 per cent, or have just recently hiked the rates.

One of the managers contacted said a service department was not a money making business — it is more of a customer service. They certainly aren't profit centres, he said.

Shopping around may save you money to repair your vehicle but remember, money isn't everything — make sure you are also getting a good mechanic and quality work.

Courtesy and safe driving will pay off

This week is National Safe Driving Week and the Canada Safety Council is recommending several ways to make your driving safer.

The theme of this year's campaign is 'Courtesy is...'

Courtesy is keeping a safe distance between your vehicle and others on the road. Leaving room between vehicles allows more time to react to the unexpected.

Signal your intentions well in advance, and be prepared for the unexpected at all times.

Don't react angrily to other drivers. Your reaction may cause a greater hazard than the initial action that provoked your wrath.

Obey traffic laws. Each driver who breaks a law increases the risk for others on the road.

Keep your car and windows clean at all times and drive with lights on even during daylight hours.

Keep your hands on the wheel and eyes on the road. Don't try to eat, read, shave or put make-up on while driving.

Don't drink and drive. If you're going to indulge have a designated driver or call a taxi.

Yield the right of way to pedestrians.

Never use your horn because you are annoyed with another driver. Use it for its intended purpose — to warn other drivers of a hazard or to get their attention if the need arises.

Drive safely. Courtesy is...going to pay off.

Hoarding deadline set

Hoarding at Valley Concrete must be removed or brought up to engineering standards by Jan. 1, town councillors said last week.

If not removed or brought up to standards, the mayor said, "We have to move onto the property and do that."

Council was convinced, however, the work would be done and that measure would not be necessary.

Committee bolstered

Four members were appointed to the Pelican Steering committee in a town council meeting last Thursday. Bob Olsen and Percy Champagne from Pelican Spruce Mills and councillors Howard Olsen and Charlie Miner will sit on the committee.

"I want that committee to be very, very strong," said Mayor Tom McGee. "We have a major problem with communication back to the public," he added.

AVPA sour councillors

Councillors Charlie Miner and Howard Olsen were eating sour grapes over the Drayton Valley Airport Vicinity Protection Area (AVPA) regulation last week.

Forwarded to the town by AVPA planner Ross Guffei, it was presented for information in last week's council meeting.

"I can't help but be very despondent in this situation," said Miner. "We end up sitting on the outside of the project."

Olsen appeared to agree. "I don't think we had a lot of information," he said. "But I don't think it would have mattered a hoot anyway."

The AVPA provides development regulations, height limitations, etc. within the boundary area.

Council funding Brazeau

Town council agreed, last week, to advance funds to help the Brazeau Foundation in its first few months of operation.

The Brazeau Foundation will take over where the Meridian Foundation leaves off at the end of the year.

The purpose of the foundation is to provide low-rental accommodation for senior citizens who do not need specialized care for chronic diseases or disabilities.

Housing boom not apparent locally

Housing starts are up by a whopping 35 per cent in Alberta.

According to a Canada Mortgage and Housing spokesman, home builders in this province are riding the crest of strong economic expansion.

However, that boom is not being felt in Drayton Valley according to two home builders contacted by The Western Review.

Les Jones, a partner in GEST Construction says the boom that is apparently sweeping the province is not evident here.

Residential construction down about $1 million from last year.

"It's slower than other winters. There's not as much house construction as other years," he said.

Jones says his company is not building any spec homes like they have in other years.

Despite the off-year, Jones says GEST Construction has enough work to keep them busy this winter.

He says the major concentration of new homes continues to be in the Northview subdivision located in the northeast corner of town.

Rick Nordstrom of Nordal Homes also confirmed the boom was not being felt here.

And, he agreed with Jones, there weren't as many houses under construction as in the past.

A couple of reasons for this, according to Nordstrom, was the fact that house prices had gone up substantially and a lot of the cheaper lots had been sold.

However, he admitted the local new housing market was far from being dead.

"We have enough to keep our crew busy," he admitted.

Building permits supplied by the town also show residential construction is down this year.

During the first 10 months of 1989 residential construction totalled $3,152,700 compared to $4,319,050 for the same period a year ago.

Residential construction last month totalled $244,500 compared to $462,700 for the same month in 1988.

Twin Rivers approves personal safety

By Shaun Polczer

The Twin Rivers school board has approved the implementation of a personal safety program for two Drayton Valley elementary schools: Eldorado and Evergreen.

The program is an attempt to prevent child sexual abuse through education in the schools.

Evergreen school counsellor Judy Gill says the program is meant to educate children so they know when abuse is taking place and it can be reported.

The personal safety program was initiated in Surrey, B.C. in 1980 in the wake of the Clifford Olsen murders.

RCMP originally requested a program for the schools to teach children about the dangers of sexual abuse, and worked closely in developing and implementing the program in Surrey schools.

The result was the Child Abuse Research and Education (CARE) Foundation, which was registered as an official non-profit charity in 1981.

The personal safety program has been steadily spreading into other schools in Canada, and even into schools in the United States.

The main resource of the program is called a CARE kit.

Although the program has only recently been approved by the Twin Rivers school board, Carolyn Schoep, guidance counsellor at Eldorado school, says the personal safety has been taught in Drayton Valley for about four years now.

The biggest advantage to the CARE kits being introduced in the school she says is "more flexibility and more activities" for the teachers to teach children in class.

Judy Gill at Evergreen says she sees a definite need for the personal safety program

Beehive needs more space

The Beehive Workshop needs more space.

As a result of over-crowding the Beehive has approached the municipal planning commission (MPC) to erect a temporary office mobile trailer. The request was tabled, because the individual who made the request was unable to attend the Nov. 20 MPC meeting.

The trailer would be used for programming.

"We're desperately short of space," says executive director Bruce Nichols.

in Drayton Valley.

"We have bicycle safety, farm safety, and street safety, so I think we should have a program to prevent something that is just as potentially dangerous," she said.

Unlike Eldorado, where teachers teach the curriculum, Gill teaches the course, which consists of 14 lessons, to grades 4 and 5 at Evergreen as a health related topic.

She stressed the program is offered through parental consent, and they have the option to withhold their children from taking the program by notifying the school.

At the present time programs are being run out of a small room at the back of the workshop.

In regards to a new building, Nichols says they are still waiting for word on provincial government funding. There's been no word on when, or if, they will be getting any financial assistance.

New recreation board bylaw read

The recreation and culture master plan terms of reference was approved as the 1989 planning document for Parks, Recreation and Culture in Drayton Valley last week.

It will form the guidelines upon which the five-year master plan will be based.

It is not written in stone, said Councillor Alex Salfi. If something is wrong it can be brought back to council for input, he added.

All this will do is give the blessing to go ahead, said town manager Manny Deol.

The new recreation board bylaw was given first reading at a town council meeting last Thursday.

Mayor McGee said the bylaw requires changes and needs to be revised.

The new bylaw is virtually identical to the old with the exception of a few changes identical to give the recreation board more flexibility and to facilitate increased public input.

Two local women are applying for committee memberships to the library board for the next three year terms.

Valerie Tucker and Christina Kreiser are seeking board appointments from Dec. 31, 1989 to Dec. 31, 1992.

Kreiser, if appointed, will be a new member, and Tucker is seeking re-appointment. She has been on the board since 1987 and has been chairperson since January of this year.

Town council approved the purchase of a 1990 LNT 8000 tandem truck for approximately $59,000, in a meeting last week.

The money is already in place, said the mayor.

Councillors also agreed to purchase a two-yard sander for a one-ton truck that is not currently being used during the winter months. The approximate cost will be $5,900.

The 1989 budget had included $70,000 toward the purchase of the tandem truck and council believed both items would fall under the budget.

Knights dubbed champs

For the second straight season the Knights are the regular season champions in the Evergreen men's football league.

They finished with a 15-3 win/loss record.

Close on their heels was Nujack with a 15-4 win/loss record.

Third place went to Buck Lake followed by the Wabamun Whitecaps, Mobil Oil, Wabamun Drifters, Paul Band Generals and Paul Band Mohawks.

The annual playoff tournament was scheduled for last weekend, but was rained out.

Wayne Tournear, the league president, planned to talk to all the teams this week to decide if another day could be found.

Tournear says the biggest problem about re-scheduling the tournament is holidays. "Everyone's scouting all over," he said on the weekend.

At least six of this year's eight teams have already indicated their intention of returning to the league next year. And Alexis has already expressed their interest in joining the league in 1990.

It's a bird, it's a plane...

...no, it's Const. Greg Fedor working out in the Drayton Valley RCMP detachment. Could his uniform still be in a local phone booth?

Town and Twin Rivers schools will share recreation facilities

The Twin Rivers school board and the town of Drayton Valley have approved a joint use agreement dealing with recreation facilities.

"The schools are able to use our facilities at very little or no cost," Paul Nielsen, recreation director, says.

"On the other hand, we have over 60 community groups that use school facilities and gyms."

The joint use agreement between the town and school board historically dates back to 1971.

This latest agreement with the Twin Rivers school board was negotiated in the past eight months. Both sides have approved the agreement and now the joint use proposal needs only to be signed.

The joint use plan simply is a more cost-efficient method for both sides to gain access to each other's facilities.

It allows the schools to use town facilities like the pool and sports centre at little or no cost; in return the town gets use of school facilities like gyms.

Nielsen says groups taking advantage of joint use should respect the agreement when using it.

"Once in a while there are a few incidents (of misuse). If they respect the facilities it helps things," he explains.

Regnier stresses work ethic to swimmers

In appreciation

Featured coach — Loren Regnier

By Paul Cudla

In the seven years Loren Regnier has coached the Neptune Swim Club, he has stressed the work ethic.

"They (the swimmers) have to learn how to work. As the year goes by it's hard to swim every time, every day," Regnier says.

Regnier adds his swimmers usually swim for two hours, four times a week. An average workout will see a Neptune member swim four kms.

"They are the fittest athletes in Drayton Valley. It's hard work and these guys are in good shape," Regnier says.

While Regnier tries to teach a solid work ethic, he finds at the same time, the swimmers learn something about themselves.

"They start getting into a pattern and after a while, they start disciplining themselves."

During workouts, Regnier will leave a lot of the conditioning work up to his assistant coaches, and he will concentrate more on the technical aspects of swimming.

"I get into more of the stroke correction and strokes," Regnier says, adding this allows Neptune swimmers to, "swim longer and harder because they become more efficient with their strokes."

The Neptune club is fresh off a second-place finish in a swim meet it hosted July 8.

The second-place finish may have been slightly disappointing, but the team that beat them July 8 is the only one from the Neptune's division to beat them this year.

And the most important meet, the regionals, is still upcoming, Aug. 19 and 20.

"That's what we train for all year. All the training we do is geared to have them peak at the regionals."

'Even better service'

Venture Realty has taken a major step toward providing faster home sales, more choices for buyers and the availability of one of the most competitive mortgages in the country.

"Bringing our customers the best in national along with local real estate services was the chief reason for joining Royal LePage Associate Broker Network," says Rod Schultz, manager of Venture Realty Inc.

Access to thousands of properties across Canada

Home buyers also benefit from the membership. If they're buying locally or out of the area, Venture will have access to thousands of properties through their own listings as well as those of Royal LePage and all the other network brokers across the country.

Schultz emphasized that the Royal LePage associate broker network was not a franchise situation. Each of their members across the country is a full independent local business. The associate broker network is a referral network where Royal LePage and independent brokers agree to work together in an arrangement that is mutually beneficial to them and their clients.

"For both buyers and sellers, our membership in the Royal LePage associate broker network means even better service, better real estate information and some of the best home marketing and promotion materials in the country will be available," Schultz added.

Home sellers can now have their property exposed to potential buyers all across Canada. That can mean a faster sale at the best price.

"The partnership brings some significant benefits for our clients," Schultz pointed out.

Don't wait to repair the plumbing

Local plumbers have been inundated with calls in recent weeks and they all agree part of the reason is because people wait until the last possible moment to get repairs done.

"They just bring their car in the garage when it breaks down," said owner of H&B Plumbing Ltd., Horst Boehm, indicating it is very much the same with furnaces, etc.

The only difference, according to Boehm, is if furnaces break down in the spring, they are not often repaired because heat is not required during summer months.

"We have a two-week backlog," he said work is done on a priority basis. "If they're without heat we do it first before somebody's dishwasher."

Boehm said another reason for the work overload is there haven't been enough plumbers trained in the last five years. "We have enough work, but not enough manpower."

John Suffron, owner of

John's Heating, Plumbing & Air Condition Service & Repair, said he believes it is "just the time of year. This is always the busiest time of year as a general rule."

He also said his company was running about two to three weeks behind, or possibly more than that.

Brenda Reich, of Evergreen Plumbing agreed with Boehm. "There seems to be a shortage of journeyman plumbers."

She also said they are working on a priority basis and said the heavy workload is routine at this time of year.

"If the heat's out or sewer backed up, you have to do that. You can't say you'll come back in two weeks."

Janzen gets the go-ahead

Construction is expected to start in the spring on a new business development in downtown Drayton Valley.

Irvin Janzen has received approval from the municipal planning commission to build a 10,000-square-foot building on property along 50 Street, between the Towers Medical Centre and Red Rooster.

Letter prompts meeting

A letter to the editor of The Western Review has prompted town council to take a serious look at the turning lane entering Drayton Valley at 50 St. south and Highway 22. Danny Thompson said in his letter the turning lane was not well marked and has the potential of being a very dangerous situation.

He suggested a "right lane must exit" sign and turning arrows should be posted far enough back on the highway that motorists have sufficient time to change lanes.

"Let's do something right," he said. "Let's not wait for a death to occur before something is done."

Town engineer Manjeet Saran wrote a letter to Charles Lendzion, regional director of Alberta Transportation, outlining the problem as presented by Thompson.

Councillor Howard Olsen said Lendzion would be meeting with council soon.

"This is a prime example of what citizen input can do," said Mayor Tom McGee.

Gas plant thefts investigated

The Texaco Cynthia gas plant construction site, located southwest of Cynthia, has experienced several thefts over the past few months.

On Sept. 26 it was noted a large spool of cable was missing from the site. This spool is described as: 1,500 metres of three conductor No. 10 AWG teck cable on a wooden reel. The reel is marked with the number 048 in both white paint and black felt marker. Approximate value: $6,450.

The following missing property was also noted: three half-inch Makita drills, one 12-inch Makita cutoff saw, a variety of orange hand tools and four Makita grinders marked "P.C.L."

These matters are still under investigation by Drayton Valley RCMP. Crimestoppers will pay a cash reward for information leading to the arrest of any of the persons responsible for this offence.

Owning pet a responsibility not to be taken lightly

By Shaun Polczer

It's not the most glamorous job in the world, most would agree.

"Nobody likes the dogcatcher," says Grant Wallbank. It's a thankless job, but somebody has to do it."

In the town of Drayton Valley and the MD of Brazeau, those responsibilities are Doreen Clark and Grant Wallbank, proprietors of Grandee Kennels, located four miles south on Highway 22 heading to Rocky Mountain House.

"We do it for the safety of the animals," says Grant, "this highway out here (22) is the biggest killer of dogs I've ever seen."

The actual pound itself has legally been their backyard for about a year now, and the dog-catching duties were taken over last June.

Doreen makes rounds in town with her pickup truck, and answers to complaints from various parts of the MD.

"People think there is no animal control in the MD," she says, "but that's what we are."

When she comes across a stray, Doreen tries to find the owner by checking for tags before impounding the animal.

This saves a considerable poundage fee and a trip back to the farm.

If the owner can't be found, the animal is taken to her home and put in the pens in the yard.

Technically, the pound keeps the dogs for only three working days before sending them to the vet to be put down, but Doreen says she sometimes makes exceptions to the rule.

"Three days is enough to tell what kind of temperament a dog has. If I think it's a nice dog that somebody will want, we will keep it for more than the three days," she said.

Doreen indicated there had been examples of dogs being held for months before they were adopted.

Finding homes for lost dogs is one of the lesser known, but more important functions of the dog pound.

Grant and Doreen "always want to make sure adopted dogs go to the best possible homes."

"Adopting a dog just because the kids want one is the wrong reason," says Grant, who feels owning this kind of pet is a responsibility that shouldn't be taken lightly.

Doreen agrees, criticizing those who just let their dogs run free.

She doesn't believe in chaining them up, however, preferring a "run," or a pen that gives them enough room to move and exercise.

"I haven't seen a yard or fence a dog couldn't escape yet," says Doreen.

Another misconception she says people commonly have is that their dogs can run free in the country without any worries.

She warns that landowners have the right to shoot dead any dog that strays on their property, further emphasizing the pound is out to protect dogs from this fate.

Don't expect them to go catching cats however.

Grant says the reason there are no animal control regulations regarding cats goes back to a royal decree by Queen Victoria.

It seems England was so infested with rats, Victoria decreed that cats should run free to combat the problem.

Grant says this is the reason municipalities are so reluctant to pass cat control bylaws to this day.

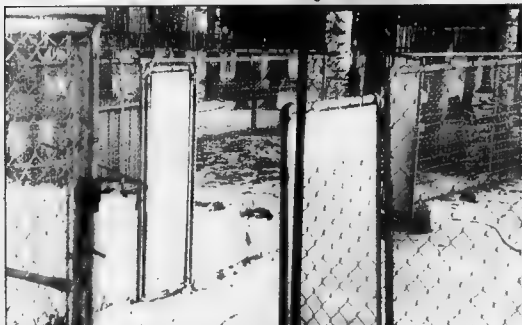

Doreen Clark holds two pound puppies.

Cats are allowed to roam free.

A dog without a home.

The pens or 'runs' as they are known, give the dogs plenty of room to run around and get their exercise.

Pee wees take tournament

Motorists are asked to detour around the corner of 49 Ave. and the street running past the Breton Hotel while groundwork for paving is underway. Paving will start in the spring.

The initial work involves installation of an underground drainage system. Total cost of the project is estimated at $635,700 with Alberta Transportation providing $135,700. The balance of the money will come from adjacent property owners, the village of Breton and an additional special assistance grant from the Alberta government.

Beginning in January regular council meetings will be held the second and fourth Wednesday of the month. Councillor Bob Booth has been appointed to serve on the Breton Library board representing MD Brasseau.

Council will be taking applications for fire chief beginning Jan. 1. The term appointment is for two years.

Breton residents should be receiving cable television by Christmas.

The Warburg Pee Wees travelled to Drayton Valley for a tournament the weekend of Nov. 25 and 26. The team went undefeated the entire tournament. Pee wee forward Jeremy Krukowski was injured in the Saturday morning game but was released from hospital in time to cheer his team on for the Saturday afternoon game. Also sidelined is defenceman Derrick Bieda who is recovering from surgery.

Rocky, Lodgepole now hamlets

Rocky Rapids and Lodgepole were declared to be hamlets by the MD Brazeau in a recent council meeting.

Manager John Eriksson said they were already existing hamlets, but the MD was confirming what the boundaries should be.

As declared hamlets, the two communities are eligible for water and sewer grants and hamlet street assistance.

Press council dismisses complaint

The Alberta Press Council has dismissed a complaint by Muriel Stanley-Venne in respect to a column by Phil Melnychuk that appeared in the Stony Plain Reporter Aug. 9, 1989.

The press council found the column, 'Natives no longer Canada's invisible minority,' was a fair comment, except for the final six words — 'Take a native to lunch today' — which were regrettable and in poor taste.

The press council commended the complainant for her efforts to bring the matter to the attention of the publisher of the Stony Plain Reporter, to find a native freelancer the newspaper could use, and for her letter which was published in the newspaper.

Make farms safer and take a hike

By Bev Brooks
District Home Economist

For the third year the Women of Uniform, together with Alberta Agriculture's farm safety program, are inviting Alberta farm families to take a safety hike around their farm.

They recognize the need for all family members to join in a cooperative effort to make our farms a safer place to live and work. With the help of a farm safety hike guide aimed at preschoolers and their parents, farm families are encouraged to walk around their farm and identify potential safety hazards.

The potential danger areas identified in this year's guide include the home, farm yard, waterwells, barn machinery and dugouts. There is an activity for the children at each area followed by questions and a safety guide tip.

Alberta Agriculture through the farm safety program has been involved in educating rural Albertans to be safety conscious for a number of years. They report farm fatalities decreased by one-third in 1988, the second year in the last three to record a major annual decrease.

There were 12 farm fatalities last year, significantly lower than the 1984-1988 average of 19. Of this, only one person was under the age of 18 (a one-year-old infant). The farm safety program goal: of having a child fatality-free environment in rural Alberta came close to being reached. Just one fatality though is still too much.

Spending some time with the farm safety hike guide may help to reach people with the safety message. The guide can be used by parents, grandparents or anyone who has child visitors to their farm.

Families can also win prizes by participating in the hike. The last page of the guide can be colored and entered to win a variety of farm safety equipment. As well, upon receiving the picture and the completed evaluation questions you will be sent an "I'm a Safety Hiker" button.

The hike guide is available through my office at Alberta Agriculture, 542-5368.

Preparing food for entertaining can be a challenge

By Bev Brooks
District Home Economist
Winter gatherings, Christmas festivities, New Year's parties — occasions to gather with friends for good cheer and good food.

Today, many people are being careful about food choices. They don't want to eat — or be tempted by — foods high in fat and calories. They want to avoid very salty foods, and perhaps get a little fibre.

Eating out, and preparing food for entertaining, can be a challenge. How can we modify party foods to keep in tune with today's nutrition concerns? Linda St. Onge, foods and nutrition specialist, has the following suggestions:

- Fresh Alberta vegetable sticks are always popular and can be served instead of salty, high-fat snacks. For dipping, try blending low-fat cottage cheese with a little lemon juice, yogurt and spices.
- Make potato wedges instead of chips. Cut scrubbed potatoes into small wedges. Brush lightly with canola oil. Sprinkle lightly with grated parmesan, or paprika, or whatever spice you enjoy. Bake on a cookie sheet at 400°F until tender.

An endless array of exciting, nutritious food

- Mix bite-size whole grain cereal squares, reduced-salt pretzel sticks, and nuts to make a nutritious snack.

- Serve low-salt, whole-grain crackers with low-fat Alberta cheese.

- Nuts are nutritious but very high in fat. Try popcorn, with only a little melted fat and salt added.

- If you and your guests want to reduce alcohol consumption, try the 'light' alcoholic beverages, fruit punches, sparkling waters, wine spritzers, or hot spiced consome. Many of these are made right here in Alberta.

Sometimes it's appropriate to plan your entertaining around a meal — brunch or dinner parties are the most popular. In that case, there's no need to have food out for continual snacking, tempting your guests to overindulge.

For informal gatherings, try chili or a low-fat pasta dish, served with whole wheat rolls, fresh vegetables or salad, and a fruit platter which could be left out for nibbling along with low-fat cheese.

Our favorite Christmas or New Year's feasts usually include family favorites we're unwilling to give up. Sometimes the recipes can be adapted to include more nutritious ingredients. For example, much of our Christmas baking could be done with about 25 per cent less sugar and fat than the recipe calls for. Use low-fat sour cream, yogurt, or cottage cheese in things like dips or on potatoes. Look for processed meats which are lower in fat and salt.

Alberta's food producers and processors supply us with an endless array of exciting and nutritious food for entertaining. Enjoy this holiday season!

Our door is always open

The beautiful season of Advent is just around the corner. Four weeks given to the various Christian communities to better prepare for the birth of Jesus, our Saviour.

Our modern world with all it has to offer has eroded the faith response of many. Some no longer believe in God...some have simply lost contact with their God and church.

You know our God is a loving God who really does love us, who really does care, protect, heal and provide for us. However, sometimes life's pressures, problems, hurts and pain affect our ability to realize this at times and to appreciate this loving friendship our God always extends to us.

Perhaps you have been hurt by the church, by a priest/minister, by a friend or parishioner. Perhaps you lost a loved one, a wife, a husband, a mother, a father, a child, a friend.

Maybe you feel lonely, hurt and are experiencing much pain and/or depression. Maybe you are even "mad" at God. Maybe you have gotten mad against your parents and/or your children. Maybe it has been a while since you have talked.

Maybe you are divorced and are feeling isolated from the church or even God. Maybe you are separated and do not know where to turn.

From the Pastor's Pen

By Father Bob Cornell
St. Anthony's Catholic Church

Maybe you feel guilty because you stopped going to church and do not know how to go about coming back. Maybe you think you will feel awkward. Maybe you are worried that others will think?

Well, the first thing I want to say to you as your priest and friend is that: you are not alone. Yes, it is okay to get "mad" at God from time to time. But please, always remember our loving Creator does not stay mad at us.

However, God will never force us to love Him. What He does do from time to time is send people like me, people like your fellow parishioners and/or friends to tell you that you are special, sacred, holy — that you are loved — that you are needed, and that your church faith-community misses your presence, that the Body of Christ is not whole without you and we would like to have you back amongst us.

Why not think about it! Please pray about it. Advent and Christmas are coming soon. What a beautiful gift you might be able to give to the Christ Child and His Mother Mary...the special gift of your renewed faith...the personal gift of your healed hurts...the joyful gift of your presence among your faith-community.

If you feel you may need some advice or the desire to talk to someone, why not contact one of the various pastors in Drayton. Our door is always open. God bless you.

Perhaps you aren't a lovely card,

Or at least you aren't a lovely flower,

If so, we saw them there,

Perhaps you aren't beautiful flowers,

Just thought of us that day.

Whatever you did to console the heart,

We thank you so much,

Whatever the part.

Our heartfelt thanks to Doctor Murphy,

Doctor Johnson and all the nursing silence is not golden...

Your newspaper ad

You're right! The space is empty. There isn't any ad. If you operate a business and don't advertise, the silence is anything but golden. Advertising is really extending an invitation to your prospects and asking them to buy your products or use your services. If you aren't advertising, you aren't selling.

Residential expansion will continue

The residential expansion Drayton Valley has seen in the past few years will continue on the east side of town.

That's the opinion of Mayor Bob Mayhew.

He says now that all 97 lots have been sold in Northview, the residential growth will continue on the east side.

A number of lots are still available in Aspenview and he hinted another subdivision may be on the drafting board.

The town also owns more land east of Northview.

The town is saying they turned over a quarter-million dollar profit from the sale of lots in Northview. And, they have turned this profit back into the subdivision for further development which included the pond.

The pond, constructed from an old sewer lagoon, is used to hold runoff water from many areas in town.

Plans call for the installation of a water fountain in the pond to circulate the runoff water as it drains to a nearby creek, and to prevent it from causing odors or becoming stagnant.

Late taxes no problem

Outstanding taxes aren't a problem locally.

Robin Wenbourne, municipal secretary, says it's been really good the last few years.

If local taxes are not paid on or before July 26, an 18-per-cent penalty is added to the bill.

Still with taxes, the annual Court of Revision is being held today (Tuesday).

A large turnout was expected following a lot of complaints when the tax notices originally came out.

A lot of the tax complaints were handled at a open house attended by provincial assessors and council.

A tax hotline, established by the town, also handled numerous calls.

Water pressure will be increased

The town is in the process of increasing the water pressure in some areas.

Plans are to increase it to a maximum of 10 pounds.

It will be done in stages: two pounds every second week.

One of the reasons for this is to increase the water pressure in Celebrity Estates Drive, located in the southeast corner of town.

Residents in that area have complained to the town their water pressure is not sufficient.

Howard Olsen, chairman of the town's transportation committee says the additional water pressure may not solve the problem on Celebrity Drive.

The lack of pressure is not the town's only problem.

Northview has too much pressure. Pressure reduction valves have been installed on these lines.

Up another notch

Gas prices continue to climb. In the past month, local prices have risen by 3.5 cents per litre. Last week they went from 45.4 to 46.9 at Drayton Valley stations.

Sea of Galilee

Vacation Bible School students from All Saints Anglican Church enjoyed a 'Sea of Galilee' theme last week at Eldorado school. They attended classes in different parts (the one shown is 'the boat').

Annexion question now part of history

By Susan Mosciicki
The question of whether or not Alder Flats should be annexed into the MD of Brazeau is history, at least for the next five years, according to Municipal Affairs Minister Ray Speaker.

People in the area spearheaded a telephone petition and asked MLA Tom Thurber to present their findings to the minister and ask him to reconsider the annexation request.

The Local Authorities Board had totally rejected annexation several months ago.

'No decisive support for or against annexation'

"A combination of factors has convinced me the best course of action is to leave the boundaries in the Brazeau area unchanged at this time," Speaker said.

"One reason is that there is no decisive support either for or against annexation. An equally important factor is the recent decision by Alberta Education to fund the construction of a new centralized junior/senior high school at Buck Lake."

He said that decision has resolved many of the problems related to schooling, which had provided some of the impetus for the annexation proposals.

"Having taken all these circumstances into consideration, I believe we should wait for a period of five years to see what happens before looking again at the question of annexation."

Thurber said he agreed with the minister and that some time should pass before annexation is re-examined. He was, however, pleased the people had opportunity to be heard.

Waste heat use 'sound economics'

By Paul Cudia

The Pembina Institute has initiated a proposal for a tree nursery/greenhouse recommending the use of excess heat from mill burners for space heating.

The proposal suggests that waste heat from the Pelican Mill 'teepee burner' could be tapped via the transferring of heat to a hot-oil liquid medium. The hot-oil liquid would then be piped to the greenhouse site for use in space heating.

The Pembina Institute report cites "that more than enough excess heat is produced from this source to provide all of the space heating requirements of the seedlings greenhouse in question."

The report calls for the placement of a greenhouse in Drayton Valley using this unique heating idea and its "sound economics as a cheaper heat supply than natural gas."

"This is one of the most obvious win-win situations in the needs for both protecting the environment and providing a sound economic base," Rob MacIntosh, of the Pembina Institute, said.

6 months for sexual assault

Kevin Robert Haynes, 30, of Drayton Valley was sentenced to six months in jail, for sexual assault, in Leduc Provincial Court Dec. 5.

At approximately 2:50 a.m. Oct. 23, 1988, a staff member of the Drayton Valley Association for Community Living (then the Drayton Valley Association for the Developmentally Handicapped) called the RCMP and reported a naked man sleeping on the floor of a very distraught resident of the Valleyview residence (4410-52 Ave).

The accused reportedly forced the 25-year-old female resident to have sexual intercourse with him.

He was drunk at the time.

Haynes pleaded guilty to the sexual assault charge and a charge of break and enter was withdrawn.

Oops... wrong house!

A 47-year-old Drayton Valley man was taken to hospital last Wednesday morning after attempting to gain entry to numerous houses in the area of 46 Ave. and 54 St.

According to RCMP Const. Jim Kruk, the man was almost hypothermic and incoherent when apprehended in a local dwelling.

He hadn't been wearing a jacket or overcoat while wandering from house to house.

One of the homes he attempted to get into, presumably to get warm, included the home of Const. Kruk.

No charges have been laid to date. The man is still in hospital.

Local News Briefs

It will be at least February before IGA moves into the new store in Drayton Valley.

There were a couple of 'red-faced' workers installing the traffic lights on 50 Street last Tuesday. Apparently, while they busily installed the new bulbs, the blinker lights on their truck drained the battery. They had to summon a town truck to give their unit a boost.

Town staff held two budget meetings last week.

The Drayton Valley, Breton and Fairways West (Alder Flats) golf courses have already confirmed space in next summer's Battle River Tourist Association golf brochure.

The town's new civic centre is scheduled to be featured in the February or March issue of the Canadian Architect magazine.

Tom McGee is Drayton Valley's ninth mayor dating back to 1957.

Representatives of Camrose Lutheran College were in town recently. They met with parents who have students attending the college.

Discussions centred around a $300,000 shortfall the college is faced with.

Mayor Tom McGee and Councillor Jean Saunders represented the town at the noon luncheon.

The province will be contributing a $66,700 grant to the town to assist with the installation of traffic signals.

Chris Lee, formerly of Drayton Valley, who is presently heading up the RCMP detachment at Cardston, has been transferred to St. Albert. The Lees will move next month.

Yves Robitaille, another former resident, who is stationed in Cardston with the RCMP, was in town last week.

Chamber honors editor

Mayor Tom McGee presented Western Review editor Frank Ryan with a gift at a Chamber of Commerce luncheon in his honor last week. Ryan will leave to join a Red Deer paper at the end of this week.

Can't from page 1 Greenhouse secondary industry for town?

The Pembina Institute has held "preliminary discussions" with Percy Champagne, Pelican Mills manager, and Fred McDougal, Weyerhaeuser general manager, who are "interested in further discussions...although they are clearly not in a position to make any firm commitments at this time."

"I think it's an excellent idea," Mayor Tom McGee said, adding town council will "continue to lobby the government to look at this area for a greenhouse."

McGee said the greenhouse would be a secondary industry in Drayton Valley which would create employment and growth.

The proposed greenhouse would be an Alberta Forestry, Lands and Wildlife project. In a return letter to the town of Drayton Valley, Forestry Minister Leroy Fjordbotten stated, "Using waste heat for heating greenhouse space could undoubtedly have some advantages."

"However, the feasibility of using waste heat, and the cost savings and other benefits that would be realized depend upon detailed design considerations."

The greenhouse proposal does specify that more detailed designs and engineering studies are necessary.

But the greenhouse study outlines options for extracting excess heat from mill burners. One option offers the "the potential to result in substantially more efficient combustion and therefore cleaner burning with less particulate and gaseous air pollution" from the "teepee burners."

No funding increase for local hospitals

By Shaun Polczer

Hospitals in Drayton Valley and Breton say they will just have to cope without increases in health care funding from the provincial government next year.

Health Minister Nancy Bethkowiak told delegates to the Alberta Hospitals Association (AHA) convention Nov. 29, 30 and Dec. 1 the province was trying to hold the line on expenditures, and not to expect any new funding for the next year.

At this point, Jansen said a "one to two per cent increase would be a gift."

The existing budgets will be in effect at the hospital until March of next year, when the current fiscal year ends.

At that time labor contracts affecting some 200 employees at the complex will be renegotiated.

Jansen noted the full effects of the funding freeze will not be fully realized until those contracts are settled.

All four unions at the hospital, the UNA (United Nurses of Alberta), the RNA (Registered Nurses Association), the Health Sciences Technicians and the General Staff Association, will have their contract renegotiated.

Jansen says the administration will live with whatever settlement AHA (the hospital's negotiating body) and various unions come to.

"What comes down will be accepted," he said, noting it may eventually become a case of paying more money to fewer people.

"If we have to face salary increases on par with what the MLAs got, we're in big trouble."

If it becomes necessary to maintain a balanced budget, Jansen said services will be reviewed to see if any will have to be cut at that time.

In Breton, Janet Young, the administrator at the hospital said the effect of the funding freeze would only be felt once its labor contracts are settled as well.

"If we have to face salary increases on par with what the MLAs got, we're in big trouble," said Young.

She also said however, that she was "optimistic" the hospital could manage with the budgetary constraints that will be imposed in the next year.

In total, 45 people are employed at the hospital in Breton belonging to UNA, RNA, and CUPE (Canadian Union of Public Employees.)

Beehive overcrowded

By Susan Mosicki

It appears there are too many bees buzzing around in the Beehive lately, and that is causing the president and executive director of the Drayton Valley Association for Community Living great concern.

"I'd certainly be looking at tendering right off the bat."

"We're desperately overcrowded," said Bruce Nichols, executive director.

"Sell-Can was generous enough to donate a trailer to put beside the building as a program room."

But he said this is only a temporary measure. The trailer will be returned to Sell-Can in six months.

"We have applied to the provincial government for capital funding (to build a new facility), but so far we haven't heard anything," Garry Lorenz, president, said.

The new building, to be situated near the hospital, will cost about $480,000-$500,000 but Lorenz indicated he needs about half of that amount from the government. If the association gets $250,000, Lorenz said, "I'd certainly be looking at tendering right off the bat."

According to Lorenz, the roof of the present facility could be unsafe in the case of a heavy snowfall or if an accumulation of snow was allowed to build up.

The building was originally an oil company warehouse and was redesigned to service 15 clients.

There are now more than 30 clients, increased staff and Alberta Environment has expanded the number of containers the bottle depot must take in, requiring more storage space.

MLA Tom Thurber said he has made representation on their behalf and "I'm hopeful that we can work something out."

Recycling takes hold

By Paul Cudla

The new wave of domestic environmentalism — recycling — is slowly taking hold in Drayton Valley.

I would like to be on the leading edge of recycling. We have to be the starters of it," Mayor Tom McGee said.

McGee said he is hopeful citizens accept the environmental challenge recycling presents.

"You're working for your environment, your children. That should be simple enough," McGee said.

Town council has voted in favor of adding a second recycling drop-off depot in the parking lot located behind the curling rink.

Rob MacIntosh of the Pembina Institute, helped spawn the recycling program in Drayton Valley and is pleased with the town council approval of a second drop-off centre.

"We're encouraged by the strong support for recycling voiced by the present town council," MacIntosh says.

MacIntosh says the local environmental organization will be examining the next steps in recycling over the next few months.

"While we do want to expand the program, we recognize that we have to expand at a pace to do each step properly — proper public education with a well thought out plan."

"Our focus is to get paper recycling in place and have the majority of residents in Drayton Valley actively recycling newspapers, as well as the majority of business," MacIntosh said.

Drayton Valley salvaged 150 tonnes of newspaper this year while MacIntosh estimated only five per cent of newspapers in the area were being recycled.

Reasons for recycling include:

Saving lifespan of landfills which in turn saves tax revenue used for landfill sites.

Cutting down on pollution.

Conservation of resource base.

Helps support an attitude of wise use of resources amongst the public.

For recycling to work in Drayton Valley, MacIntosh said the program needs "more viability" and significant public participation.

Crash and flash

Owner of this vehicle, Roger Lacasse, of Drayton Valley, said he touched his brakes lightly and spun around on the icy road before hitting the ditch on 50 St. across from Pleasantview trailer court Dec. 4. The gas tank ruptured and ignited. Firefighters arrived on the scene shortly after and doused the flames. No one was injured.

AOHS investigating

Alberta Occupational Health and Safety (AOHS) is investigating the explosion at Dial Oilfield Services Dec. 1. Director of communications, Joe Miller, said when welding on tanker trucks there are hazards and certain precautions have to be taken.

He said AOHS would look into "whether the purging (cleaning of the tank) that went on was adequate or efficient."

If not purged adequately, there could have been flammable material inside the tank.

"If not, why then would you have an explosion?" he asked.

This blast, the second in Drayton Valley in less than six months, was directly across the lane from the Pembina Educational Consortium where the last explosion occurred.

Miller doesn't think there is any connection between the two, though, "other than that they are similar."

He was not sure when AOHS's report would be complete.

Dial Oilfield Services did not have any damage estimates available at press time.

Dinning has no funds

"No money available," was the message from Education Minister Jim Dinning at an Alberta School Trustees convention in Calgary recently.

Superintendent Al Anderson said the 'no money' message will not in any way affect the maintenance work to be done at Breton high school.

The Twin Rivers board of education met with the minister to obtain financial consideration resulting from jurisdictional formations, as had the counties of Parkland, Leduc and MD of Brexana.

According to a press release from the Twin Rivers school division, the government position was that "since Twin Rivers had the second highest potential to pay and the second lowest mill rate, it would be on its own despite starting a new jurisdiction without the necessary infrastructures in place."

Twin Rivers affirmed its position of wanting to provide the best possible education for its students. Dinning responded with: "In wanting a local system of education, the people should not expect to pay less than what others pay for their educational opportunities."

Alberta Education officials have been asked to clarify their position on the local educational support issue. This is of particular concern to Twin Rivers since Dinning reportedly hinted at the convention that school systems should not expect much by way of funding increases.

Postmaster: LeRoy Robinson expects 300 to 400 local letters to be answered this month, in addition to classroom or group letters.

The letters will be answered right up until Christmas and postal employees have been volunteering their time to help Mr. Claus with the influx of special Christmas requests.

Last year, in the Foothills Division (including most of Alberta), 1,000 volunteers answered more than 71,000 letters.

They are all gathered, counted, opened and replied to, and in the languages in which they were written.

Farm family award puts agriculture at forefront

It's always rewarding to see individuals and businesses recognized for their contributions to the community.

In Drayton Valley, the chamber takes that upon themselves each year with the presentation of the Citizen of the Year and Farm Family awards. This year they added a Small Business of the Year award.

Lawrence Duperron is an excellent choice as citizen of the year. His unselfish contribution to boxing in Drayton Valley makes him a natural for the award.

The only thing that troubled him the night his wife suggested they go out for supper (she was actually taking him to the chamber awards dinner), was the fact he couldn't find anyone to coach the boxers.

The farming community, that is often taken for granted, were front and centre at the dinner, with the presentation of the Farm Family award to Audrey and Cliff Whiteblock.

And, small business, that makes up so much of the local economy, had something to crow about with the presentation of the first-ever award to June and Oscar Szewc from the A&W.

The annual meeting saw Grant Monsour step down as president after a two-year stint. The community owes him a debt of gratitude for tackling this often demanding volunteer position.

Linda Bennett is now faced with the task of re-organizing the chamber as its new president.

New publisher, editor should have easy job

There won't be any sugar plums dancing in our heads this Christmas season.

We're all too busy thinking about moving. With that comes thoughts of selling our house, buying another, arranging financing, transferring the kids from one school system to another, setting a date for the movers to come and so on...

During the past couple of weeks we have been house hunting in Red Deer. Prices there are between $10,000 and $15,000 higher than Drayton Valley.

And, while I'm excited about another newspaper job waiting for me in Red Deer, I'm having mixed emotions about leaving after five years.

Frankly Speaking

By Frank Ryan

Thanks to the tremendous support of the advertisers and our readers, The Western Review circulation has almost doubled in those five years.

We kept up the paper's tradition of winning our fair share of editorial and photo awards.

Things will be changing, that I can almost guarantee.

Bowes Publishers, who recently purchased our paper, has decided to appoint two people — a publisher and an editor. These people are not expected to be on the job until next month sometime.

Their jobs shouldn't be that hard, as they are coming to a paper that is deep in talent.

Staff at The Western Review take a lot of pride in the product they turn out every week. Because of this, the new publisher and editor's jobs will be much easier.

And, because of the tremendous growth we've seen in the Drayton Valley area, The Western Review should continue to grow.

Sour gas, living creatures: What is more important?

Dear Editor,
Reading in your paper, Nov. 14 issue, the heading 'Lodgepole blowout still burning issue' prompted me to voice my opinion.

It seems there are oil companies that are persistent to bring sour gas to the surface, which in turn is a threat to the livelihood of plants, animals, both wild and domestic, and the human race.

The Lodgepole blowout should be a good example of what can take place.

I have heard on radio, television and read in newspapers of instances concerning residents, in different locations having to fight furiously to protect their livelihood against oil companies planning to invade farming areas and others to drill for sour gas or install additions to existing gas plants to handle sour gas.

With all the preaching about safety of monitoring emissions, etc., it seems to me it is much too late after sour gas has surfaced and blown wild.

Apparently when something happens during drilling operations, with all the safety in order, it ends up to be an accident and something must have gone wrong but nevertheless, the damage is done. We, the living creatures, suffer. I wonder, do those responsible really give a damn?

I would like to voice my scary experience after the Lodgepole blowout.

I live in the Breton area and am asthmatic. During the blowout episode, I felt many times that I would suffocate and am sure many others were in the same situation. Eventually I became numb from knees and elbows out, could hardly walk and had very little control of my feet and legs. I also had very little strength in my hands. I could not remove the gas cap from my truck and had to dispose of our family milk cow as I didn't have the strength to bring the milk from her.

I spent two stints in an Edmonton hospital and ended up with the aid of a walking cane and was diagnosed as having peripheral neuropathy.

I approached 10 different officials about my condition and everyone informed me that a chemical was responsible and was informed of a certainty this chemical being H₂S (sour gas).

Through treatment of several varieties, I have recovered somewhat, but am still numb in the lower half of my legs and hands, which apparently will be permanent.

As a farmer, I could not handle my equipment slowly and had gradually slowed up to the extent I have been forced to retire prematurely.

At one point, I was very close to needing a wheelchair.

Lord knows, we are experiencing too much pollution already. Stop and think, which is more important to our society: sour gas or living creatures: plants, animals, and humans? Why put human life in jeopardy just to explore? Don't disturb and destroy.

Breton Major project approved

Residents of the village of Breton recently approved a major road project to be completed in two phases.

The first phase of the project will be underground drainage and storm sewer system on 49 Ave. from 51 St. to 48 St.

Paving, planned for next year, is the second phase. Carolyn Strand, with the village office, said the project will be funded by a street transportation grant and village residents will pay a certain amount of frontage.

Win-starved owners pay astronomical salaries

The age of collusion has ended in major league baseball with the dawning of high-priced bidding wars between anxious owners.

Baseball owners were put on trial a couple years back in messy collusion cases which found owners guilty of illegally and unethically meeting behind the scenes to control players' salaries.

If you haven't heard by now, the owners were found guilty. Guilty of conspiring to keep players' salaries at an affordable level in competitive bidding between owners for free agents.

Owners were ordered to pay compensation for players who had been 'cheated out of salary' by collusion.

So what is happening in the winter of 1989 is a frenzy of astronomical salaries arbitrarily picked out of thin air by owners starving for a winning team.

It's capitalist anarchy in the major leagues.

Now major league owners have broken the banks, the vaults, and Fort Knox in pursuit of their dream player.

Whereas owners used to monitor fiscal restraint and control from within, keeping tabs on their own spending, now the ingrained system of financial responsibility has been jettisoned.

The direct effects from the collusion cases can be seen in this year's free agent signings:

Mark Langston: Signed a $16-million deal for five years with the California Angels. Thru July, Langston earns $3.2 million a year. Or, $106,066.66 a game (based on 30 starts a season). How about this: Langston earns approximately $1,066.66 for every pitch he throws (based on 100-pitch games). Hourly, Langston earns about $42,666.66 per hour for his playing time in games over the 162-game season.

million three-year deal with the San Diego Padres.

Rickey Henderson: Signed a three-year $9-million deal with the Oakland A's.

Kent Hrbek: Turned down a five-year $15-million contract with the Boston Red Sox to sign a five-year $14 million deal with Minnesota.

The big-name baseball players are drawing huge salaries as they help boost team salaries an average of 13.3 per cent.

An extreme example is the average salary of the Oakland Athletics which jumped from $424,581 in 1988 to $723,623. That represents a 70.4 per cent hike in average salaries.

Owners will surely pass this year's fiscal irresponsibility down to the fans in the form of inflated ticket prices. Maybe collusion wasn't such a bad idea.

Exchange program may solve woes

By Shaun Polcser

An exchange program being offered at the Breton high school may ultimately provide a means of solving the school's money woes, says the principal.

Jim Musson, principal of the cash-starved school, says there are foreigners willing to pay $5,000 a year in tuition to study in Alberta schools.

A total of 20 students from a Hiroshima high school in Japan are scheduled to take classes at the Breton school sometime within the next year, adding a total of $100,000 to its coffers.

In addition to the tuition fee, the students will also pay $450 a month in room and board, adding another $100,000 directly into the community.

This is on top of any other dollars they would ultimately add to the local economy.

"Several students have already been placed," said Musson.

And there could be more. Musson indicated similar arrangements are also being made for students to come from Europe as well.

The exchange program is being made possible through the evolution of distance education within the school.

Breton is part of the West Central Alberta Distance Education Consortium, a network of 13 schools in Alberta which has been establishing contacts in Japan and western Europe to set up distance learning centres.

These have been established in Hiroshima, the Netherlands, Luxembourg, Belgium and France as well as in Breton.

Such centres allow students to take classes from Breton over long distance telephone lines, and vice versa from points overseas.

"It's an incredible revolution for education"
Musson

Musson says the Japanese in particular are taking advantage of the opportunity to study in their own system while living in Breton.

He feels Canadians should take advantage of the opportunity in the same fashion.

A student from Breton for example, could take all of their Canadian courses for a given period of time over long-distance telephone lines while going to class in Hiroshima.

"It's an incredible revolution for education," he said.

Light-up tour flicks on

The fifth annual senior citizens Christmas light-up tour will be held tonight (Tuesday).

Seniors from the Shangri-La Lodge, Wishing Well and Leisure Lea Apartments tour the Christmas lights in town. Any other senior citizens in town who would like to go on the tour, are asked to be at the Shangri-La Lodge by 7 p.m.

Two buses will be used once again this year in order to accommodate those in wheelchairs.

During the evening the seniors will stop at the restaurant in the Westwind Motor Inn for coffee and snacks.

The tour around town to see the Christmas lights is organized by Danny Thompson.

Permits handy

For those who enjoy the tradition of a Christmas tree cutting day, permits are now available through a local store and the Lodgepole ranger station.

A two-dollar tree-cutting permit can be purchased from the Lodgepole ranger station during business hours, or from the south Red Rooster in Drayton Valley and the Lodgepole general store.

"It's a good thing for a family to do — a nice day to spend," Butch Shenfield, chief ranger of the Lodgepole station, said.

Maps of cutting areas are provided along with the permits. A tree up to eight feet high will cost a family $2.50 and trees up to 16-feet go at a cost of $3. This is in addition to the $2 permit fee.

"We prefer people stay within those heights instead of cutting down larger trees and then chopping off the tops of them — it's a waste of wood," Shenfield said.

Distance education comes to Breton

By Shaun Polcser

Distance education has come to Breton.

Breton high is currently the only Twin Rivers school in the division to participate in an experimental program which promises to completely revolutionize education as we know it.

By using teleconferencing, computers, and fax machines, students will be afforded opportunities to take classes never before offered at the school because of its relatively small size.

The program was originally designed to help students discriminated by geography obtain a complete education without having to leave home.

By faxing assignments taught on computers with the aid of long distance telephone lines to centrally located markers, distance no longer becomes a factor in the quality of education a student receives.

Jim Musson, principal of Breton high, described the potential of the new program as "revolutionary."

"Children from across the province will get equal educational opportunities regardless of where they live," he said.

Since the introduction of distance education into the school this fall, it has allowed 67 courses to be taught in a school of 100 students.

"We can offer more than double the amount of courses than a regular high school our size can," said Musson, noting the program is still only in its infancy.

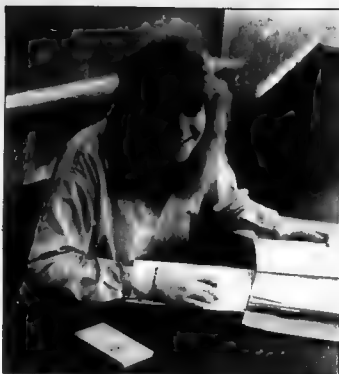

The fax machine is in place, teleconferencing equipment is expected this January and by next September, a new VAX computer will be on stream, allowing the program to be considerably expanded.

The Breton school is currently part of a consortium of 13 other rural schools from such places as Jasper and Cremona, which have linked together via the new technology to create a single network.

The result is a pooling of resources which allows the schools to share courses which may not be offered at the others due to their individual sizes.

In this manner, 13 schools essentially become one.

"Because of this, we can serve 100 (students) in the same manner as 1,500," said Musson, "it's one of the most exciting things I have ever seen."

Alice Steeves works on some long-distance accounting at the Breton high school.

Renovation funding denied

Funding has been turned down in this year's budget for remodelling and expansion of the provincial building, according to MLA Tom Thurber.

The funding was requested to amalgamate all of the provincial services.

Thurber said he would "still be looking at it. I'm hopeful that continued lobbying will make it happen."

Dismal weekend for Drayton Valley Oil Caps

By Susan Mosciello
Last weekend was a dismal one for the Drayton Valley Oil Caps hockey team, losing three straight games.

In the game against the Red Deer Terroco Knights at home Friday, the Caps lost 12-5. They played an excellent first period against Red Deer, going into the first intermission ahead 3-2.

From the start of the second, until the end of the third period, however, the Caps plummeted sadly.

Team plays were replaced by individual plays, which were carried off poorly, resulting in the defeat.

Sheldon Sullivan, Dylan Putzenberger, Mark Waldron, and Brent Plotts (2) scored the Caps' goals.

Saturday, the Caps were shut-out in Carstairs.

The Carstairs Colts scored the only three goals. Brent Vanderberg and Dan Bryson scored in the first period, and Greg Howse in the second in the 3-0 win.

Sunday's game against the Lacombe Wranglers was another disappointment for the Caps.

They came out of the first period down 4-1 and the second down 6-1.

The final period was better for the Caps, scoring three versus Lacombe's four goals, but it was still nothing to write home about.

The final score was 10-4 for the Wranglers.

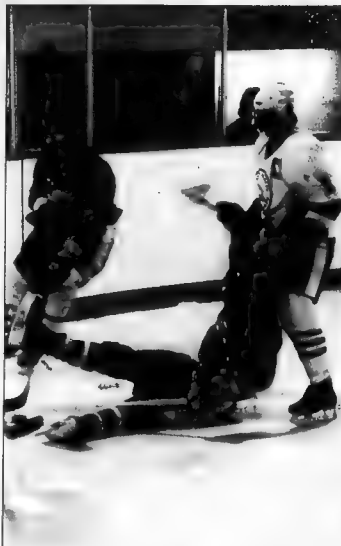

"Positional play is probably one of the first things we'll be working on," said Grant MacDonald, coach.

"One shot on net and the guys start panicking."

In the game against Red Deer, MacDonald said there were four players sitting-out with injuries and one with a game suspension.

"Come the third period, the guys get tired."

"Our intensity level is not what it should be."

Work just starting for game office

By Paul Cudla
The big-game hunting season officially closed Nov. 25, but the work has just begun for the local fish and wildlife officer.

Fred Kreiser, Drayton Valley Fish and Wildlife officer, has received over 100 hunting-oriented complaints arising from the October to November hunting season.

"1-800 number is alive and well."

"I've got a lot of cases this year. It will take at least the rest of December, January, and February to catch-up," Kreiser said, adding, "the 1-800 number is alive and well."

Kreiser heard most of the hunting complaints through the Outdoor Observer hotline which serves to receive hunting violation information.

"We've certainly got the public behind us," Kreiser said. He estimated that about 70 per cent of the calls provided solid information on offending hunters' licence plates, descriptions and type of offense.

Thus far Kreiser has written up between 25 and 35 hunting violations and expects that number to double once he has the opportunity to follow up all of the phoned-in leads.

The main problem for the local fish and wildlife officer is that he is solely responsible for about 1,500 square miles of wilderness area.

Therefore, Kreiser will spend the next few months "catching up."

Bull elk shot

Help stop poacher

The Drayton Valley Fish and Wildlife Association would like your help in solving a poaching incident.

On Nov. 4, at approximately 7 p.m., two vehicles chased and eventually killed a six-point bull elk northeast of Rocky Rapids. Several shots were fired.

The bull elk was shot in a closed zone, and the poachers vacated the area without retrieving the animal.

Physical evidence was recovered on the scene, and the two vehicles have been identified as a half-ton open box truck with brake lights on the cab, and a half-ton club cab with long box (possibly a Suburban).

If anyone has any information on this or any other poaching incident, they are urged to phone the Outdoor Observer hotline at 1-900-642-3800.

Big game season ended Nov. 25

Henry doing part for minor hockey

In appreciation:

Hockey volunteer
Kevin Henry

By Paul Cudla

Kevin Henry is doing more than his share to help minor hockey in Drayton Valley.

Serving as both the president of the Drayton Valley Minor Hockey Association and as an assistant coach with the Mohawk Oilers, Henry's timetable can be a bit crowded.

"There's always time for the kids. We always seem to fit it in," Henry said.

Henry's position as president of minor hockey gives him the responsibility of overseeing 250-260 youngsters enrolled in 17 local hockey teams. In his first year as president he has stickhandled around ice-scheduling difficulties early in the season, and now commits most of his time to ensuring that all the kids in minor hockey are treated fairly.

"All kids are treated equally," Henry said.

As minor hockey president, Henry is assisted by 20 other volunteer executives who help with scheduling, registration and the daily operations of minor hockey.

"We're all volunteers and we just do the best we can."

As a coach, Henry assists Kevin Reich with the novice league Mohawk Oilers.

"I think I had good coaches when I was in hockey, and I'd like to pass that knowledge on."

Born in Lampman, Sask., Henry played most of his hockey in nearby Estevan where he made the junior 'B' Bruins as a 15-year-old.

Henry is classified as a 'level III' coach under the National Coach's Certification Program which he obtained by attending 92 hours worth of coaching clinics. He has been coaching in Drayton Valley for eight years and has been a coach for a total of 10 years.

"If you are going to be a coach, there's a commitment there to give the kids what they deserve and that's to give them as much knowledge as you can."

The aspect of coaching Henry singles out as most enjoyable is "passing knowledge on to the kids and seeing them improve by it."

Another phase of hockey which he views as important is promoting fun hockey.

"You've got to keep practices fun for the kids."

Henry would also like to see the atmosphere of enjoyment in association with hockey extended to parents of children playing minor hockey.

"If we can get the parents to have fun watching the game, win or lose, the players playing the game will also enjoy it."

Winterskate upcoming

The Drayton Valley Figure Skating Club applied for 'Winter Skate '90' and was successful in receiving it.

The tentative days are Feb. 9-11. Upward of 350 skaters will be participating. This size of an event will bring a lot of extra business for Drayton Valley.

Winter Skate '90 is a regional skating competition which will include most skating clubs from the northern zone.

It will cost the club approximately $10,000 for the three days. This will cover mileage, judges, trophies, ice fees, printing, welcome bags for each skater, supplies and much more.

The club would appreciate any businesses, organizations or individual donations to help defray some of the costs so they can make this a successful event for Drayton Valley.

If you are interested in donating, funding, or helping in some other way, please contact the Drayton Valley Figure Skating Club, or call Ann Kelso at 542-5624.

Grade 1 students at Eldorado face the flag and sing the national anthem each morning.

Grade 1 students love their country

By Shaun Polczer

In room 20 of the Eldorado school, Grade 1 students perform a simple ritual each morning.

They all stand at attention, face a small Canadian flag at the side of the room, and sing the national anthem.

It is a ritual that is becoming increasingly rare in Drayton Valley schools.

There is no coherent policy outlined in the school boards, or within the schools themselves, regarding the singing of 'Oh, Canada' each morning prior to class.

Patriotism it would seem, is not an educational priority.

In room 20, it was Iris Tuftin, the teacher, who decided it was a good idea for her students to learn to sing

Canada's anthem.

Tuftin said the foremost reason for singing 'Oh, Canada' every morning was to teach the children the words to the song.

"I don't think they understand what it means at this age," she says "but they will the more they hear it."

Tuftin feels her students should learn about what it means to live in a free country so they don't come to take freedom for granted.

Part of this is learning to salute the flag.

Canadians seem to lack pride in their country," she said, "we're not the flag wavers Americans are, but maybe we should be to show that we value the freedom we do have."

Tuftin is currently planning to send consent forms home with the students so she can get them to say the Lord's Prayer in the morning as well.

She hopes to start by the new year.

At St. Anthony's school, all students say the Lord's Prayer every morning before classes, but they do not sing the national anthem.

At Evergreen, 'Oh, Canada' is sung before each assembly, which is held once a month.

At H.W. Pickup and Frank Maddock high school, it is not sung at all.

"We haven't sang 'Oh, Canada' at this school for 20 years," said FMHS principal Al Day. "It's something we just don't do anymore."

Stony Plain withdraws

The Evergreen Tourist Association has lost another important member.

The Town of Stony Plain has decided to withdraw from the Edison-based tourist association. Council passed a motion concurring with their tourism action committee in rejecting a $6,427 membership bill.

Members of the tourist committee agreed the money could be redirected to more important activities.

Two years ago Drayton Valley withdrew from Evergreen and joined the Battle River Tourist Association.

Age for school entry may be changed

Twin Rivers and the Catholic school boards are currently exploring a joint policy to change the age of entry to kindergarten and Grade 1 classes in the 1990-91 and 1990-92 school years.

The boards agree age of entry into formal schooling for Grade 1 students, in part, determines their future success in school.

They refer to research that indicates younger children fail more often, experience a significantly higher need for special education programs, experience and demonstrate lower academic achievement accompanied by school adjustment problems.

Sometimes, school adjustment and social adjustment problems carry on into adulthood.

In a press release, the boards included a quote: "The child who is rushed into formal instruction will soon develop similar characteristics of the learning disabled child or will develop what has been described as 'learned helplessness'."

The proposed policy will stipulate:

"In 1990-91, children must be five years old on or prior to Dec. 1, 1990 to be eligible for the ECS program;

In 1991-92, children must be five on or prior to Sept. 1, 1991 to be eligible for the ECS program;

In 1991-92, children must be six on or prior to Dec. 1, 1991 to be eligible for Grade 1;

In 1992-93 children must be six on or prior to Sept. 1, 1992 to be eligible for Grade 1;

And students transferred in from other jurisdictions who are affected by the age of entry policy will be permitted to attend Twin Rivers schools and St. Anthony school.

MD retreating

Council members of the MD Braseau are planning a retreat to set goals and objectives sometime in February.

"It's a good time for reflection and to look to the future," said municipal manager John Eriksson. Councillor Bob Booth said he thinks the retreat is a good idea and "it's long overdue."

Think twice this season

If you're thinking of drinking and driving this season you had better think again.

From now until the new year, local RCMP will be stepping-up their check-stops and the chances of getting caught are up substantially.

"It's the party season, so we concentrate more on it," said Corp. Gordon Chammen.

Chammen said check-stops increase every Christmas/New Year season. "We're more visible."

Along with increased check-stops, the police cruise around areas where parties are being held. Chammen said this makes many think twice about drinking and then driving.

"There is no reason why they can't take a cab home or get a ride home with a designated driver," he said. If the person lives out of town, Chammen added, he/she can stay with a friend, at a hotel, or again, they can get a ride with a driver who has not been drinking.

Chamber Christmas cheque plan generates $100,000

Almost $100,000 in loans has been generated by the Chamber of Commerce's Christmas cheque program to date, according to president Linda Bennett.

The program "shows the people of Drayton Valley how committed we are to keeping their business here," she said.

"So far the program has gone way beyond my expectations or my hopes. I'm extremely pleased, ecstatic, delighted, but it has been a lot of work."

"Whenever you start something new there is always that sense of 'what happens if something goes wrong?' You have to take that risk."

Bennett said the program was arranged in two weeks, and during that time more 120 businesses were visited, 56 of which are now involved in the program.

"That's what you call getting an idea and running with it."

Several businesses have joined the program since the deadline, and although their names are not on posters, etc., Bennett said any business that displays a Christmas cheque poster will accept the cheques.

Roving surgeons not needed in Drayton Valley area

By Shaun Polcser

Teams of roving surgeons to perform specialized operations would not be needed in local area hospitals' say administrators in Drayton Valley and Breton hospitals.

The idea was proposed by Wilf West, administrator of the Hardisty hospital, at the Alberta Hospitals Association (AHA) convention in Edmonton Nov. 29, 30, and Dec. 1, as a means for rural hospitals to increase its services to the public.

Such a system would solve problems of a lack of skilled surgeons in rural areas say its proponents.

In Drayton Valley however, hospital administrator Jim Jansen says such a team just wouldn't be needed.

"There are enough qualified resident surgeons in town to look after our present needs," he said.

Jansen also added that any highly specialized technical surgery not performed in Drayton Valley was readily available in Edmonton, and there was no problem referring patients requiring these services to the city.

In Breton, hospital administrator Janet Young said such a team would not be required either.

She said the town was fortunate in that it had a resident surgeon who could handle the present need.

In addition, she felt Breton was close enough to the city to be able to transfer patients if needed.

Town applying for FCSS grant

The town has made application to the provincial government to fund its Family Community Support Services (FCSS) programs.

Once that approval is received, the town will start looking at what to do.

However, it may be a while before approval is received.

"There's a waiting list for funding," says Mayor Tom McGee.

The province contributes 80 cent on the $1 up to a maximum. The actual amount is based on population.

The mayor is also worried funding of this type may be included in government cutbacks.

Council held an information meeting recently with Gordon Thomas, provincial director for FCSS programs.

"We wanted to see what direction to go. And, whether or not we wanted to start one," McGee said following the meeting.

The town is also getting some ideas on a FCSS program from a bylaw obtained from Didsbury.

According to the mayor, the first step after approval is received, would be to form a committee made up of community members and council. The inter-agency group that has been pushing for FCSS, is also expected to be involved.

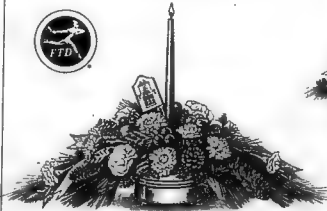

One thing the mayor will be watching for, is to make sure there, won't be any duplication of services created by the FCSS.

Make sure home is fire-safe for holiday season

Fascination and curiosity about fire can lead a child to play with matches, lighters or flames within easy reach.

This holiday season, make your home fire-safe. Keep matches and lighters out of sight and out of children's reach.

Supervise children at all times when they are in a room where there is a fireplace, lit candles, space heater or other open flame or hot surface.

Deep frying

Over-heated cooking oil can catch fire!

- Never leave frying food or heating oil unattended.
- Put a tight-fitting lid on pot or pan to smother the flames and turn off heat and exhaust fan.

- Never carry a flaming pot or throw water on it.
- Use a temperature-controlled electric fryer or pan, for improved safety.

Most home fires start in kitchen

- Keep combustible materials such as paper, cardboard and plastics away from heat sources.

- Wear short or tight-fitting sleeves when cooking. Loose sleeves can catch fire over the hot stove.

- Don't store things over or behind the stove. People get burned reaching.

- Avoid cooking when sleepy or not alert from the influence of alcohol or medication.

- Don't empty cigarette ashes into the trash can. Flush them down the toilet.

- Do not use defective electric appliances. Have them checked and serviced.

- Turn pot handles in to prevent children from pulling them down.

If you smoke, do it with care

- Lying asleep while smoking is deadly.

- A lit cigarette fallen on a pillow, bedding or couch can start a killer fire.

- Never smoke in bed or when drowsy from medication or intoxication.

- After a party, check for fallen butts on sofas and behind cushions. Make sure they have not burned through the fabric to erupt later into a deadly fire.

- Keep matches and lighters away from children.

- Flush butts and ashes down the toilet. Do not dispose in trash can.

Fireplace safety

Don't let the warm glow of your fireplace lull you in to a false sense of security this holiday season.

- Burn small amounts of wood at frequent intervals.

- Have chimneys checked and cleaned at least once a year.

- Intense heat from large fires or from burning gift wrap can set fire to the tar in the chimney.

- Use a screen in front of the fireplace.

- Never use gasoline or other flammable liquid to light or re-light a fire. The vapors will explode.

- Dispose of ash in a metal container and store outside, away from combustibles.

Smoke alarms save lives

Most fatal home fires occur at night when people are sleeping. Most people die from the inhalation of smoke and toxic gases, not from burns. A working smoke alarm can "sense" smoke and sound an alarm to allow safe escape.

- Ensure your smoke alarm is in working order. Test it by drifting smoke from a just snuffed-out candle. The alarm should sound within 20 seconds. Fan away the smoke to silence the alarm.

- To clean, gently vacuum the inside of your smoke alarm and wipe the inside of the cover with a damp cloth.

- Replace non-working smoke alarms or dead batteries immediately.

- Plan two ways out of every bedroom. Practice your fire escape plan.

- Crawl low under smoke. Get out and stay out. Have a predetermined meeting place so you know everyone got out safely. Call the fire department from a neighbor's home.

- A smoke alarm is a great Christmas gift. Have a fire-safe holiday!

RCMP requesting public's assistance for information

On Oct. 21, at about 3:40 a.m., C/N was southbound on Highway 22 and another vehicle was northbound. The northbound vehicle collided with the C/N vehicle, causing about $4,200 damage to the driver's side.

The suspect vehicle should have extensive damage to the front-driver's side. The suspect vehicle should be white in color and be a three-quarter ton or one-ton. This vehicle never stopped to render assistance to the C/N.

On the night of Nov. 24, sometime between midnight and early morning of the 25th, the rear sliding window on a half-ton pickup was opened by culprits and various items were stolen.

Approximate value of items stolen is $800: 30 music-tapes, two (one grey, 1 brown) cassette cases, two Pioneer 6x9 speakers and an assortment of Master Craft tools.

Between Nov. 18 and 19 at the work site north of old Wolf Lake Road, about 1,000 gallons of diesel fuel was stolen.

The fuel was contained in a 1,000-gallon fuel tank and it's believed a large vehicle with a large capacity for about 800-1,000 gallons of diesel is responsible.

Total value of the theft is about $2,200.

Crime Stoppers will pay a cash reward for information leading to the arrest of any of the person(s) responsible for this offence.

Call Crime Stoppers, toll-free, at 1-800-922-TIPS (922-8477). You do not have to reveal your identity and if your information leads to an arrest, you qualify for a reward.

Production costs big bucks

Little Shop of Horrors, a play to be performed by Playworks Players in January, has already cost more than any other production they have done.

Bob Thompson, in charge of publicity, said about $10,000 has already been spent on the production.

"If it wasn't for grants, God bless grants, we couldn't do it," he said.

"But we haven't just sat there with our begging bowls. We've said, 'Let's get out and do something to get some money.'"

The performing arts group raised $1,500 from a recent masquerade ball, and $800 from doing Christmas shows for children.

The musical will be held in the Frank Maddeck high school theatre Jan. 18 through 20 and 25 through 27.

All of the people involved in the play are local. Thompson refers to them as "pure Drayton Valley talent."

Tickets will be available at McGee's and he urges everyone to get them early because at least two past productions were sold out in the second week.

According to local farmers selling their produce at the market last week, consumers should start looking for carrots, green peppers and not in the far too distant future, we should be seeing corn.

Making Albertans aware of crop potential, variety

People who drive by Alberta Agriculture's headquarters may have been mystified by what appeared to be a large field of fuchsia flags. The bright pink flags aren't anything strange. They marked the plots of the Crops of Alberta display. Growing in the plots are a wide variety of crops that are grown or can be grown in the province.

"Crops of Alberta has been an annual occurrence since Alberta Agriculture moved from downtown to the J.G. O'Donoghue building on Edmonton's south side," says Denise Maurice, of the plant industry division.

"Special crops are emphasized in the display. Through the plots we want to make Albertans aware of the large variety of crops that are grown here and some of our potential crops. We also want to show both the trend and need to diversify our production," she adds.

Crops of Alberta is for the urban and rural visitor, says its coordinator Clara Qualizza. "Some of the different and fascinating alternate crops on display this year are quinoa, monarda, wild rice and day neutral strawberries."

A large selection of herbs and spices have been grown as part of the special crop theme. Coriander, sage, caraway and peppermint are part of the exhibit.

"We haven't forgotten the traditional crops. New and current recommended varieties of canola, wheat and barley, as well as a large selection of forage plants are also on display," she says.

Signs explain what each of the crops are, so the public can wander through the display on their own. If groups are interested in tours they can contact Qualizza at 427-7086.

"The best time to look at the crops is between mid-July and late August," advises Qualizza.

Farmers considering leasing machinery should know about changes announced in the recent federal budget says an Alberta Agriculture farm management economist.

"The intent of the changes are tax neutral for the farmer lessee. They reduce capital cost allowance deductions for the lessor machinery dealers and manufacturers," says Garth Nickorick, of the farm business management branch in Olds.

He adds how the system works is fairly complex.

"The eligible amount of capital cost allowance lessors, the machinery dealers and manufacturers, can deduct has been reduced. Deductible capital cost allowance is limited to the amount that would have been a repayment of principal if the lease had been a loan and rental payments had been blended principal and interest payments. The net effect is that some of the tax benefits received by lessors and previously passed on to producers will not be available in the future," he says.

The second change allows the lessor and lessee to make a joint decision-joint election, in tax language to permit the farmer lessee to claim the capital cost allowance on the leased machine as well as interest rather than lease payments. The lease payment itself, however, is not deductible.

Interest is calculated through a complex formula says Nickorick.

"It is based quoting the budget documents, on the fair market value of the machine at the time of the lease at a rate equal to one percentage point plus the long-term Government of Canada bond rate for the last Wednesday of the month of the preceding quarter."

At the end of the lease period, the leased machine is deemed to be sold at the lessor's unclaimed capital cost base. The producer's (lessee's) unclaimed capital cost is deducted from the lessor's unclaimed capital cost base.

Nickorick adds only dealers licensed under the Farm Implement Act can lease new machinery.

For more information contact Garth Nickorick at the farm business management branch in Olds at 556-4247.

Survey shows cash rates equal

Results from Alberta Agriculture's statistics branch annual survey of landlords and tenants are now available.

Survey participants are asked about the type of rental agreement they use, what type of contract they have and how costs and government program payments are split.

The survey shows cash rates for 1989 are equal to or higher than last year's rates. Rates are up to $5 per acre higher than they were in 1988. Seventy per cent of cash rental agreements are for one year.

Payment of the cash rent was made in full in the spring in 40 per cent of the agreements. A combination of spring and fall payments was the case in 50 per cent of the cash rent agreements.

The typical crop share agreement in Alberta is one-third to the landlord and two-thirds to the tenant. The agreements are usually only one year in length.

Two hundred people participated in the survey. They represent leasing agreements for 125,000 acres across the province.

For more information or a copy of the survey results contact Garth Nickorick farm management economist, at 556-4247, Olds.

Eggs lower in cholesterol than once believed

While we're not any closer to whether the chicken or the egg came first, a recent study has found eggs have less cholesterol than previously believed.

The study, conducted by the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA), found cholesterol levels of an average large egg are 22 per cent less than previously thought. Cholesterol content in an average large egg was pegged at 213 milligrams in the study. The previous yardstick was .274 milligrams. The new totals for extra-large and medium eggs are 230 and 180 milligrams respectively.

Fat content was also found to be slightly lower than previously reported at five grams in an average large egg.

Canadian authorities have recently accepted results of the comprehensive study that included egg samples from Alberta, British Columbia, Nova Scotia, Ontario and Quebec along with eggs from across the United States. Changes in the cholesterol value in eggs has been attributed to changes in egg industry feeds, production practices and more precise testing methods.

As a result of the study, both Health and Welfare Canada and the USDA will revise their nutrient guidelines to reflect the new findings.

Promote 'peace with earth'

A regular column on environmental and global issues of local concern here in Drayton Valley-MD of Brazeau area. Prepared by members of the Pembina Institute for Appropriate Development.

By Rob Macintosh

Of course most of us would like to see snow on the ground this holiday season.

However, during this time of 'peace on earth,' couldn't each of us do a little bit to try and promote 'peace with the earth'?

Christmas has, in our society, become a time of rampant consumption. By tempering or even re-directing some of that consumption, Christmas can be a lot less environmentally destructive and wasteful of resources. One of the most important gifts you can provide your children with is a planet on which they can have a healthy and viable future.

Here are a few ideas for what your family can do to have a more environmentally-friendly Christmas.

One of the easiest things to do is to switch from using throw-away gift-wrap paper that can be used only once, to using gift-wrap fabric that can be re-used hundreds of times. This simple step would save many thousands of tons of paper waste, and tens of thousands of trees each Christmas.

If those you give gifts to also use fabric, you can save quite a bit of money over the years. New or remnant fabric of all kinds can be used, and if cut with pinking shears, it won't fray.

When you buy gifts, decorations and other items, wherever possible try and choose items which have little or no excess packaging.

If you are giving presents

Think globally — act locally which use batteries, then seriously consider buying rechargeable batteries and a good battery charger. These can be re-used hundreds to thousands of times and will save both money, and resources, while cutting down on potentially harmful waste.

Consider the electricity consumption of your Christmas lights. Tiny bulbs can be as attractive as large ones and use a fraction of the power.

Alberta's electricity is for the most part produced by burning coal, a significant cause of pollution and major contributor to both acid rain and the greenhouse effect. Don't leave the lights on all night (you might want to make use of a timer).

Excessive consumption is at the heart of many of the environmental problems we face, and re-orienting the focus of Christmas away from things towards quality experiences can make a big difference.

In the final analysis, the greatest gift of all in our busy world can often be a commitment to setting aside time to communicate, play and share time with those we care about.

These are only a few of many options you have for reducing your impact on the environment.

For an excellent list of tips for living and consuming in a more environmentally-friendly way, pick up a copy of The Canadian Green Consumer's Guide. This easy-to-read and attractively illustrated book includes more than 160 pages of practical advice on what you can do every day at home, at work and when out shopping to be more environmentally responsible. In fact, it might make a great present for someone you know who cares.

The Green Consumer's Guide is available at several stores around town, or can be purchased from the Pembina Institute at 542-6272.

Tutors agree project worthwhile

By Carol Ulmer

Twelve literacy tutors gathered for a supper meeting and social at the Westwinds recently.

They, with members of the Powerhouse Further Education Council, met informally to discuss various aspects of adult literacy.

They discussed strengths and weaknesses, possible solutions and alternatives.

Although problems periodically arise, the general consensus was that this is a very worthwhile and fulfilling endeavor. As co-ordinator, I am certainly privileged to be working with so many dedicated and energetic people.

Watch for further updates during International Literacy Year, and tutors — save your jokes.

Powerhouse Further Education Council and AMA present Drivers 55+

This classroom Awareness Program deals with the effects of aging on driving. There is no intent to take the older driver off the road. Rather, this class is designed to allow adults to drive more safely and for many more years. Couples are welcome. Participants must possess a valid Driver's License.

HATS OFF TO OUR HEROES

Thor Shykora joined the fire department about 12 years ago after some of his friends coaxed him into becoming a member.

Now captain, he has never regretted his decision.

Shykora says if the fire department wasn't around to get to the calls, "There's no fire escape in hell."

"The hardest thing I've ever had to deal with is a rescue call involving children. Pulling those kids out of accidents is something that really bears heavily on your soul."

His nine-year-old son has expressed interest in joining the fire department when he grows up and Shykora says he encourages him.

He believes it is an excellent public service and says, "I have to go (to the calls); it's my civic duty."

Alberta Advanced Education Scholarships over $7 M

Report from the Legislature

With Tom Thurber
MLA Drayton Valley

Alberta Advanced Education has awarded scholarships totalling over $7 million to Alberta students under two different programs.

The Alexander Rutherford Scholarship program accounted for more than $5 million being distributed among 700 high school students. Over 700 post-secondary students received a total of more than $2.3 million through the Louise McKinney Scholarship program.

Both programs are part of the Alberta Heritage Scholarship Fund.

Tourism study completed

The most comprehensive tourism study ever done for Edmonton has been completed.

Alberta Tourism and the Edmonton Convention and Tourism Authority coordinated the study, which commenced in March 1989 and takes a look at Edmonton's tourism resources, existing markets, potential markets and tourism opportunities.

Recommendations are made to try to increase the number of visitors as well as the length of their stay and dollars spent per visit.

The recommendations also bring to light the need to build a positive business climate for the local tourism industry. Copies can be obtained from Donna Babchisin at Alberta Tourism, 427-5028.

New pres. has good ideas

New chamber of commerce president Linda Bennett doesn't want to disclose any of her plans for 1990 until after she has a chance to discuss them with other members at a retreat in January.

"The first thing is to have the retreat in January — to set goals and objectives," she said.

"My main personal goal is to make the people of Drayton Valley and area know there is a chamber of commerce and the benefits."

Bennett indicated she had some ideas and that a lot of other people had some good ideas as well.

She let one little tid-bit slip, though. She would like to see a major tourist attraction in Drayton Valley within the next five years.

Christmas Seals one way to breathe better in the future

One stormy December night in 1903, Einar Holbein, a postman in Copenhagen, Denmark was sorting piles of Christmas mail in his post office.

As he worked, he stopped to look out the window. Just at that moment, a ragged little girl and boy appeared. And as quickly as they had come, they disappeared into the swirling snow.

As Einar looked at all the mail, each one sending words of good cheer to family and friends, he thought of the children he saw outside.

He suddenly had an idea. What if every letter carried an extra stamp? And what if money raised from these stamps went to help children in need?

The next day, Einar told the people he worked with. Everyone agreed the stamps were a good idea. They went to tell the king.

King Christian IX loved the idea! The first seals were made for the Christmas of 1904. They had a picture of Queen Louise to show the people the king and queen supported the stamps.

That Christmas, the people of Denmark bought four million stickers. The money collected was given to help children with tuberculosis, a disease of the lungs. At this time, tuberculosis caused more deaths than hunger or even war.

After the next Christmas, two hospitals were built to help the sick children. Soon Norway and Sweden offered Christmas Seals to their people.

In 1907, a Delaware tuberculosis hospital needed $300 to stay open (a lot of money in those days). Dr. Joseph P. Wales asked his cousin Emily Bissell, to think of some way to raise the money needed.

Miss Bissell remembered a success story she had read on the Christmas Seals in Denmark.

One of her friends, an artist, designed a Christmas Seal — a simple wreath of holly in bright red.

Some people liked the idea of the Christmas Seal, others did not.

She went to Philadelphia and showed the seals to the news editor of the North American, who didn't like the idea at all.

By next Christmas, news of Christmas Seals had reached Canada. People in Hamilton and Toronto sold Christmas Seals to help build hospitals for people with TB.

Money raised from Christmas Seals are used in finding ways to tell people of the diseases, their causes and ways we can help.

The story of Christmas Seals is important. The seals were just as important all over the world then as they are in Alberta today. Christmas Seals are just one way we can help breathe better in the future.

Show someone you care. Sick Christmas Seals on your donation envelope or similar facsimile. You could win a trip for 2 anywhere in Air Canada's world! This season, join the Great Christmas Stick Up. Please donate to the Alberta Lung Association's Christmas Seal Campaign.

Everyone welcome to attend children's concert

Moon Lake News

By Alma Johnson

Quite a number of mothers and daughters are coming to the craft night at the hall. Blanche Cherrington showed the ladies the art of wheat weaving.

A retirement party in honor of Glenn Johnson was held Nov. 24 at the County of Parkland Tomahawk shop.

Ralph and Violet Teiford of Edmonton were weekend visitors at the homes of Bernie Town and Norm Johnson as well as her mother, Vida Town of the Shangri-La Lodge in Drayton Valley.

Glenn and Charlene Johnson, accompanied by Jim and Bev Hansen of Bluffton, attended the polled hereford shows at the Canadian Western Agribition last month.

Entwistle kindergarten class held a 'mom and tot' night Nov. 30.

The future of the Moon Lake hall will be the topic of discussion at a meeting Dec. 12, starting at 7:30 p.m. Members and non-members are urged to attend. If the doors are closed, it means no more senior citizens' suppers, no more ball tournaments, showers, funerals, etc.

Everyone is welcome to attend the annual children's Christmas concert to be held Sunday, Dec. 17 at 1 p.m. A craft and bake sale will also be held the same day.

Planning party more than making guest list

Submitted by AADAC Drayton Valley office
This is the first in a series which we hope will provide some useful hints about successfully entertaining over the holiday season.

This week our focus is on party planning.
Before the party

Planning a successful party includes more than making a guest list and stocking the liquor cabinet.

It includes keeping the festive spirit alive after the party is over by helping guests to avoid becoming traffic accident statistics when it is time to drive home.

During the Christmas season, be a good friend and considerate host. Be concerned that your friends get home safely.
Always serve food with alcohol

Festive snacks are not only a delicious addition to any party but can also slow the rate at which the body absorbs alcohol.

High-protein foods such as cheese and meats are especially good because they stay in the stomach longer.

A simple, easy and inexpensive high-protein appetizer to serve with alcohol is hard-boiled, pickled or deviled eggs.

Hors d'oeuvres with meat can include ham or sausage, biscuits, swedish meatballs and broiled chicken livers. Bite-sized pieces of cold cuts are a good budget suggestion.

A tray of crisp raw vegetables with a protein dip like cream cheese or sour cream is also good party fare.

Have several jiggers at the bar, so mixed drinks can be measured.

At an informal party, guests will probably mix their own drinks. If a jigger is handy, they very well may use it rather than pouring what seems to be the "right amount."

Also, inexpensive self-measuring one-ounce spouts can be purchased and placed on bottles.

Better still, consider a bartender, a person of discretion.

If you serve an alcoholic punch, make it with a non-carbonated base. Alcohol is absorbed by the body at a much faster rate when combined with a carbonated mixer such as ginger ale.

Have non-alcoholic beverages available

It's very likely some of your guests will not wish to drink an alcoholic beverage. Also, persons taking certain medicines should not consume alcohol. Have soft drinks, coffee or maybe a non-alcoholic punch available for them.

Don't force drinks on your guests. Under normal circumstances, the body can safely handle about one drink an hour.

Don't rush to refill their glasses the minute they become empty.

Stop serving alcohol about an hour before the party is to end. During the last hour of your party have coffee of some other non-alcoholic beverage available.

Neither coffee nor any other drink will help sober anybody up. Only time can do that. But by emphasizing non-alcoholic drinks toward the end of the party, you give your guests extra time to absorb the alcohol they have consumed.

Can we repair the sky?

After nearly a generation of debate, scientists now agree the ozone is under siege — that is slowly being destroyed by a versatile class of chemicals called chlorofluorocarbons (CFCs).

What can consumers do? They can become aware of products that contribute to ozone depletion and what can be done about them.

An estimated — and astonishingly — 16 per cent of all ozone destruction is caused by the venting of auto air-conditioning coolant during servicing. Accordingly, the most significant single step car owners can take is to insist on recycling when air conditioners are serviced. Consumers are also encouraged to not use do-it-yourself recharging kits. These will be banned completely by the end of 1989.

Consumers can make sure their new homes are insulated with ozone-safe agents. They can avoid buying five extinguishers that contain halon.

What can industry do?

Companies that make CFCs and halons can read the hand-writing on the wall. Top priority will have to be assigned to developing effective alternatives. Those that manufacture products in which CFCs have been eliminated should advertise that fact. Apart from essential medical applications, all aerosol products should no longer contain ozone-depleting chemicals.

What is government's role? Swift action to initiate more regulatory measures is a start.

The CFCs manufactured today won't even reach the stratosphere until the mid-'90s. The only responsible course is to pursue every measure possible. The potential consequences are too serious to do otherwise.

Tradition needs revitalization

"Christmas comes but once a year,
"Bringing lots of hope and cheer."

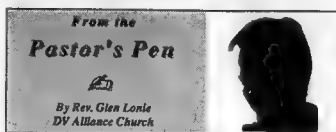

I still remember that little recitation which I, a nervous beginner stammered out at the church Christmas program.

Now that I am older and able to remember more Christmas times, I have occasion to question the validity of that rhyme.

Shopping, card-writing, gift-wrapping and banqueting often leave me exhausted and stuffed. Rather than lamenting that Christmas comes but once a year, I imagine how it would be if we restricted this production to every second year.

Then there is the matter of hope and cheer. Hope, in our society seems focused upon the selfish desire for new and better toys. All too often cheer comes only in the temporary euphoria of a bottle.

So am I suggesting Christmas is a tired tradition that needs to be retired? No; rather it is a tradition that needs to be revitalized.

Christmas will only bring us hope and cheer as we rediscover the meaning of Christmas.

Two thousand years ago God entered human history as one of us. When the angel appeared to Joseph he stated Mary would bear a Son and that they should call His name Immanuel, which means 'God with us'.

God with us! What a wonderful thought. For thousands of years God seemed so far off, so abstract, so unapproachable. But in the right time Jesus came. And in Jesus, God became human — physical, visible, tangible. He walked right into the mainstream of life. He touched us and allowed us to touch Him.

When the significance of this fact engages our hearts we will respond in joy and gratitude. Then the hope and cheer of Christmas will be ours throughout the year.

Seniors' crafts for sale

There may be no major Christmas bazaar planned for this festive season at the Shangri-La Lodge, but the seniors' crafts will be for sale just the same.

The bazaar at the lodge has been a regular event in Drayton Valley for many years, but due to the construction taking place, it has been postponed for a year.

A lack of parking space and the excavation of the surrounding yard were the reasons for the move. The tradition will be kept alive though.

Bev Reid, administrator at the lodge says the seniors will still be making the crafts and selling them just the same.

She said the proceeds from the sales would go to the seniors' social club, partly to pay for the supplies they need to make their crafts, and partly to pay for the operation of their trip bus.

There is a wide variety of handmade ornaments, wreaths, and gifts available for all tastes and styles.

Thank You!

We would like to thank the people who nominated us and the committee who chose us for "Small Business of the Year."

The award is very much appreciated and we will continue to support Drayton Valley and the community.

Yellowhead Report

Nothing new about federal tax

By Joe Clark, MP

If you are sitting in your living room as you read this, look around the room.

Just about everything you see was subjected to the 13.5 per cent federal sales tax, which has been in existence since 1924. Your television, the stereo, the sofa, the painting over the sofa, the coffee table and the carpet were all taxed. Or take a look out the window — it was taxed too.

If you are reading this at the kitchen table, you might be interested to know that federal sales tax was charged on most items in that room too: your fridge, stove and dishes...even the kitchen sink!

If you own a car, you paid federal sales tax on it, on the replacement parts you bought at the garage, and on the gasoline you just put in the tank.

The current federal sales tax even affects the price of some things not taxable. Take a close look at one of the apples in the fruit bowl on your kitchen counter.

Sales tax was not charged on the apple. But the farmer who grew the apple paid federal sales tax on the shovel he used to plant the tree, on the ladder he climbed to harvest the apple, and on the pickup truck he drove to take it to the market.

These costs get passed on, with the result the current tax adds about two per cent to the cost of basic groceries.

There is nothing new about federal sales taxes. The new goods and services tax is not going to drive up the price of everything by nine per cent for the simple reason it is going to replace an existing tax.

Obviously, the federal government would be a lot more popular if it just left the current tax alone and kept it hidden. That would be the right thing to do if we wanted to be higher in the public opinion polls, but the wrong thing for Canada, because the existing tax is a bad way to raise revenue.

In my next column I will explain why the existing federal sales tax must be changed.

Close natures nurtures understanding, not frustration

When I was a kid my mother drove me crazy. There are days she still does, but back then I had a plan.

First, to get away from home as much as possible I had to get my driver's licence — my ticket to freedom. We lived 20 miles from town and hanging around the hay shed just wasn't the same thrill as 'hanging out' with friends downtown.

The ultimate goal of my game plan was to go away to college. In the meantime, until my licence and college became actualities, part of my game plan was to drive my mother crazy — which I did on a regular basis.

I wasn't really a bad kid and mom was no worse than any other mother as perceived through the eyes of an all-knowing teenager.

Coffee With Chris

By Chris Kreitzer

However, there was a time when we reacted to each other like thunder and lightning.

The rebuke I heard most often, when she had exhausted all other rational means of communication, was: "When you grow up I hope you have a daughter just like you!"

At the time I didn't think that was much of a threat.

Today, I have a daughter...and she is just like me. Surprisingly, I still don't think it's much of a threat. Rather, it's an unexpected delight.

We are alike as two peas in a pod. No matter Rachel is only six, I feel as if finally there is someone who understands me. It's kind of fun to look in the mirror like that. She has the same quirks I do and then some uniquely her own.

There are days she drives me crazy too, but I have the distinct advantage of knowing why she drives me crazy.

Project will enhance lake's recreational opportunities

Environment Minister Ralph Klein and Drayton Valley MLA Tom Thurber have announced funding will be provided for construction of the Wizard Lake stabilization project.

The province has signed an agreement with the county of Leduc to provide a $150,300 grant for the project.

This project will benefit residents of both counties of Leduc and Wetaskiwin by providing enhanced recreational opportunities at Wizard Lake," Klein said.

The project is located 18 kilometres south of Calmar.

Work involves replacement of an undersized outlet culvert with an eight-metre-wide fixed crest weir and channel improvement to Conjugating Creek, the outlet of Wizard Lake.

The new weir will allow peak flood levels to recede more quickly reducing potential property damage along the lakeshore.

She can't help it.

Our natures are close to the same which lends itself to understanding, rather than major episodes of frustration. It's also made for some great times together.

For example: our latest adventure, our girls' night out, attending the k.d. lang concert. Both of us came home bursting with enthusiasm and a new thought as to what our next fashion statement should be.

Fred's only comment after looking from Rachel to me, was, "This is scary, Chris..." I guess he hadn't thought it possible lightning could strike twice.

Already, Fred's thinking ahead to when Rachel turns 16. Why is he so nervous?

Poinsettia popular gift

If you're planning on buying a holiday season's traditional poinsettia plant, be on the lookout for a variety of colors and arrangements.

People usually think of the red poinsettia, but the plant is also available in pink, creamy white or a marbled pink and cream. Also look for the attractive tri-color arrangement — a pot with one pink, one cream and one red poinsettia.

Something not everyone knows is the true flowers of the poinsettia aren't the colorful part of the plant. The flowers are actually the green and yellow structures at the top of each stem. The colorful bracts will last through the holiday season and with proper care will stay colorful for two or three months.

When you are buying a plant look at the true flowers. If they have fallen off, then the plant isn't as fresh as possible.

To care for a poinsettia, keep the plant in a bright location, but out of direct sunlight. Normal room temperature is suitable but the bracts will keep longer in cool conditions between 16 and 22 degrees Celsius.

Avoid drafty locations near a door or over heat registers. Water the poinsettia when the soil surface feels dry to the touch.

The foliage will also droop slightly. Never allow the plant to sit in water for any length of time. Low light levels, over- or under-watering and drafty conditions will cause the leaves to curl and fall off.

And poinsettias aren't poisonous, but white sap from the plant may cause skin irritations.

Christmas family dinner planned for this Saturday

Now that Highway 620 is paved to the Elk River Road and the MD has deemed Lodgepole a hamlet, we feel it's time to run a column in The Western Review to let everyone know we're alive and active out here!

The curling club is going full-tilt, with men's, women's and mixed leagues at it again. This year there is also a junior league playing every second Sunday. The first big 'spiel' of the year was the turkey and ham bonspiel Dec. 8 and 9. Other bonspiels are scheduled in 1990, so "stay tuned."

Halloween was a lot of fun. There was a costume party for the kids and a masquerade dance for the adults. Both of them were very successful.

On the 'political' side, there was a well-attended town hall meeting Nov. 1. MD of Braseau Reeve Henry Ronsau, the Yellowhead Planning Commission, the Lodgepole Community Association, as well as several residents met to discuss concerns.

Happy Birthday

Lodgepole News

By Bob Irwin

Some of the topics discussed were the re-thinking of the location of the proposed waste transfer station, the state (and possible upgrading) of the water and sewage system, signs indicating school bus stops and the improvement of communication between community and the MD.

There is a Christmas family dinner scheduled for Saturday, Dec. 16 at 7 p.m. Details can be found at the store, or contact Lynda McGregor. As well, a New Year's Eve dance is planned, with a deejay, door prizes, etc. Tickets can be purchased at the store.

The 4-H club has been busy with its bottle drive and has collected $176 to date. They are also planning to raise money with a gingerbread house raffle to be held in time for Christmas.

Welcome to the community and Barb Rowley and family who come to us from Ontario. We're sure you'll enjoy the community! After all, where else will you find a combination toboggan hill/rifle range (not at the same time, thank goodness) known affectionately as Whoopee Hill! Congratulations to Darlene Tuttle and Terry Berstad on the birth of a boy, and Danny and Donna Larson who matched this with a girl.

but without input from those in Lodgepole, it will be too short!

This is the first report from Lodgepole for the Review in a long time, so it is somewhat 'lengthy.' Hopefully in the future it will be considerably shorter.

We urge that if anyone has any contributions such as activities, visitors, announcements, new residents, etc., contact Sue Gwin at the store or Bob Irwin at 894-8888.

Avoid costly car repairs

If you own a fuel-injected vehicle, you can avoid costly repairs this winter.

A major mistake made during the cold months is putting methyl hydrate gas-line antifreeze in a fuel-injected vehicle.

This can cost you up to $800 to repair if your injectors clog up, according to a local service station owner.

He said manufacturers recommend using nothing, but if you feel you must use something, use isopropyl alcohol gas-line antifreeze.

The depth interval to be investigated is from 0 feet to 500 feet.

Notice is hereby given that should the examinations and surveys prove successful application and plans will be filed under provisions of the Water Resources Act for a licence to construct the necessary works to divert water in the amount stipulated above.

"School Age of Entry"

The Twin Rivers Board of Education and the Drayton Valley Roman Catholic Separate School District are presently exploring the following joint policy:

"The Boards of Education considers that the Age of Entry into formal schooling for grade one pupils is, in part, a determiner of future success in school. In accordance:

1. In 1990/91 children must be five on or prior to December 01, 1990 to be eligible for the ECS program.
2. In 1991/92 children must be five on or prior to September 1, 1991 to be eligible for the ECS program.
3. In 1991/92 children must be six on or prior to December 01, 1991 to be eligible for grade one.
4. In 1992/93 children must be six on or prior to December 1, 1992 to be eligible for grade one.
5. Students transferred in from other jurisdictions who are affected by the Age of Entry Policy will be permitted to attend Twin Rivers Schools and St. Anthony School.

Research on Age of Entry is conclusive in this area and the evidence is born out in our jurisdiction. Younger children:

- a) fail more often.
- b) experience a significantly higher need for special education programs.
- c) experience and demonstrate lower academic achievement accompanied by significantly more school adjustment problems.
- d) experience school adjustment and social adjustment problems that sometimes persist into adulthood.

Brain development specialists indicate that the child's brain is not sufficiently developed to be able to absorb high cognitive processes taught through the use of formal instruction before age seven to eight.

The child who is rushed into formal instruction will soon develop similar characteristics of the learning disabled child or will develop what has been described as 'learned helplessness.'

If you have concerns related to the proposed policy change, please contact your respective school jurisdiction.

'Walking in someone else's shoes'

A group of about 40 people experienced 30 hours of what most Third World citizens experience every day — hunger.

The Calvary Baptist Church in Drayton Valley organized a planned famine in an effort to raise funds for world hunger relief.

Over 40 junior and high school students, and some adults participated in a 30-hour famine which began Dec. 1 and ended Dec. 2.

Participants received sponsorships from the public for the famine and all funds raised will go directly to World Vision.

Tim Lees, who helped organize the famine, said the event gave participants the opportunity to walk in the shoes of starvation victims.

"We walked 30 hours in someone else's shoes."

"The biggest single aspect of the famine is that it makes people aware of what other people in the world deal with every day," Lees said.

During the famine participants were involved in educational programs and discussions on world hunger along with different types of activities and games.

"The people gained a sense of appreciation. The kids said 'I'm making some sacrifices here' — they gained an understanding that there is something we can do," Lees said.

Lees said the famine was a way in which to counteract the part-time samaritan mentality.

Make your own farm first aid kit

Being prepared can mean saving a limb or life when an accident occurs, and Alberta Agriculture's farm safety program hopes farm families will take time to prepare by making their own farm first aid kit.

The farm safety program has recently written a brochure to help farm families plan and put together first aid kits. The brochures will be available from Alberta Agriculture district offices and the farm safety office in Edmonton.

Necessary items for a first

"What bothers me about the Canadian attitude is we can write a cheque and feel good about ourselves," Lees said, adding the famine participants were "getting involved in doing something and making the sacrifices themselves."

Last year, 13 famine partisans raised $1,300 for World Vision. Lees felt assured this year's total would surpass funds raised in 1988.

The kit are listed, as well as how to do the packaging. A condensed St. John Ambulance first aid manual, an occupational health and safety injury record book and an inventory of the kit's contents also should be included in the kit.

The brochure also discusses how to save a limb for possible reattachment.

Buckle up: save bucks

By Susan Moscicki

Buckling up is the law again following an Alberta Court of Appeal ruling that overturned a Feb. 2 lower court decision indicating the law infringed on constitutional rights to freedom.

A three-member appeal court panel decided Dec. 11 there are sufficient facts available showing seat belts reduce loss of life in fatal accidents to support a mandatory seat belt legislation.

"We will be enforcing it," said RCMP Staff Sgt. Jim Humphrey, "but we're not going on a seat belt blitz in the first four days."

The police will be allowing some time time for people to "digest" the new legislation, according to Humphrey.

"We are one of the few provinces that didn't have the legislation."

"I support the wearing of seatbelts," he said. "It lessens the chance of injury or worse."

The only place in Canada that does not have a mandatory seat belt law in effect is the Yukon.

The original Alberta seat-belt law came in July 1, 1987, and was struck-down in February when Court of Queen's Bench Justice A.M. Lutz quashed the traffic ticket (for not wearing a seat belt) of Kim Maier, of Calgary.

According to the Edmonton Sun, Maier vowed not to wear seat belts as long as there is a law requiring him to do so, and hopes to launch a Supreme Court of Canada challenge if he can raise the money.

The County of Wetaskiwin has agreed to enter into a cost-sharing agreement with Drayton Valley for the operational deficits of the arena and pool.

The terms of agreement will be finalized and presented to council for approval.

Council ratified the garbage collection contract between the town of Drayton Valley and V.J. Disposals Ltd. in last week's meeting.

Several local business owners recently signed a letter, forwarded to town council by the Pembina Institute, agreeing with the placement of a recycling van and storage shed on the north side of the curling rink.

The Twin Rivers school board has approved a draft of a new bus drivers' contract.

The move was brought about to bring Twin Rivers drivers previously under contract to the counties of Parkland and Leduc under one agreement.

Four portable class rooms have been approved by Alberta Education for Eldorado school.

The Twin Rivers school board expects that they will be operational for the 1990-1991 school year.

The Twin Rivers school board has approved the purchase of a school bus to replace the old one at Frank Maddock which is felt to be unreliable.

The new bus, is to be bought from a contract driver in the division and will be used to transport students to extra-curricular activities within Twin Rivers schools.

Night fire endangers 'old' hotel

By Shaun Polczer

A fire at the back of the old Drayton Valley Hotel came perilously close to burning the landmark structure down last Monday night.

An old wooden veranda in the back alley next to the rear entrance of the tavern began burning at about 10:40 p.m., causing an estimated $2,000 damage.

"If we had been 10 or 15 minutes it would have been a lot worse."

Firemen from the Drayton Valley fire department had little difficulty in dousing the flames.

"We received the call at 10:40, and six minutes later the fire was under control," said fire chief Sheldon Fuson.

He noted the potential for a major blaze was high.

"If we had been 10 or 15 minutes," said Fuson, "it would have been a lot worse."

The exact cause of the blaze is unknown, but arson has not been ruled out.

The fire department and RCMP are currently conducting a joint investigation to determine exactly what happened.

Only five minutes before, said Fuson, firemen responded to a fire that was burning in a garbage bin behind the Twin Dragons restaurant in the same alley. There were no reported injuries from either incident.

Provincial game permit restriction miffs outfitter

By Paul Cudla

The provincial wildlife decision to restrict access to non-resident game permits will drive some outfitters out of business, according to a local outfitter.

Outfitters who guide Americans and other non-resident hunters will face an imposed restriction on game permits.

A new bidding system will also be implemented which calls for outfitters to bid against each other for individual hunting permits. A Dec. 15 deadline was set for reception of the full amount of bids.

"Basically it's trying to wipe out the small outfitter," Charlie Kessler, who operates CD Guiding, says.

Kessler, who has been outfitting since 1981, feels the provincial limitation on permits will lead to decreased tourism revenue and a large increase in hunting prices.

Non-resident permits were previously available from Alberta Fish and Wildlife offices.

Now with the bidding system in place on a limited amount of permits, outfitters are left wondering whether they will be able to operate a business in the new year.

Kessler said he had to turn away eight American clients already this year because he cannot assure his bids for permits will be successful. He is also not in the position to refer his clients to other outfitters (which he has done in the past) because he is unsure which outfitters will be operating in 1990.

"I'm lucky enough to have steady clients. I'm one of the fortunate ones," Kessler said, adding his base of reliable customers is saving him from going out of business.

He also has the luxury of operating his outfitting business as a source of secondary income.

"These guys who do it full-time are going to be in trouble. A lot of people have taken money and invested it in their outfitter companies:

Now what are they going to do?"

The bidding system being installed also causes concerns for outfitters who could lose out on permit bids by as little as one dollar or in extreme instances, one cent and therefore lose their business outright.

The move to limit non-resident hunting permits was made in an effort for wildlife conservation and is based on data collected on non-resident and non-

JP appointments rescinded

Four local RCMP members have been affected by the recent provincial decision to rescind justice of the peace (JP) appointments.

A spokesman at the Attorney General's office said police officers do not need all the powers of a justice of the peace.

Local Staff Sgt. Jim Humphrey said "nothing will change, whatsoever" because of the decision. JP appointments will be "removed and replaced with Commissioner of Oaths appointments."

Humphrey said the police were JPs for the swearing of information with respect to traffic violations, and affidavits. Under the new legislation, he said, when the tickets are sworn, just a Commissioner of Oath's signature will be required rather than a JP's.

The four local officers will remain JPs until the new appointments come through.

Fallis man fined $600

By Susan Moscicki

Edward Mark Borle, of Fallis, pleaded guilty in Evansburg Provincial Court last week to driving with undue care and attention and a $600 fine was levied.

Borle was involved in a two-vehicle collision that claimed the lives of three Drayton Valley residents June 3.

Three Criminal Code charges: impaired driving, refusing to provide a blood sample and operating a motor vehicle in a manner dangerous to the public, were withdrawn and no driver's licence suspension was ordered.

Margaret Doreen Henriksen, 32, six-year-old daughter Laura and four-month-old baby Dallin were pronounced dead at the scene of the accident on Highway 22, about six-and-a-half kilometres off Highway 16.

Kelvin Henriksen, husband and father of the deceased, said he was glad it was all over.

"The police in Evansburg and the traffic analyst did one heck of a job."

"I feel satisfied with the judgement made. A lot of remorse was shown by Mark Borle and his wife. It's a hard thing to get over for me and Mark."

resident alien harvest of wildlife.

Recently the 335-member POAA (Professional Outfitters Association of Alberta) voted to support the policy handed down by the provincial government.

Kessler considers the vote a measure of coerced cooperation.

In fact, at an April POAA meeting 98 per cent of the members voted against the bid system.

Alberta Transportation announces restrictions

By Paul Cudla

The Alberta Transportation decision to limit trucking shifts to 15 hours will not have a profound effect on local trucking companies, but may cause scheduling difficulties and inevitably money.

The recently announced shift restriction will take effect Jan. 1 and specifies that truckers only drive 13 hours on a 16-hour shift. Previously, trucking shifts within the province were unlimited.

The Alberta Hours of Service Regulation has a main objective of increasing traffic safety and cutting down on accidents caused by weary truck drivers.

Carol Turner, manager of J&A Trucking, said the shift requirement "doesn't really affect us a whole lot" because the company itself limits shifts to 10 hours.

"If they work a 16-hour day that is very unusual.

"Safety-factor wise it's probably a good idea. It's a good safety precaution," Turner said.

Turner added though, "you don't really hear of that many big truck accidents."

Quebec, Ontario, and now Alberta are the only three provinces which have integrated all 16 National Safety Code standards.

The emphasis on safety is costing trucking companies a fair amount of money and Turner estimated installing the safety measures has cost J&A Trucking "tens of thousands of dollars."

"The day of the slipshod operation is dying. What it is doing is it's weeding - it's costly to the little guy."

But, Turner added, the safety measures are good selling features and are positive steps.

Red McIsaac, president of White-Pass Trucking which runs about 25 trucks from Drayton Valley, is also pleased with the emphasis on safety but feels there are some problems with installing the policy.

"There is a definite concern about it, wondering whether we can enforce it as well as we'd like to," McIsaac said.

McIsaac said he would like to see the rules enforced unilaterally in order to ensure a "level playing field."

"If our competition doesn't do it, it sure would put us at a disadvantage."

He added some drivers will most likely "bend the rules" initially which would be hard to monitor.

"If a driver has been on a 15-hour shift and is a one-hour drive away from seeing his wife and kids, and we tell him to stay the night, he will most likely want to drive that hour."

A scheduling difficulty could also arise from the shift restriction according to McIsaac, as customers who are working with deadlines may not understand the limitation.

"I can see that we could have problems with our customers over it."

"A lot of this is hard to live with at first but is necessary."

Breton high top priority

By Shaun Polczar

Expansion and modernization of the Breton high school is the first priority of the Twin Rivers school board.

At its regular meeting at Breton elementary school last Thursday night, the board indicated it would be requisitioning the provincial government by the end of this March for a 1991 construction date.

This would see the project, which includes a new gymnasium, an indoor swimming pool, and other modernizations, completed for the 1992 school year.

Other priorities include a new elementary school for Drayton Valley as well as portable classrooms and a modernization of Eldorado school.

The portables have already been approved by Alberta Education, and trustees hope to see them on site at Eldorado by September.

It is the timing of the other projects that will be tricky for the board.

Requisitions for capital projects slated for 1991 construction dates must be submitted to the provincial government for approval by March 31, 1990.

Twin Rivers intends to ask for the Breton high project as its first priority, and for the new elementary school second.

If only one project is approved for this year, the Drayton Valley elementary school proposal will be resubmitted in March 1991.

Dr. Al Anderson, superintendent of the Twin Rivers school board, said it is possible both projects could be approved at the same time if the need could be demonstrated to the government.

Should the new elementary school be put on hold, the trustees realize there will be a crunch for space in Drayton Valley as the population booms.

Irregardless, planning will proceed as if the project was on stream for this year.

With this in mind, a motion was passed to ask three architects to design plans for the new structure.

As well, a motion was carried for Twin Rivers to make a request to Drayton Valley town council for a land reserve in town for a 1991 construction date.

A motion was also passed to establish a construction committee to oversee the groundwork in constructing the portables at Eldorado.

Trustees Jim Reid and Colene Davis will head the committee.

Lord's Prayer good enough for board... why not students?

How many Canadians know the exact words to O Canada?

If someone bothered to find out, the results would likely be rather shocking.

That's why it's so encouraging to see that at least one Drayton Valley school teacher has decided it's something her class should know.

Iris Tufin, a teacher at Eldorado elementary, thought it would be a good idea for her students to sing O Canada, just for the purpose of learning the words.

Just across town, it's shocking to learn students at Frank Maddock high haven't sung O Canada for 20 years. It's also something students at H.W. Pickup and St. Anthony's don't sing on a regular basis.

Students at Evergreen elementary sing O Canada at their monthly assembly.

Maybe it's time the respective school boards introduced the singing of O Canada into the systems.

And, at the same time, see to it that students started saying the Lord's Prayer.

Prior to their monthly board meetings, both the Twin Rivers and Catholic school boards open their meetings with the Lord's Prayer.

If it's good enough for them, why aren't the students following their lead?

Hopefully the Twin Rivers school board will follow the lead being set by Iris Tufin and have their schools, at least at the elementary level, sing O Canada on a daily basis. At least it's a start.

Tower Acres family home burns down before Christmas

By Susan Moscicki

A family from Tower Acres will be celebrating Christmas in their hardware store following a blaze that totally torched their family home approximately nine miles north of Tomahawk Dec. 11.

Ben Richter said he, his family and three of his neighbor's young children were in the home sleeping when his 13-year-old son woke up and saw flames leaping outside the window. "They all left the house with no shoes on," he said. No one was injured.

"There was no fire inside the house (at that point), just smoke. There were flames outside. I was putting it out with the garden hose when it quit on me."

The two-storey wooden structure was completely destroyed.

Evanburg RCMP Const. Ken Taylor said the cause and damage estimate is undetermined to date. Police and a provincial fire investigator are investigating.

Richter said he had no insurance on the home, but the community has been very supportive. "When we think of it, it brings a tear to my pretty quick."

Diane Cass, Richter's sister-in-law, said a benefit dance will be held for the family in January, and she is also accepting donations on their behalf. She can be contacted at 339-2327.

Violet Grove home burns

A six-year-old child attempting to light a fire in a wood stove caused about $8,000 damage to the family residence in Violet Grove Dec. 8.

The young child ended up setting fire to a garbage can, causing extensive damage to the kitchen and heat and smoke damage throughout the residence.

Her mother, Kim Cotton, was not in the home at the time. She had no insurance on the contents in the rented dwelling.

Signal lights budgeted for Members of town council requested in a meeting last week that $1,449 be budgeted for in the 1990 operations budget to purchase street lights on the traffic signal poles.

Purchasing the lights will save about $760 per year in power bills. The cost of the lights will be recovered in less than two years.

Union president Cal Wittal and Mayor Tom McGee signed the two-year contract.

CUPE workers and town sign contract

A two-year contract has been ratified by the town of Drayton Valley and CUPE Local 2515 after perhaps the fastest-ever negotiations.

The rate of increase agreed upon was about four per cent per year. The contract is for a term of two years beginning Jan. 1, 1990 and ending Dec. 31, 1991.

Cal Wittal, union president, and Darcy Bryant, recording secretary were in attendance at last week's council meeting to jointly sign the agreement with council.

Councillors Howard Olsen and Charlie Miner were opposed to ratifying the agreement.

Subject was distance learning, not money problems

Dear Editor,

In the Dec. 12 issue of The Western Review an article entitled 'Exchange program may solve woes' appeared as a result of my being interviewed by one of your reporters, Shaun Polzer. It was a very exciting and dramatic article, not to mention sensational. I could find only one fault — it was almost totally inaccurate.

The title itself reflects a negative situation that was in no way conveyed to the reporter. Our program is upbeat and has nothing to do with solving woes. The title may be catchy, but it is totally misleading. The first paragraph again mentions 'money woes' and the second 'cash-starved.' Both terms are absurdities and were never mentioned in the interview. The subject of the interview was distance education, not money problems.

The remainder of the article is also inaccurate. The Breton high school belongs to a consortium of 13 schools developing distance education — a method of delivering education over a distance by means of technology.

Our consortium chairman, is involved in several aspects of a Japanese program and has contact with the University of Hiroshima. But there is no association with Hiroshima high school. I'm not even sure such a school exists.

Moreover, Breton high school does not have 20 Japanese students registered to take classes in Breton. This is a future possibility. There are presently Japanese students attending high schools within our consortium, eg. Jasper. There is also no fixed amount of tuition at this time. It is being negotiated and indications are that it will be $5,000 per year and $450 per month room and board.

...arrangements exist for students to travel...

Nothing was said about students coming from Europe. The truth is that through our consortium, arrangements exist for our students to travel or take classes in various European countries under the supervision of a member of our consortium based at David Thompson high school.

The article suggests that learning centres are being set up in Japan and Western Europe. This is not true. Our distance learning centres are set up in the 13 Alberta schools within our restricted to communications between the 13 Alberta schools within our consortium.

Finally, there are no Japanese students living in Breton or attending Breton high school at this time. We intend to encourage Japanese students to come here in the near future through the consortium, but for Breton high, the planning is only in its first stages.

The second to the last paragraph is inaccurate. A student from Breton can take classes in Japan while living with a Japanese family, but that student would not be taking it over long distance telephone.

The one credible statement in the article is the last. I am quoted as saying: 'It's an incredible revolution for education.' That is an accurate quote and I stand by that.

Distance education will bring quality education to students throughout the province however small the school delivering that education. And that's exciting in itself.

James Musson, Principal
Breton high school

Make sure people know who was responsible, says reader

Dear Editor,
Here's a little information for you.

Remember how the school taxes went up this year? Consider this:

The Conservative government of Alberta made a new municipality out of pieces taken from the counties of Parkland, Leduc, Wetaskiwin, and ID 14 and named it Brazeau. It doesn't contain many people but it has enormous development in oil, gas and power.

Then a new school district was made with the same

Dear Editor,
Sunday afternoon my husband found a Drayton Valley Respect for Life brochure stuck in our front door. The brochure contains highly sensitive, written material and pictures.

This has nothing to do with my view and opinion on the abortion issue, but it has to do with the method of distributing this kind of material. If someone would have had the decency to ring our doorbell to make sure this ended up in my husband's or my hands, we would have been happy to take the brochure.

Our children (5, 8 and 10 years of age) were expected home any minute, and I call it luck they were not the ones to find it.

I phoned the number listed on the brochure, introduced myself and gave my view in regards to the method of distribution. I was told I should discuss this with my children as it is important they know, and after a polite discussion the phone went dead while I was talking.

My husband and I, as responsible parents, would like to be the ones to decide when to discuss this cause (or any other one for that matter) with our children, and I certainly know I would not discuss (the way the brochure does) the different ways of tearing an unborn

I know those figures don't add up to $367.7 million. They add up to $368.2 million, and that's what the government department gave me.

All the taxes on that assessment had to be made up by the residents.

The new school district has only seven schools (four from Parkland, two from Breton and one from Lindale). Parkland still has 24 schools. All the schools involved were paid for by last year's taxes. You may figure out how much the corporations are saving in taxes by looking at this year's tax bill.

Although the government had all the figures at their disposal, they assured the school boards there would be no loss in revenue for them in the division. They might even gain! And if they did lose the Conservative government would make it up. You may laugh here. Look at your tax bill.

I understand the same corporations are after the provincial government to exempt them from paying taxes on machinery and equipment. Guess who'll be left to make up the loss?

It may interest you to know that although the taxation assessment in the new municipality went up from $367.5 million to $423 million the residents still got shafted for a five per cent increase in school taxes.

Think about it — and this time make sure you understand who was responsible for the rise in your school taxes.

Little guys quick, but big guys crafty

It was the big shiny hockey opener of the year.

After waiting through a long hot summer, and an equally frustrating fall, it was time.

Time to lace up the skates that is, and go for the first skate of the season.

Like humble pilgrims we threw our sticks over our shoulders, slung our booties over the blade, put pucks in our pockets, and headed down to the rink with humble hearts and hungry hands — to where it all began.

The outdoor hockey rink really is a microcosm of life.

Who can forget the sheer determination it takes as a youngster to make it from one side of the arena to the other?

It is a landmark moment in life, like learning how to walk for the first time.

And here we were again, years later, as if it was only yesterday.

The ice was new, but the sky was just like it was all those years ago when we were first baptised with snow behind our ears and on our knees.

We were ready to be reborn again.

The wind was blowing strong, forming drifts across the red line as we laced the skates and took to the ice.

The weather was miserable and cold, but it what did it matter?

It didn't take long before we were challenged to a friendly game by two other hardy souls who were already there, waiting.

They couldn't have been more than 12-years-old.

After clearing the surface of snow, we decided upon mutually agreeable, easy-to-understand rules.

No slapshots, no raising the puck, and the first to score 10 won.

Even though there was the odd slap, the odd raise,

Comment

By Shaun Polcer

nobody complained, no enforcement was required to govern our match.

It was diplomacy in action, but our reasonableness didn't temper the ferocity of our competition.

Imagine my surprise when a pre-pubescent school kid was trying to take all 200 pounds of me into the boards and steal the puck.

Talk about equality. I don't know if it made him feel older, or myself feel younger.

In grudging respect, I curbed my urge to merely pick him up off his feet and move him out of my way.

The little guys were quick, but the big guys were crafty. After going down 7-1, we finally managed to unlock the secret to their defence, and managed to tie it all up at nine.

It was sudden death. All or nothing. There was no turning back.

I grabbed the puck and moved up the right side boards, drawing the defence away from my winger.

A deft little pass over to the middle, and that was all she wrote, as my teammate potted the puck around a sprawled goaltender who was only four feet tall.

With rosy cheeks and reddened ears, we thanked them for the game smug with victory, and left the ice to be covered by the blowing snow once more.

Light-up tour enjoyed by local seniors

Forty-five seniors participated in last week's senior citizens' Christmas light-up tour.

Seniors at the Shangri La Lodge, Wishing Well Apartments and the Lezure Lea participated in the fourth annual event which took about three hours to complete.

Dan and Joan Anderson donated their bus (No. 712) and the Shangri-La Lodge bus was also used to accommodate wheelchairs and seniors with walkers. Dan Siben volunteered his time to drive the lodge bus.

Management at the Westwind Motor Inn restaurant provided coffee and Christmas goodies for the seniors.

The event is organized yearly by Brenda and Danny Thompson.

Caps split home and home

By Shaun Polczer

The Drayton Valley Oil Capitals split a home-and-home series against the Hobbema Hawks in Heritage Jr. 'B' hockey action on the weekend.

The Oil Caps won convincingly 7-4 at the sports centre Friday night, before dropping the second game 7-5 Sunday afternoon in Hobbema.

The Hawks went up 2-0 in the first period Friday night, before Colin Tuckwood put the Caps on the scoreboard with a goal at 10:24.

In the second period however, Drayton exploded for four goals to take a 5-2 lead.

Dwayne Lyda answered for two of those goals, including the winner, and assisted on another by Jason Trentchuk, while Adrian Agenous added the other to give the Caps a commanding lead going into the third period.

The Hawks turned it on in the third, peppering Caps goalie Norm Malo with 19 shots.

It was to no avail however, as the Caps' Tuckwood potted his second goal of the night at 7:09 of the third to give the Caps a 6-2 cushion before Travis Hauger of the Hawks closed the gap to 6-3 at 15:53.

Rob Nien closed the scoring for Drayton Valley at 16:48 while Hobbema added a late marker at 19:17 to make the final 7-5.

It was a strong show for the Oil Capitals, especially considering they were outshot 40-26 through the affair, obtaining some solid goaltending from Norm Malo. Sunday, the Caps went up 1-0 on a goal by Len Johnson before Hobbema came back to tie it at 1-1 after the first period.

Mike Waldron made it 2-1 for Drayton Valley before the Hawks came back with two unanswered goals to take the lead.

The Caps' Keith Sandstrom made it 3-3 going into the third period.

The Caps tried to hold on in the third, but couldn't stop Hobbema from going up 6-3 on two quick goals early in the period.

Dylan Putzenburger brought the Caps to within one to make it 5-4, but the Hawks restored their two-goal cushion right after.

The Oil Caps are now 4-10.

Jason Trentchuk brought the Caps close again, scoring with 4:56 left in the game, but Hobbema added another to make the final 7-5.

The Oil Caps' coach Grant MacDonald felt his team played well enough on the weekend to win both games.

"Friday we scored on our chances, but Sunday we weren't finishing off around the net," he said.

He felt that in trying to catch Hobbema in the third period of Sunday's game cost the Caps defensively, allowing the Hawks to put it away.

Basketball teams unlucky in initiation

The Frank Maddock high school team took to the court for the first time against Beaumont high school Dec. 13 and that day turned out to be definitely unlucky.

The girls' FMHS Amazons put forth an impressive effort as they were narrowly defeated by the Beaumont girls 35-29.

Coach Kristin Callander said she was "pleased with the girls" in their initial game.

Both the girls' and boys' basketball teams at Frank Maddock are trying to establish programs which ask for three-year commitments from the players.

"We're getting better each day. The girls are starting to learn defensive and offensive strategies," Callander said.

The girls' and boys' teams both have the burden of starting basically from scratch as the teams are mostly comprised of Grade 10s.

The real horror show began when the boys team took on the Beaumont boys and were clearly over-matched.

The FMHS boys dropped a scary 109-49 decision against Beaumont.

The Beaumont boys were flying high against FMHS.

The Amazons lost a close one.

H.W. Pickup gets new coach

In appreciation:

By Paul Cudde

The H.W. Pickup senior boys basketball team is set to defend its Twin Rivers title with a new head coach.

Scott Davies is taking the reins of the boys team and in his first year of teaching, he is accepting the challenge of his first year as a coach.

"I enjoy dealing with the kids as a coach on a school basis; it's more on a one-to-one level," Davies says.

In his first year as basketball coach, Davies says he will stress "sportsmanship and a love for the sport" along with heightening general athletics.

The basketball season started Dec. 12 with tryouts, and will run until the middle of March. H.W. Pickup's first tournament will be Jan. 13-14.

Thus far, Davies is impressed with the talent trying out for the team.

"We've got some super kids.

"At this age level it's hard to teach the kids a lot of strategy, but this year, because they're pretty good, I'll be able to teach a lot of offensive plays."

Davies added the senior boys basketball team will emphasize full-court presses and fast breaks, two aspects of basketball which may be more suited for high school basketball.

Due to the skill inherent in the senior boys, Davies plans to take the team to a number of tournaments in the area this year.

Davies graduated from the U of A in 1987, and played basketball at high school and university.

"It's a really competitive, fast-paced game. I really enjoy it and that's the main thing."

The 12 new NLS lifeguards.

Locals learn realities of lifeguarding

Twelve local residents found out the glamorous portrayal of lifeguards can be quite inaccurate.

Mitch Carter has been running a national lifeguard service course since Sept. 27 which runs for four hours once a week. The course has introduced a group of 12 to the non-appealing side of lifeguarding.

"It takes a lot of work and not a lot of people have it. They get to understand the realities of the job. It's not just lying around looking at the opposite sex," Carter said.

Carter, Level III lifeguard instructor, runs the national lifeguard service (NLS) about every two years as "it takes that long to get enough people" enrolled.

The lifeguard course teaches students general guarding procedures along with daily operations of a pool. Graduates of the course are eligible to lifeguard at any pool across Canada.

Carter said students of the course learn "dedication and maturity" along with the skills of a lifeguard.

Students of NLS must have a current bronze cross, current standard first aid, current CPR and must be 16 years-old.

The 12 new Canadian lifeguards are: Pauline

Mayan, Leslie Schultz, Kevin Thomas, John Jones, Brent Baldry, Cindy Berezowski, Veronica Marten, Derk Unterschultz, Georgianne Burke, Lorri Wanship, Shannon Bredin, Michelle Townsend.

Ban enacted on bear parts trading

A partial clampdown on the sale of black bear parts by the Alberta government will help stop poaching of the animal but will not eliminate the offense according to a local wildlife officer.

Fish and Wildlife Officer Fred Kreiser said the enacted regulations "will help" but added "it will take a long time to curb it."

"The people involved in the sale of these parts have already established a market for them...if it's an opportune way to make a dollar it's going to be hard to exclude them from that market," Kreiser said.

Recently, Wildlife Minister Leroy Fjordbotten announced that regulations had been set in place which prohibited the sale of black bear parts for anything other than the traditional trade in bear hides.

The announcement means hunters who had been making sizable profits from selling bear parts like claws, and gall bladders to the Orient would be banned. The bear parts are used in the Orient as aphrodisiacs and for medicinal purposes.

"Trafficking in wildlife parts has existed for years and years — just because all of a sudden it's illegal isn't going to stop it," Kreiser said.

The new Wildlife Act introduced April 1, 1987, made selling black bear parts without a permit legal in Alberta.

Kreiser said trafficking in bear parts from this area is minimal. The black bear population on the other hand, is substantial.

In 1988, the total amount of black bears killed legally in the two zones Kreiser is in charge of totalled 440. Hunters must abide by a four black bear per-year limit.

Committee wants ban on guns

A committee formed at the engineering school (University of Montreal) is seeking a ban on semi-automatic guns in Canada after the recent massacre of 14 women.

According to the Edmonton

Santas' helpers are needed

Volunteers are needed to sort and fill the hampers that will be distributed by Santas Anonymous this year. Organizer Linda Thompson says volunteers are needed Dec. 21-22-23 starting about 9 a.m. daily in the Legion Hall.

Early indications are that Santas Anonymous will reach record totals this year.

As of last week names of 72 families and 146 kids had been received.

Both toy boxes and cash cans are located around town.

Journal, the committee has drafted a petition for circulation across the country asking for the current ban on the ownership of automatic firearms extended to cover semi-automatic or modified weapons.

The spokesman for the group, Alain Perrault, was quoted in the Journal as saying that a gunman with a non-automatic weapon probably would not have been able to kill as many people (as Mark Lepine, 25, did with his Sturm Ruger semi-automatic .233-calibre rifle).

First line of defense

The Alberta government will continue funding to seed test canola for the virulent blackleg of canola fungus.

Alberta Agriculture will pay the first $20 for each canola sample submitted for the blackleg test. Producers will pay the remaining cost of the test. This program is retroactive to Sept. 1, 1989.

Prevention is the first line of defense against the infectious fungus that reduces crop yield. One measure is to ensure canola seed is free of blackleg. This should be confirmed by a certificate.

Master plan suggests press, public be allowed in

It may not be long before The Western Review is allowed to cover recreation board meetings again.

The new recreation master plan suggests the public and the press may be allowed to attend recreation board meetings.

According to recreation director Paul Nielsen, the board has discussed the possibilities and most of the members want to try it. He also says it's the direction town council has indicated it wants to go.

It was two-and-a-half years ago when the recreation board, supported by council, took steps to bar both the public and the press from attending its meetings.

Council has approved the terms of reference included in the master plan. It goes back to the recreation board for their input.

Keeping up with changing times

By Shaun Polczar

A new computer lab at the Pembina Educational Consortium will help to keep the institution abreast with the changing times.

"The new lab will help to maintain the level of instruction at or above the current business standard," says executive director Joe MacLellan.

The new lab, which cost over $30,000, was officially opened Dec. 5.

MacLellan says the new computers are upgraded IBM compatible, employing an MS DOS system which operates on an 8286 chip.

In layman's terms, it means the machines are four times faster and more powerful than the current business standard equipment.

"It's very good equipment," says MacLellan.

He expects the new machines will help to keep the consortium on the cutting edge for the next five years.

The lab is currently being used to teach computerized accounting, a full time program being taught through NAIT.

A total of 15 students are taking the course which is being taught by a NAIT professor and two local accountants.

Consortium plans to extend courses offered

MacLellan says the new gear means students can rest assured they are receiving the best quality education available.

He says the consortium plans to expand the number of courses it can offer to include secretarial, and other business courses such as word processing, which will increase the viability of the institution for the future.

"It will help increase the number and variety of courses available," he said.

Response from the community has been strongly positive, as shown by the popularity of the accounting program.

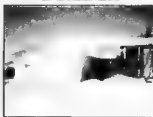

MacLellan noted enrolments at the consortium are on track to top last year's, which was a record, and that graduates from the institution enjoy high placement rates.

'Babes in Toyland' takes 1st prize

The winners of the Chamber of Commerce light-up contest were decided last week, and first prize winners were awarded $100, with stuffed 'Rigby' toys going to the second runners-up in each category.

In the town residences category, Brian Rennison on 49B St. took first place, and Garry Capaniuk on 49 St. came in second.

The Royal Bank claimed top spot in the businesses category, with IGA in second place.

Ken Mulyk, approximately eight miles north of town won the $100 first place prize for rural residences, and second place went to Wally and Fay Kalischuk on Poplar Ridge Road.

Brightest light now half-way

With less than a week to go, the Drayton Valley Association for Community Living (former Beehive) has achieved over half of its goal in the second annual brightest lights campaign.

So far, over $1,200 has been raised to help with the construction of a new vocational facility for the developmentally handicapped.

The goal of this year's campaign is to top the $2,000 mark set in last year's lightup.

Every $10 donated lights one light on the association's Christmas tree located in front of the Pembina Consortium.

In the local business competition, Pembina Resources is edging out Amoco by a small margin.

Approximately 123 lights have been lit on the tree so far, but many more are needed to make this year's campaign a success.

Van Ember legacy will live on

By Sue Kenyon

The Van Ember farm has quieted down in the last few years. Linda Van Ember doesn't cook meals for 25 people anymore nor does the family milk 30 head of cattle. But they are getting recognition for all they've done.

The Van Embers will be receiving the Northlands Farm Family Award in Edmonton July 24. The award comes through Edmonton Northlands and will be presented during Klondike Days.

The Berrymoor farm has been in the Van Ember family since Harvey Van Ember's father bought it approximately 50 years ago. At that time the farm consisted of 160 acres. Today it is 800.

The award Linda and Harvey are being honored with is for both agricultural and community involvement, which the two seem to blossom at naturally.

To list all the Van Embers have been involved in and responsible for in Berrymoor and district, is impossible. Even they themselves appear to have a hard time remembering everything they've helped out with.

Harvey, though, has been director of the Lindale hall. He worked on a Cat for three weeks helping with the installation of sewers in 1958. Both belong to the cemetery association in Warburg; both are members of the Lindale school association. And that is just to a list a few programs they enjoy.

Linda and Harvey have raised four children on the farm: three boys and a girl. Son Hal lives on the farm and looks forward to someday taking over the farm.

When will Harvey turn the operation over to son Hal? It's a question without an answer. Father and son just grin at each other.

Linda can remember the days when the kids were growing up.

"We were milking 30 head of cattle and there would be no less than 13 cars in the drive. We were making meals for about 25 people." That was at the time the farm had 300 pigs along with all the cattle.

Hal snickers when he tells how his mom and dad have fun these days. He says instead of getting out the riding lawn mower, they take out the push one.

When asked why, mom and dad Van Ember make a joke but then seriously add there are some places you can't get at with the big mower.

Another project Harvey undertook, for perhaps the fun of it, was painting the entire barn by hand.

"It took me about four days," he says.

Harvey built the house the Van Embers live in today, and his son reminds him of the 10 others he helped his neighbours build.

Harvey could easily have been a carpenter or furniture maker if farming hadn't have been so good to him. The house is full of beautifully hand-crafted cabinets and tables Harvey does in his "spare time."

The Van Ember legacy will not erode over time. Their history has been carefully documented in the history book From Forests to Grain Fields.

From forests to grain fields...and garden — just another example of the award-winning family's many projects.

The Van Ember farm in Berrymoor has seen some major changes over the last 50 years. This is how it looks today.

Considerable variations

Land values have gone up in all provinces. However, there are considerable variations between provinces and within each province. Thus, although values for all of western Canada increased, the changes in Saskatchewan were marginal. Values declined slightly in the southern part of the province, and rose in the north.

Nurses living and working in Drayton Valley and area won't have to leave home to complete a bachelor of nursing degree program.

Effective Sept. 1, 1990, Athabasca University will offer a complete post-registered nurse (RN) bachelor of nursing by distance education.

It will be available through the Pembina Educational Consortium.

"It's been in the works for some time," says consortium director Joe MacLellan.

The degree was recently approved by Alberta Advanced Education and $216,000 annually will be provided to the university to operate the program.

Athabasca's program is unique in Alberta because it is available province-wide and students can register in courses throughout the year (providing space is available). Other university distance education programs are usually offered only in selected communities and have two or three specific entry points, similar to a standard university semester system.

The purpose of the program is to increase accessibility to advanced nursing education, allowing nurses to complete their degree at home and in the communities where they work. Like other Athabasca University programs, students will be able to take courses throughout the year and set their own study schedules according to their personal time tables.

"This program makes a university degree accessible to nurses in Drayton Valley who are either unable or unwilling to leave the community," says Roberta Carey, associate professor of nursing.

The program will focus on health and wellness promotion (as opposed to health restoration) and the integration of these concepts in nursing practice. The community health courses will include a particular focus on health promotion in rural communities.

Thank you to all my customers and friends for your patronage this past year.

I would like to wish you a Merry Christmas and all the best in 1990.

Cynthia's rec. hall becomes reality

The dream of Cynthia residents to have a new recreation hall in 1990 is to become a reality after being presented with a $46,000 facilities enhancement grant by MLA Tom Thürber last week.

Cynthia has not had a hall for the past four years and president of the Cynthia Recreation Association, Willy Yakymyshyn said, "That's had a very negative impact. It (the hall) will add value to family life in Cynthia."

"Primarily, its main purpose is to provide an area or place of gathering for people in the area."

He said other options being discussed are the organization of a daycare, and revenue generation

Museum proposal referred to tourism

Local resident Brian Loosmore has submitted an idea for a museum to town council who recently referred it to the tourism action committee.

He would like to see a permanent exhibition celebrating the fact that oil has been the basis of prosperity for Alberta.

Loosmore said in his letter outlining the idea, that Drayton Valley is the obvious choice for the site because it is the centre of the Pembina oilfield, it is easily accessible from Edmonton, Calgary and main tourist routes in the Rocky Mountains.

His vision of the museum included a building to house the main core of the events such as parties, social functions and weddings.

The approximate total cost of construction of the new facility will be $103,000, of which $90,000 has already been raised through grants, poker rallies, raffles and other fundraisers.

"I don't see it as being a problem raising that additional $13,000," said Yakymyshyn.

"We're just a small exhibition demonstrating the formation of oil, coal and other minerals in the ground, extraction of oil by various techniques, problems and solutions of extraction, blowouts, etc., back-up industries, spin-off industries and more.

He suggested the building could be used as an oil industry conference centre, could include a cinema/theatre and tours of the oil field could be organized from it.

Ten to 15 acres of surrounding park-like grounds with old and new oil

"This (hall) is our number one goal - our vision," he said.

"They have raised considerable funds toward the building of a new community hall," said Thurber. "I thought it was within the bounds of reality to help them out."

to tourism

rigs and other industry-related items were also in the outline.

Loosmore estimated the cost to be about $50 million. "As we have benefitted so little from federal and provincial coffers over the years, I feel we might be justified in suggesting it becomes part of the Alberta Provincial Museum," he said. "Alternatively, a national exhibition of oil on these lines would not be out of place here."

The tourism action committee will take a look at his idea.

Council passes tax bylaw

Town council passed a bylaw last week authorizing the town of Drayton Valley assessor to use the 1989 assessment roll for 1990 taxation purposes.

There will be some exceptions and it will be subject to the Municipal Taxation Act and amendments thereto.

A bylaw was passed in a town council meeting last week providing for the establishment of a parks, recreation and culture board.

A public auction will be held for a local property (Lot 2, Block 117, Plan 782 3385) Feb. 20.

The auction will be advertised in accordance with the Tax Recovery Act.

In a town council meeting last week, council authorized the conditions of sale to be 10 per cent down with the balance to be paid in full at award of offer.

More than $55,000 abatement will be provided by town council to property owners who experienced in excess of a 10 per cent increase in 1989 over 1988 property taxes.

Excluding those where improvements were added for 1989, were in progress of construction during 1988, where the zoning or classification or use of the property was changed during 1988, they may receive abatement to a maximum of that 90 per cent remaining.

Give guests time to absorb alcohol before going home

Submitted by AADAC
Drayton Valley office

Being a host means that if someone drinks too much at your house, you are responsible for his safe recovery.

Getting drunk is not a humorous affair. Many people do not know their capacity for alcohol. The number and kinds of drinks that will get a person drunk vary from person to person.

Neither coffee nor any other drink will help sober anybody up. Only time can do that.

But by emphasizing non-alcoholic drinks toward the end of the party, you give your guests extra time to absorb the alcohol they have consumed. With a low-alcohol content in their blood it will be safer for them to drive home.

If you observe a guest who is drinking too much, try to engage him or her in conversation to slow down drinking.

Offer food that slows down the rate at which the body absorbs alcohol.

Offer to mix the next drink and make it a light one. Mix it with water rather than a carbonated mixer.

After the party
Offer to drive an inebriated guest home — the guest's car can be picked up at a later date when its owner has sobered up.

Suggest your guest remain overnight at your home. This may involve some inconvenience for you, but you could be saving your friend's life.

If taxi service is available call a taxi to take your guest home. Pay for the cab yourself. Your friend can't object to a free ride home.

(Later your guest will probably thank you and gladly reimburse you.)

These are some of the actions other people have taken. But don't limit yourself to just these suggestions. Anything you can do to prevent someone who's had too much to drink from driving, is the right thing to do.

As we suggested previously, hosts should consider providing their guests with the option of having non-alcoholic drinks. Our pamphlet The Great Entertainer provides some exciting alternatives. Here are some recipes we hope you'll enjoy.

Hot spicy punch
2 L cold water, 50 mL peeled, chopped fresh ginger, 8 tea bags, 4 sticks cinnamon (broken up), 6 whole cloves, 2 L boiling water, thick slices orange, 125 mL sugar, 250 mL lemon juice, 250 mL orange juice, 1 L pineapple juice, 1 L cranberry juice cocktail, 2 L apple juice.

Heat 2 L cold water in large kettle. Add ginger, bring to a boil, turn down heat, cover and simmer 15 mins. Let stand until cool. Strain, returning liquid to pan and discarding ginger.

Put tea bags, cinnamon and 6 cloves in bowl. Add 2 L boiling water. Stir. Cover bowl and let tea steep 10 mins. Strain into ginger water. Add all remaining ingredients except orange slices and cloves. Heat well and pour into punch bowl. Stick a clove in the rind of each orange slice and float on top of punch. Ladle into punch cups to serve. (Makes about 80 servings.)

Tomato pick-me-up
Combine 250 mL tomato juice, 30 mL lemon juice, 3 mL Worcestershire sauce, 2 mL sugar, dash Tabasco, dash celery salt, dash salt and a grating of fresh pepper and stir to blend. Pour over ice cubes in a large glass. Add a celery stick as a muddler.

Lime rickey
6 limes, 175 mL water, 125 mL sugar, ice, soda water, cocktail cherries, lime slices.
Grate the rind from the limes. Squeeze juice from all limes (about 175 mL).

Combine water and sugar in saucepan. Set over heat and stir until sugar is dissolved. Add 1 lime rind, bring to a boil, boil 5 mins. Cool. Stir in lime juice and pour into scalded bottle. Store in a cool place.

How do you feel about the GST?

The goods and service tax, as proposed will apply a tax to nearly all goods and services sold in Canada, starting in 1991. Haircuts, baby clothes, travel, restaurant meals, parking fees — even funeral services. There's few businesses that won't be affected.

The Alberta Chamber of Commerce is conducting a survey of Albertans' responses to the GST.

Ranchers fed lot of bull

Cattle producers were fed a bunch of bull at the University of Missouri, but many didn't realize it.

In a taste test, 80 producers were given a plate with two pieces of cooked meat and asked which one was from a bull. Half picked the wrong meat.

Twenty-two per cent of those who misidentified the meat said they preferred what they thought was steer meat, but was actually from a bull.

Harold Hedrick, a University of Missouri food scientist, said the results didn't surprise him. "When managed properly and slaughtered young, bulls produce very good beef."

Conference opportunity to learn

The speaker and topic lineup for the 1990 version of Alberta Agriculture's annual Managing Agricultural Technology for Profit (MATFP) conference is ready to be launched March 4.

The conference, designed to provide farm couples with an opportunity to learn more about agricultural trends, issues and challenges, will be at The Lodge at Kananaskis March 4 through 7.

Economic, financial, business and farm management issues are highlighted at the conference. Some of the timely topics on the agenda include: selecting the right life insurance, farm taxation, goal-directed management and animal welfare.

Moldy feed can cause allergies in several farm animals

By Elaine Ryl

District Agriculturist

Producers across the district faced unfavorable weather conditions this year while putting up their winter feed supplies.

As a result some feeds will be showing mold growth. The following is from an article by Abdul Suleiman, an animal nutritionist with Alberta Agriculture, outlining some of the problems that can be encountered and ways of reducing them.

"Toxins produced by the molds, reduced feed intakes and allergic reactions are concerns if you plan to use moldy feeds. Although molds that produce toxins are widespread and the potential for poisoning is always present, molds seldom do such harm since environmental conditions conducive to toxin production are complex and often not present.

"Because mold uses the energy and protein from the feed it grows on, the feed loses five to 25 per cent of its digestible energy. Noticeable mold growth may reduce feeding value by 10 per cent. Not only does the nutritive value of the feed deteriorate, but cattle tend to eat less of even slightly moldy feed. A major effect of reduced consumption is a significant reduction in nutrient intake.

"Reduced feed and nutrient intake are especially critical after calving when a cow's energy requirements increase by 25 per cent. If a cow doesn't increase her feed intake, her body condition will drop. Calf gains may also suffer. The best way to increase nutrient intake is to supplement moldy hay with grain or canola meal.

"Luxuriant mold growth on forage or grain produces spores that make the feed dusty. The spores are potent allergens and when inhaled or eaten can cause allergic reactions or sensitivities in the animal. The animal can become hypersensitized and with continued exposure or re-exposure have a severe allergic reaction, allergic pneumonia (sometimes called atypical interstitial pneumonia), or anaphylactic shock.

"As a general guideline, moldy hay or silage shouldn't be routinely fed to livestock. For example, moldy sweet clover may contain dicoumarol that interferes with normal blood clotting. Animals can bleed to death from any minor injury or from internal bleeding because of mold-induced clotting defects.

"If moldy sweet clover must be fed, use it intermittently. If it's fed every other week, the animal has a chance to get rid of circulating harmful products from the mold. The safest thing to do is to discard moldy sweet clover forage.

"Reduced feed intake, reduced animal productivity, abortion and death are some of the risks involved when feeding moldy feeds. Risks are lower to feeder livestock than for breeding stock as miscarriages are one problem.

"Cattle, sheep and goats are generally more resistant to the effects of mold than other animals such as pigs and poultry. While there are no guidelines for feeding moldy feed, here are some suggestions for feeds that have significant amounts of visible mold.

"Dilute moldy feed to less than 20 per cent of the total ration. Introduce it into feed rations slowly, starting with five per cent and gradually increase to the maximum of 20 per cent.

"Avoid using moldy feeds when rapid gains are desired. Rather, use them in maintenance rations or rations designed for moderate growth rate. Don't give lactating dairy and beef cows moldy feed. Check livestock to ensure their ration intake containing moldy feed is sufficient to provide all required nutrients.

"Closely watch livestock for signs of illness or a decrease in performance. Feeder cattle may go off feed. Respiratory distress may occur suddenly. If you are feeding to breeding stock, abortions will take some time to show up."

Gifts for the farmer?

By Bev Brooks

District Home Economist
Many rural people are not overly-anxious to crowd into the malls for last-minute Christmas shopping.

Keeping this in mind, here's a list of items that serve a purpose, although somewhat less glamorous than traditional 'gift' type ideas. Best of all, they can be purchased locally.

- New aluminum grain shovel...to replace the one with both corners chewed off by the auger.

- Hammer and monkey wrench...you always need something to swear at during a cold harvest night after the chain breaks on the combine.

- Rechargeable flashlight...to take the place of the old flashlight with dead batteries that is still under the truck seat.

- Box of disposable dust masks...one less excuse for whoever is supposed to help shovel grain.

- New work gloves...they usually last two weeks before being lost or claimed by someone else.

- New floor mats for the pickup...they have never been the same since the oil can tipped over on them.

- New fork handle...to replace the one 'accidentally' broken during weaning time.

- Lariat...forget about the one that's been holding the pump up in the well for two years.

- New eye protection shield for grinding...the old one was impossible to see through last year.

- Box of pens, pad of paper...for any phone not in the house.

- Paper towels...put near the oil drums for wiping the funnel out after the person who last used it.

- Plastic gloves for spraying...the old ones were fine until they were left on the back of the water truck.

- New rubber boots...to get one step ahead in spring.

Enjoy your holidays! Our office wishes you and your family a healthy and prosperous New Year. Have a Merry Christmas!

By Joe Clark
Yellowhead MP

Many people have told me they wouldn't be so upset about the proposed goods and services tax if the government cut spending.

Consider the following scenario:

If every single dollar (including staff and administration) that is currently spent on official languages, women's programs, citizenship development, handicapped programs, Canada Day celebrations, native cultural development, royal visits, second language education, youth exchange programs, Canadian studies programs, grants to special interest groups like human rights and grants to multicultural groups...if every single dollar spent on those programs was sliced, the government would spend $142.42 billion this year instead of $142.9 billion.

Just how does the government spend its money? In four basic ways. One quarter pays interest on the debt. About $16 billion was transferred to pensioners. The third area of spending is transfer payments to provinces — $25 billion of which goes to support health care and financing provincial and social programs.

In the first case, we can't default on our interest payments. And we can't cut out old age pensions or transfers to the provinces.

"It's where everyone thinks the money is"

The fourth area is government operations which accounts for 16 per cent of government program spending and is the area that has borne the brunt of the cuts over the last five years to keep the other areas going. It's where everyone thinks the money is.

The government spent $17.6 billion in 1984-85 and this past year, in spite of inflation, it is actually down to $15.2 billion. And the public service has been cut by 12,000, down to the size it was in 1973.

The government has also sold some Crown corporations and reduced spending to others, including the CBC, Canada Post and Via Rail. Spending on foreign aid and defence is down; and changes have been made to transfer programs to individuals which ensure that those who are most in need are assisted while high income earners pay back a portion of old age security and family allowance benefits.

If you have any suggestions on how the government can further cut spending I would be pleased to hear from you.

Fed cattle prices expected to climb soon

A tight American beef supply points to 1990 being another good year for fed cattle prices says an Alberta Agriculture market analyst. "Prices will be particularly good during the first half of the year, but price prospects for all classes are less positive for mid-year and beyond," says Ron Gietz.

With the Canadian-American exchange rate staying at an 85-cent U.S. level, Gietz says the Alberta outlook for direct sale slaughter steer prices is for an $80 to $84/cwt. range for the rest of the fourth quarter.

"The lowest prices for A-grade steers is expected in late December with prices improving steadily during the first quarter of the new decade. A price peak in the upper $80 range is expected in March or early April, with increasing supplies of fed calves lowering the prices through the second quarter," he says.

"Alberta continues to lead the way in the Canadian beef industry, with steady and substantial increases in the production of all slaughter classes except heifers," he says.

Several methods of warble control

Four treatment methods cattlemen use in a warble grub control program also help control other livestock parasites.

Pour-on, spot application, injectable and high pressure methods of applying systemic insecticides in the fall effectively control warble grub, says livestock entomologist, Ali Khan.

"One of the other advantages of warble control treatments is that these chemicals also suppress cattle lice populations. About 67 per cent less lice have been observed on treated animals," says Khan.

"Cattlemen regularly treating herds for warbles know treatments are preventing their animals from becoming heavily infested with lice."

Town authorizes application

ISL Consulting Engineers were authorized to apply for a $750,000 street improvement grant on behalf of the town of Drayton Valley in a council meeting last week.

The grant will cover a portion of the $2,000,000 (approximately) cost of street and sidewalk improvements planned for 1990.

ISL conducted a study of street and sidewalk conditions and submitted their findings, along with cost estimates to council. The total possible contract amount submitted was $3,567,000.

Members will go over the proposed improvements and concentrate on high priorities. They moved the study be referred to the transportation committee.

Learn to treat cold injuries

More and more, winter is becoming an out-of-doors time for many Albertans.

Downhill skiing, cross-country skiing and snowmobiling are just some of the activities that lure people outside to enjoy the freshness of the season. If you spend time outdoors in the winter, St. John Ambulance says you should learn to recognize and treat common cold injuries.

Frostbite usually affects the ears, face, fingers or toes. It appears as a sudden whiteness. In the early stages it is painless and may not be noticed. As it progresses, it will be waxy, white and numb in the affected area.

Mild frostbite is treated by gradually rewarming the affected area with a warm hand, by breathing on it, or by placing the area in close contact with a warm area of your own body, such as the armpit or groin.

If the frostbitten area is cold and hard to the touch, do not attempt to rewarm. This is a serious injury that requires immediate medical attention.

Hypothermia develops when the body loses more heat than it can produce. A person suffering from mild hypothermia will seem withdrawn; speech will be slurred and shivering will be noticeable. As it progresses, the victim will become confused, irrational and sleepy; pulse and respiration will be slow.

Severe hypothermia can lead to coma, stopped breathing, cardiac arrest and eventually death.

The basic principles for treatment of hypothermia are to prevent further loss of body heat, improve the body heat and circulation and, in cases of severe hypothermia, obtain medical aid as soon as possible.

More money better performance?

By Samia Valleland

What's cooking? Not much in our microwave ovens.

While more than half of all Canadian households now own one of these handy appliances, we are far from being a nation of micromaniacs. Most of the time, we use our microwaves to reheat leftovers or to prepare convenience foods. We rarely cook entire meals or adapt conventional recipes for microwave use.

Many owners are not sure of how to use this machine for anything complicated. They may be tempted to buy an even more complex unit that will do all their thinking for them.

But do fancy automatic features come at the expense of basic performance? And does the complicated circuitry even work?

To find out, CAC tested 11 microwave ovens, ranging in price from $330 to $600. The tests found that auto functions can be useful, but manual cycles on other ovens did some jobs just as well.

Furthermore, while more money buys more trimmings, it won't buy better performance. The $330 and the $600 machines did almost equally as well in the tests.

None of the microwave ovens tested had serious shortcomings. Some did have their share of minor annoyances, however. The product information office at CAC Alberta can give you a more in-depth look at the test results. Phone 420-0747 between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m.

Community spirit/participation help make events successful

The turkey and ham bonspiel was a great success. Even if the McGregor and Davidson teams "negotiated" for a first-place tie (much to the disappointment of the spectators), the action was hot and heavy.

Congratulations to the Wiltsie team for winning the 'B' event. And many thanks to the cooks who provided such a great meal. The family dinner held Dec. 16 was also a great success! It is great to see such active participation in community events.

Many thanks to all who contributed to the meal, and special recognition to Lynda McGregor and other organizers of the function. The success of this and the Halloween events means more family activities will be organized.

By the time of publication, the skating rink should be ready for use. Thank you to all who helped get this ready for winter and especially Mike Baker and Alan Gwin who contributed a lot of their free time clearing snow and flooding the rink.

There was some concern the activity around the proposed waste transfer station meant the MD was going ahead with the plan. This activity was just to clean up the site.

A public notice released Dec. 13 states the district would like to make application to locate the site across from the road to the old landfill site on the east side of the highway.

If anyone has any concerns or questions, contact Dean Stuthheit at the municipal district office. The notice is posted at the store, the post office, curling rink and the hotel.

Welcome to the community to James Warkentin from Michelle Zoetekouw from Stony Plain.

Once again, if anyone has any contributions about new residents, visitors, births, etc. please contact me at 894-3656 or Sue Gwin at the store.

Santas need help

Volunteers are needed to sort and fill the hampers that will be distributed by Santas Anonymous this year.

Organizer Linda Thompson says volunteers are needed Dec. 21-22-23 starting about 9 a.m. daily in the Legion Hall.

Early indications are that Santas Anonymous will reach record totals this year.

As of last week names of 72 families and 146 kids had been received.

Both toy boxes and cash cans are located around town.

Many people don't understand how credit cards work

By Samia Vallewand

Consumers' Association
Canadians love credit cards. Two-thirds of us have at least one card and we use them in a big way.

Last year, $30 billion in purchases were rung up on Visa and Mastercard alone.

We grudgingly pay interest charges that add up to more than $1 billion a year, as well as a host of other fees. And we worry we are paying too much. Many of us still do not understand how credit cards work or how we can get the best deal.

What can be done?

Are credit card interest rates too high? What can be done if they are? Just what can ordinary customers do to pay as little interest as possible?

If you pay off your balance in full during the grace period — look for a card with a generous grace period and no annual fee.

If you pay off your balance within a few months — the interest calculation method may be more important than the actual rate. If the interest is calculated from the date of the statement, rather than the date of the purchase, the difference can mean up to a month's interest-free credit.

If you pay off your balance over several months — your biggest concern is the interest rate. Look for one that is as low as possible.

Consumers are more or less on their own when it comes to finding the best deal in a credit card. The Canadian Consumer magazine has an indepth article on the subject that can help.

Call 420-0747 and the CAC-Alberta's Product information office will oblige with a copy.

High school facelift top priority

Breton High School Parents Association held a special meeting Dec. 12. Dr. Al Andersen confirmed that Breton high is presently at priority one for modernization proposals. Whether or not funds will be available is unknown at the present time.

In the meantime, emergency maintenance work will be done at the school.

Quebec exchange student Marie-Claude Morrisette has returned home after spending three months in Breton with the Durrant family. Staff and students presented her with a Breton high school pin and a high school jacket as mementos of her visit. In February Tany Durrant will start her three-month stay in Malaric with Marie-Claude's family.

The Warburg pee wee team finished the week with a split of two and two, defeating Wetaskiwin and Red Deer but losing twice to the Red Deer Blues.

Reg Carson was the winner of the deepfreeze draw held recently at Mayfair Foods.

HATS OFF TO OUR HEROES

Last, but not least, in our long line of fire department heroes is Chief Sheldon Fuson.

He said he was first exposed to the fire department in Cuba. "It was a seed that was planted many years ago and it took time to to nurture and grow."

Fuson has been a member since 1974 and in 1978 became "the chief."

"The town decided it was time to go with a full-time fire chief and I was offered the opportunity."

"I'm very proud of all the guys I've got on the department; their ability, their dedication and commitment to the community as a whole."

Fuson said the men's employers make their job easier. "I don't think there's enough thank-yous to be said to the employers."

New 'staff member' very cost-efficient

By Sue Kenyon

The Drayton Valley Health Complex has a new staff member working in their laboratory.

The lab has just bought a new cell counter, a machine which will screen hemoglobins. It will be able to alert doctors to abnormalities in blood counts which may indicate infection.

The new staff member has the ability to do one other chore the former staffer didn't perform. This machine gives platelet status which up until now lab technicians had to perform manually. Platelets play a major role in the clotting of blood.

Lab supervisor Pat Tidman is excited with the new equipment he says not only makes his lab more efficient production wise, but also financially.

"I applied for this machine because it cuts down technical labor and is very cost-efficient," he says.

During this interview, an ambulance patient was admitted and his blood had to be tested.

Cathy Pratt, combined lab and x-ray technician tested the blood using the old equipment. First the blood had to be diluted and then the blood count could be done.

On the new machine the dilution mechanism is built right in, so the process will take much shorter time.

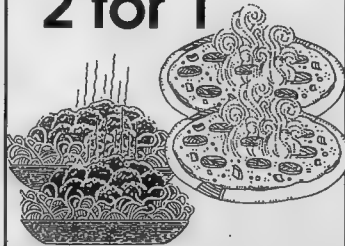

The machine told Pratt the patient had a high white cell count, which could indicate infection.

The lifespan for the new machine is approximately five years, Tidman said.

Cathy Pratt, combined lab and x-ray technician, tests the blood of a patient admitted into emergency. The small machine on the left is the diluter and the machine Pratt is reading is the old cell counter.

THE WESTERN REVIEW

542-5380

Christmas expectations often not realistic

There is a beverage advertisement on television these days that speaks of expectations. A person enters a bar/restaurant, sits down and orders a drink: "Give me a — LIGHT."

Inevitably, much to the patron's surprise, he or she gets anything but the beverage they were expecting. They get a flaming arrow, a large searchlight shone directly at them or an extremely heavy object — anything but the 'light' object they had originally expected.

With Christmas almost upon us, I get a sense that our preparations for this celebration can be likened to the beverage advertisement. We approach Christmas with expectations that are often not met or are not realistic.

Long ago, in faraway Palestine, they expected a messiah. The faithful religious and non-religious of the day, were looking for a great man from God to save them from the oppression they lived with: disease, taxes, poverty, occupation and so on.

The people expected him to come in a great blaze of glory, triumphantly entering the world to conquer all its ills.

Yet their expectations were not met. Instead of a great conquering hero, they received from God a little baby, born in a dumpy little stable in a boring part of the country.

Talk about shattered expectations! Yet, that little baby grew up to be a man, the Son of God Himself — Jesus Christ.

When I look around in our society at our frenzied and often hurried approach to Christmas, I wonder if our expectations are misplaced. We hustle and bustle and buy and prepare and drive and think and so on: always looking for the elusive magic or meaning of the season.

Then, after all the activity is over, the let-down is almost palpable. So, to offset this, we rush off to 'Boxing Day' sales and January sales, and...

What is Christmas? What are your expectations of this season? Do you look to encounter once again the mystery of God coming into our world in a way that is totally unexpected? Do you expect to find the true and fulfilling reason for Christmas in anything but the little baby born so long ago?

Whatever your personal or family expectations for the next few days, all of the Christian pastors who write this column wish you and your family a blessed and joyous Christmas.

May your Christmas be filled with the peace of Christ. May your heart be filled with the love of God. May all of us approach this Christmas with the expectation of meeting a baby, of meeting Christ Himself!

Tillage seminar next month

The facts about pesticide residues will be the focus of two days of discussion at seminars during the Alberta Conservation Tillage Society's (ACTS) annual meeting next month.

New weed problems, fertilizer placement and an overview of the current federal pesticide regulation review are other agenda highlights at the meeting in Red Deer Jan. 16 and 17.

January 25
Organizers and residents at the Shangri-La Lodge were a step closer to producing their own video program after receiving the first installment of a federal grant.

February 29
Although they were promised a zero-increase budget this year, Drayton Valley residents can look forward to the next best thing with the 1984 budget. A residential mill rate increase of 1.36 per cent or 38 mills will take effect when town council gives third reading to bylaw 84-05, March 15.

March 14
Parkland County Board of Education approved a course on human sexuality as part of the elementary school health curriculum.

April 18
An information meeting turned into a government roast as local residents gathered for an overwhelming show of opposition to the new Alaskan Correctional Centre.

May 2
Drayton Valley's new indoor pool will have five lanes instead of the four originally planned thanks to tenders for construction coming in lower than expected.

June 6
Although the luncheon for town representatives, MLAs and Alberta Games Committee members was billed as an information session, it was merely a ruse to announce Drayton Valley being selected as the

July 11
While the hail and wind storm cut a relatively narrow path when it passed through the Drayton Valley area June 29, it left its mark in damage.

August 22
The opening of the Breton Medical Centre added a new dimension to the community's general hospital.

September 5

January 2
Except for its final name and a premier date, Shangri-La Lodge and Alberta Educational Communications Corp. (ACCESS) video production is ready and waiting.

February 6
Five local men were in critical but stable condition in Edmonton's University Hospital after a fire Feb. 4 at a Texaco well site near Cynthia.

March 20
Criminal charges may be launched against Dome Petroleum by the Attorney General's Department in connection with the deaths of two sour gas plant workers near Ledgepole in November.

April 3
Nurses at the Drayton Valley and Evansburg health units joined seven other provincial units in a strike action to support demands for a wage increase.

May 22
Pleas for help for 10-year-old Jamie Platz were issued. In the last eight-and-a-half years he has handled 68 operations (cancer-related). Larry and Gail Platz want to take their son to a clinic in Mexico that has been offering treatment using vitamins and diet. The trip and a three-week stay is expected to cost $12,000 to $15,000. Hopefully, individuals, groups and organizations will make it possible for the Platz family to go to Mexico next week. Can we say no to a boy who has struggled so heroically?

Opinions

A toast to you — the people of Drayton Valley

The end of a decade is a good time to sit back and take stock of our accomplishments, goals and hopes for the future.

Where have we been for 10 years? Where have we gone, and where are we headed to? Is this place the same as the place we hoped we would be by now?

There have been many changes.

Changes in our world, in our country, in our town, and yes, even in ourselves.

The wall has come down in Berlin, and freedom is flourishing after a long, oppressive winter in the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe.

Who would have thought 10 years ago a Stanley Cup would ever find its way here, and now it's been in Alberta for five of the last seven seasons.

Who would have thought Wayne Gretzky would have ever been traded from the Oilers?

Ten years ago people would have said "not in this decade, not in this lifetime!"

And even in our little town of Drayton Valley the changes have been overwhelming and swift, like it has been no time at all since the end of the last decade.

Like fine wine though, people only appreciate with age, and time has a maturing investment in us all.

At this time it would be appropriate for all of us here at The Western Review to raise our glasses and propose a toast to you, the people of Drayton Valley.

The future belongs to us!

Part of the past and part of your future...

Putting together an issue that encompasses an entire decade is not an easy task.

Over a 10-year period there are many disappointments, delights and dreams that cannot possibly all be contained in the pages of one newspaper.

Choosing one award winner over another, telling one sad story, or reflecting on a certain major event or victory leaves another equally important tale untold.

We are grateful to have had the opportunity to share with our readers the best, and the worst, of the 1980s and have reviewed those times in this edition.

For the 1990s we have hopes and aspirations and for the 1980s we have our memories. Some are satisfying, some exhilarating and some painful, but all contribute to making us who we are and will be in the future.

These pages contain some of our memories — your memories. Recollections of when your sons or daughters caught that fish or hit front page with the family pet, when your candidate won the election, and when your team placed first.

Along with these pleasant memories, there are also the times when your team or candidate lost, when your property was damaged, and when lives were lost tragically.

Throughout the decade, we have shared your sorrow and your joys. We have laughed with you, rejoiced with you, and cried with you.

In the new year and the next decade we'll continue to be a part of your past, but we'll also be a part of your future.

Drayton Valley and area, we thank you for the memories — we look forward to going with you into the future and participating in your dreams.

MD approves vision to make dreams reality

A vision statement composed by MD Manager John Eriksson and Reeve Henry Rondeau was approved in last week's council meeting.

Eriksson said they will now have to work out an action plan to make dreams a reality.

Visions include diversification centreing on expanded opportunities in the existing agriculture, forestry, oil, gas and tourism industries, expounding the development of secondary and manufacturing industries.

The physical attributes of the community including rivers, forests, farmland, sound economic lakes and other water bodies diversification including a must be preserved and blossoming tourist trade, enhanced in order to provide according to the statement.

Lifeline groups get boost

Life Line Association of Drayton Valley and Dial of Life Association of Breton will each be receiving a $2,000 boost from the MD of Brazeau.

Councillor Jim Coombes objected to the dispersal of funds to Dial of Life because he felt it was a duplication of service.

"It was a very bad mistake what Breton did when they started this operation. They could have saved $10,000 and all kinds of time if they would have listened. This is probably a tough stand that I take," he said.

He entered a motion to put it on hold for one year, and later withdrew the motion.

Councillor Bob Booth defended Breton. "I think that to try and punish people now for doing what they felt was right at the time is wrong."

Man stabs family, then kills self

By Susan Mosciacki

A man brutally stabbed his wife and two daughters in their home near 50 Ave. and 44 St. Dec. 23, then took his own life, in the worst crime of this nature in Drayton Valley's history.

The cause of death of Cindy Samuel, 23, Erika, 6, and Britney, 4, is attributed to stab wounds inflicted by Sylvester (Trevor) Samuel, 33.

The tragic murder/suicide occurred in the early morning hours and was discovered by Cindy's mother, Myrtle Kennedy later in the afternoon (about 12:35 p.m.).

Kennedy was not accepting calls, but Cindy's aunt, Sheila Anderson said, "I think the thing you remember most is that she was a bubbly, happy person. She worked with handicapped children (at the Beehive) and she loved them and she was a good mother."

"We don't have a lot of information at this point," she said. "The family is holding up very well, considering."

The Samuel bodies were taken to the chief medical examiner's office in Edmonton and an external autopsy will be performed on Sylvester Samuel's body.

Ironically, Samuel, caretaker at St. Anthony school, had to quit working on service rigs after a life-threatening accident on the same date (Dec. 23), 1985.

Dornan in court Feb. 22

Former executive director of the Beehive Workshop, Andrew J. Dornan appeared in Leduc Provincial Court Dec. 22.

As a result of a guilty plea entered with respect to a number of charges, he was remanded to Drayton Valley Provincial Court Feb. 22 for sentencing.

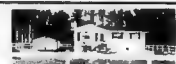

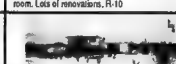

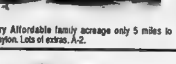

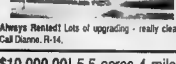

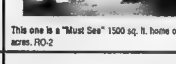

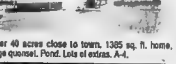

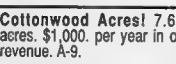

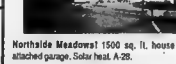

He originally faced charges of seven counts of theft under $1,000, five counts of theft over $1,000, five counts of uttering forged documents and two counts of fraud-public market.

Local support encouraging for recycling project

A regular column on environmental and global issues of local concern here in Drayton Valley-MD of Brazeau area. Prepared by members of the Pembina Institute for Appropriate Development. For more information call 542-6272. Drayton Valley recycling project

The Drayton Valley recycling project has been in full operation for just over one year and is now running smoothly.

To date, four semi-trailer loads of paper have been collected for recycling (saving about 2,550 trees).

Support from the community has been encouraging. The local schools and many businesses have implemented in-house recycling systems.

The project is presently streamlining the paper flow and has plans to locate the trailer in a new 'high profile' location in the parking lot north of the old curling rink. This site will allow easy access to the trailer for those wishing to load large amounts of paper directly into the trailer. A bin, similar to the one at the Beehive bottle depot, will also be located on this site.

Sorting paper into sub-groups gives the project higher grades of paper, and a better price. The new categories being considered are: bond - letter head, foolscap, most writing paper; computer - should be in its original box or - one of equivalent size; mixed - most other paper not coated with wax or plastic and free of glue (most catalogue and phone books have glued bindings.).

When a load of paper is not sorted the entire load is downgraded. The recycling trailer and paper bins will soon have signs outlining different methods of packaging and sorting paper. Newspaper will continue to be the principal product collected.

Here are a few tips for anyone not presently retaining newspaper from the garbage but wanting to take part in the project.

Set aside a small 'recycling' corner, possibly in a closet or the garage. Stack the papers until they are a foot or so high, tie them with a strong cord and drop the bundle off at the paper depot.

Or, if you prefer, papers can be stacked in a cardboard box set on its edge. When the box is full just close the flaps and drop it off at the paper depot.

A paper grocery bag can also be used to collect newspapers. Both the paper bag and the cardboard box can be recycled as well.

If it is necessary to put your paper in a bag please don't tie the bag shut as the plastic has to be removed before the paper is stacked in the recycling trailer. All handling of paper is done by volunteers from the Drayton Valley Lions club and consideration should be given to their time and commitment to this project.

Due to numerous requests, consideration is being given to expanding the project to include other products such as cardboard, glass, metal and plastic.

With continued support from the community this project will remain a successful model for other communities.

Compressor missing

An air compressor was stolen from the back of a 1986 Dodge pickup parked at Woodland Chrysler sometime between Sept. 18 and Sept. 21:

A five hp Emglo gas compressor, serial number A052183058; blue belt-driven compressor mounted on red and white Honda engine; two blue cylindrical tanks; two hands at one end of compressor from Mobility (like a wheelbarrow). There was some damage to the mounts on the fuel tank and engine cooling fins Crime Stoppers will pay a cash reward for information leading to the arrest of any of the person(s) responsible for this offence.

I would like to express my gratitude to all my clients, past & present. I'll be residing on Grand Cayman Island, British West Indies.

Come on down for a haircut!

Thanks, I've had a great time.

New regional school soon to be a reality

Buck Lake News

By Joan Elmont

The Buck Lake Regional high school is gradually becoming a reality.

County of Wetaskiwin Building Committee and architects met at the Buck Lake School earlier this month to view the area and decide how much extra land will be needed for the new buildings and recreation facilities.

They also discussed how the old part of the school will be integrated with the new, entrance and exits to the facility, sewage disposal, placing of heating exchange systems and the amount of total space which will be available and how to make the best functional use of that space.

On Dec. 14 another meeting was held which included principals and teachers from Alder Flats and Winfield schools, West End Education Committee, County Building Committee and architects.

In a brainstorming session many ideas for the use of the school were collected. As many as possible will be incorporated into the plans.

The county is planning ahead for at least another 30-year era in which not only will the school be a centre of learning but also a centre for the use of the community.

A competition has been suggested for students to choose a name, logo and school colors for the new facility.

A meeting is scheduled in early January to discuss programming.

Mixed bonspiel set for Jan. 19

Here's hoping Santa was good to everyone this year and the holidays are full of good cheer with friends and family!

Congratulations to the winners of the 4-H raffle at the family Christmas dinner Dec. 16. Florence Drangsholt won the gingerbread house, Jenna Larson won the 'crispy house' and Lucas Baker went home with the Christmas decoration. A big thankyou to Santa who did such a good job at drawing the names as well as from all the youngsters for their treats. Thanks as well to all the great cooks who brought such tasty dishes. What a team!

Once again, a reminder the New Year's Eve dance is in the final stages of preparation. For further information, call Lynda McGregor at 894-3674.

Lodgepole News

By Bob Irwin

Another date to put in your datebook is the Lodgepole curling club's mixed bonspiel Jan. 19 to 21. The first 30 teams will be accepted. For further information call Sharon Pye at 894-3961.

The Lodgepole news won't be available for the next few weeks as my family and I head south (unfortunately only as far as Calgary), but we'll be ready to go in the new year.

In the meantime I would like to remind everyone to keep us posted about events in and around Lodgepole. For now, leave any contributions at the store.

I would also like to wish everyone a happy and safe new year and all the best in 1990.

MacIntosh behind times says Breton reader

Dear Editor,

Re: Pembina dam project raises environmental concerns, Western Review, Dec. 5.

Mr. Rob MacIntosh is behind the times. In his day, the heyday of passive environmentalism, people could get together for tea, nature walks, and demonstrations, and circulate petitions against the rape of the beautiful forest by wicked politicians, engineers, and multinational corporations, who cut down trees, built ugly factories that gave off smoke, and dams that poisoned innocent fish.

Now, the world is so polluted that active environmentalists, like the Hon. Ken Kowalski, must come to the force.

Alberta as we know it today owes its existence to several industries that rely on burning. These industries have made it possible for millions of people to live well in this area, which formerly could support only a few thousand hunters and trappers.

But this was done at a cost, a debt, which the province of Alberta owes, to be paid back as soon as possible. We put a lot of carbon dioxide into the atmosphere, particularly by our petroleum industry flaring off hydrocarbons. This helped to build a greenhouse effect. Now we owe it to the world to work to remove carbon dioxide from the atmosphere.

The crop plants growing on irrigated farmland absorb carbon dioxide at a greater rate than the few plants that can grow on the same land left as arid farmland. This means Alberta owes it to the world to irrigate every acre of arid farmland within its boundaries. The Pembina River dam will allow us to divert water south and increase irrigation.

It will also be helpful in another way for Alberta to irrigate as much land as possible. Irrigation builds population, something we in the West need to give us the political strength we need to gain equality within the Canadian confederation.

While the federal government can pay industry to locate its plants and offices in central Canada, even those it would be more economical to locate in the West, it will never manage to move anything like the St. Mary River irrigation district to Mississauga, Ont. or Boucherville, Que.

GST essential for future prosperity, says Clark

By Joe Clark
Yellowhead MP

Sales tax reform is part of the government's long-term strategy to ensure the future prosperity of our country.

Politically, it would be expedient to drop it — and drop it fast. But that would be cowardly and wrong. Wrong for Alberta, which stands to gain the most from the GST, and wrong for Canada.

Nobody likes taxes. And a nine-per-cent tax that applies to the vast majority of goods and services is going to be disliked. So, why has the government risked its political future by not dropping it?

First, Canadians and Albertans currently pay a hidden federal sales tax which is estimated to cost the country as much as $9 billion a year in lost activity and jobs.

The GST will make the Canadian economy more competitive nationally and internationally. By taxing Canadian-made goods more than imports, the current federal sales tax we are replacing damages Canada's ability to compete with foreign producers. We are the only country in the world that places itself at such a disadvantage.

Second, the GST will help to reduce the deficit by providing a more reliable source of revenue than the existing federal sales tax.

This will ensure we can continue to pay for programs and services Canadians value, and it will enable us to follow the five-year plan of year-by-year deficit reductions proposed in the 1989 federal budget. These reductions will lower the deficit to $15 billion by 1993, down from about $29 billion last year.

Third, the GST will improve the overall fairness of the tax system, as lower and modest-income Canadians will be better off once the tax is in place. The GST credit will be paid to over nine million Canadians, four times a year, in advance of expenses.

Sales tax reform will lead to benefits that extend to all regions of Canada and sectors of the economy. In fact, the department of finance estimates the economic output of the Prairie region will grow by 2.5 per cent, the most of any region. And given Alberta's vast resources and numerous exports, our province's economy should grow more than that of any other province under the GST system.

Sales tax reform is essential for the future prosperity of our country.

Use a little imagination, planning for those turkey leftovers

By Bev Brooks
District Home Economist
With Christmas just over, many of our fridges are overflowing with leftovers — particularly turkey.

New board executive elected

Moon Lake
By Alma Johnson

Get well wishes go to all those who are presently suffering from the flu bug.

A very good turnout at the meeting held Dec. 12 keeps the local hall open with an active board. The new president is Bob Urkiewicz, Ted (Bruce) Dean is vice-president while Fern Kidner remains as secretary-treasurer. There are nine new directors: Ron Woloszyn, Frank Banks, Dave Ryning, Lill Bonwick, Ed Lang, Karla Cherrington, Ruby Bradley, Wayne Tournere and Bernie Town.

New Year's Eve tickets are available from Dorleen Banks at 727-2325 or Thelma Cherrington at 727-2453 or the office at 542-4771.

Blanche and Bea Cherrington spent a day in Edmonton recently, as did Stan and Margaret Woloszyn.

Norm and Alma Johnson visited with her brother in the Darwell area recently.

Some area couples attended the Elks Christmas party held at the Elks hall in Entwistle Dec. 16.

The Christmas concert held Dec. 17 was well attended. A craft and bake sale was also held. Santa Claus handed out candy bags to the youngsters.

Darcy Cherrington won a crocheted boot filled with candy canes and John Winfield of Wildwood won a plate of home-made cookies.

Congratulations to Daryl Catt on making the honor roll at Westerra Institute in Stony Plain.

News items are most welcome, please phone now.

Merry Christmas and a happy new year to all.

Turkey leftovers can become turkey made-over meals with a little imagination and planning. There are numerous ways to avoid the 'sliced turkey repeat phenomenon' that has plagued many families well into each new year.

Crepes are a great way to turn leftovers into elegant looking main dishes. Try combining cubed cooked turkey with cooked broccoli, cauliflower and almonds in a delicately flavored white cheese sauce. Fill crepes with the mixture. Arrange in an oven-proof dish and pour a little of the cheese sauce over the top of the crepes.

Garnish with some toasted slivered almonds. Heat to serving temperature in the microwave or conventional oven.

Pita bread or pocket breads provide interesting sandwich options. Turkey pitas can be made by cutting the pocket breads in half and filling with a few shredded lettuce leaves. Saute cooked turkey cubes in a little butter with green onion, celery and add favorite spices to taste. Add the turkey mixture to the pita pockets. Toss chopped cucumber and tomato with two-three spoonfuls of oil and vinegar dressing. Place on top of the turkey mixture in the pita bread. Garnish with alfalfa sprouts.

Make a turkey chowder. Combine turkey broth, diced cooked turkey, chopped onion and celery, mashed potatoes, cream-style corn, spices and light cream: heat thoroughly for about 20 minutes. Be sure not to boil the chowder or it may curdle. With the addition of dinner rolls and salad, this soup can double for a main course meal.

Used cooked turkey for turkey tetrazzini, turkey a la king, sweet and sour pineapple turkey and turkey divan. Try it chopped up in spaghetti turkey sauce and turkey lasagna. It tastes great!

A reminder — we now have our farm save-all pocket calendars available on a first-come, first-served basis.

How do you feel about the GST?

The goods and service tax, as proposed will apply a tax to nearly all goods and services sold in Canada, starting in 1991. Haircuts, baby clothes, travel, restaurant meals, parking fees - even funeral services. There's few businesses that won't be affected.

The Alberta Chamber of Commerce is conducting a survey of Albertans' responses to the GST.

If you are a Chamber of Commerce member please write the

New ag commissions announced

Agriculture Minister Ernie Isley has announced the formation of two new agricultural commissions: the Alberta Canola Producers' Commission and the Alberta Pulse Growers' Commission.

The two new organizations have been under development for over a year, and have been the subject of a number of meetings between producers and the Alberta Agricultural Products Marketing Council. Producers and industry alike have expressed considerable support for the formation of the commissions.

The objectives of both commissions will be to conduct research related to their respective commodities, to provide information to producers on new developments in their industries, and to promote greater public awareness of their products.

To finance these activities, the commissions will be empowered to assess a service charge on all sales of canola and pulses made by producers in Alberta. The canola and pulse commissions will differ from other existing commissions. Producers will be able to request a refund of the service charge should they not wish to support the organizations' activities.

The powers and responsibilities of the two commissions will become effective Aug. 1.

A year to remember — the turkey bake of '65

"You kids nowadays..." he said, shaking his head dispairingly. "Why, when I was only half your age we had snow almost to the roof of the barn."

"It was 30 below for weeks straight. None of this coddling you kids get nowadays; no sirree, a school day was a school day. Why, I had to walk, walk 12 miles, no matter what the weather, to school."

"We never had any of your high-fashion, high-priced Sunice jackets, either, to keep us warm. We were lucky to have a pair of boots, most of us walked in our shoes."

Christmas, especially if it's cold and snowy seems to bring out the old stories. With a house full of aunts, uncles, cousins and grandparents, it's a very important part of the holiday season.

Told over and over again,

Coffee With Chris

By Chris Kreiser

these little bits of family history live on forever — and ever!

I can handle Dad's 'you-kids-don't-know-what-real-snow-is' story, but just for one year I'd like to get past the turkey bake of '65.

In my parents' house it never fails that when the turkey is put on the table someone grinningly inquires: "Remember Dad, the first turkey Chris cooked for you?"

Instant laughter follows. I get a sinking feeling in my stomach. Here we go again.

I was 10 years old the summer of the infamous turkey bake. My father was a land assessor at the time and had accepted a job in the Ponoka area for the summer.

While the rest of the family tended the family farm in Rocky Mountain House, my younger sister and I were given the opportunity to spend the summer in a holiday trailer with Dad by a small lake just outside Ponoka.

We were thrilled and spent the days swimming and enjoying the sun. My only chore was to prepare supper.

After about a week of macaroni and wieners I decided Dad deserved some variety in his diet. Off I went to the little country store.

It had everything from rubber boots to fishing tackle to fresh produce. I picked the only chicken there. It was rather big but that didn't deter me. In fact, it was a 15-pound turkey.

I had no idea — no idea it was a turkey and no idea how to cut it up. It took me almost all afternoon.

I started cooking, knowing I was really doing something special for Dad. I filled every pot we had in the trailer; all four burners working overtime. It was mostly cooked by the time Dad arrived home.

Proudly I set the table and just as he walked in, I set the turkey on the table. Turkey...nothing but turkey. I had completely forgotten to cook potatoes or vegetables or even gravy.

As everyone is laughing at the Christmas dinner table Dad smiles and doesn't say too much...just "pass the potatoes, pass the vegetables, pass the gravy."

I just smile. What would Christmas be without those stories?

I look out the window and see the snow. It's good to see it can still get cold in this country. I say, let it snow, let it snow, let it snow.

How else will our kids in turn be able to say to their children: "Kids nowadays, you've got it soft. Why, when I was only half your age I had to walk two miles to the school bus stop and all I had was one of those flimsy, cheap Sunice jackets to keep me warm!"

Here's hoping your Christmas was merry and the new year is the best one yet!

Refrigerator warning issued

Owners of certain 13-cubic-foot, two-door frost-free refrigerators produced under the brand names Westinghouse, RCA, General Electric or Hotpoint are warned to stop using them immediately because they pose a possible fire hazard.

Investigation of 15 incidents revealed an electrical connection inside the drip tray deteriorates over a period of several years and may overheat causing the plastic drip tray to ignite.

This type of heater was used in about 199,000 refrigerators built between 1968 and 1978. Models having the following prefix numbers are involved:

Westinghouse (1968-1976) - RHJ13, RHJ21, RHK21, RLJ2,

RPJ3, RPK3, GJ21, RJJ3, RJJ4, RJK3, RJK4, RH130L, RT130L, RT130M, RT130P, RT131P, RT133P, RT135P, RT130R, RT131R, RT132R, RT133R, RT136R, RF131R, RF133R.

RCA (1972-76) - KXD113, KX113, KFC213, KFD213, KFC213.

Hotpoint (1977-78) - RF131B, RF133B, RF138B, RT132B, RT134B. General Electric (1977-78) - L13JCP, L13JDP, L13JLP, L13JRP, L13JQ, L13JQ, L13JL, L13JRP.

If you own one of these refrigerators, unplug it and have a qualified appliance serviceman disconnect the drip tray heater. The drip tray will then have to be emptied manually at regular intervals.

Tobogganing an outdoor activity enjoyed by adults and children

By Samia Vallewand
Consumers' Association
Children need active play to develop co-ordination and to help muscular growth. This is especially important during the winter months when they are required to stay indoors so much.

One outdoor activity children and adults alike can enjoy is tobogganing. A well-chosen one can greatly enhance playtime. If you are planning to purchase a sliding toy this winter there are some important factors to take into account.

Look for equipment that is rust-proof and smoothly finished. A toboggan that is easy to steer is safer and handles better on the hill. Brakes mean not having to use your body to stop — less chance for injuries and less wear and tear on mitts and snowpants. As well, handles help steer and provide a place for hands to rest.

It's a struggle up the hill for little ones and those of us not in the best physical shape. It stands to reason, therefore, that light sleds are easier to pull up snowy slopes. A good tow rope is also a help. Consider who will be using the sled. They come in many sizes, shapes and forms — some are best suited for the novice slider and others for the more intrepid. Choose a durable toboggan. Steel ones can bend; plastic can crack. The most sturdy are the wooden ones. But most of these must be finished on underside with varnish and/or waxing.

Remember: Each year children and adults are injured on the slopes from sliding accidents. Head cuts, fractures and concussions are the most commonplace injuries treated. Others include sprained and broken limbs, stomach, back and chest bruising.

Teach your children that sliding safely means keeping their eyes open on the ride down and their hands and feet on the sled. It also means walking back up the run, well away from other sliders and not heading for those snowy jumps that can result in very hard landings.

Canadian Consumer tested some sliding toys and the information is just a call away at 420-0747.

Christmas spirit in at meeting

Submitted by Darlene VanEmber
The Drayton Valley Oil Wives club held its Christmas dinner meeting Dec. 11. The friendship candle was lit by Debbie Dusterhoft, an Oil Wife for seven years and card chairman this term. Our friendship poem was presented by Connie McAllister. She chose a very seasonal and inspirational passage from the Bible.

The friendship mug was prepared with Christmas ornaments and treats by Trudy Korpeln and Dianna McQueen. It was won by a new member, Colleen Todd.

Lou Taylor was presented with her 20-year club pin and birthday greetings as well.

Christmas dinner meetings wouldn't be the same without one of Pat Jenkins' jokes, and we weren't disappointed.

Thank you to Leanne Winder, Marlene Baumann and Kelly Kristiansen for their excellent performances for our entertainment.

Secret sister gifts adorned the tables. Remember your secret sister over the holidays. This is your last chance. Jan. 8 is revealing.

With a visit from Santa Claus the spirit of Christmas was truly in the air.

From the Oil Wives club of Drayton Valley: Merry Christmas to all and to all many new friendships in 1990.

Kitchen right out of mom's imagination...pride shows throughout this home

Home of the Week

The owners are proud of their home and their pride shows throughout this cozy bungalow.

The prime location as well as a great neighborhood and large corner lot make this home the one to look at first.

Three bedrooms upstairs and a huge countrystyle kitchen expands the 1,056 square feet to a very convenient size.

The kitchen is just right out of mom's imagination, loads of European style cupboards, easy care flooring and 'big' windows.

Does it have a garage? Oh, yes, with kids' play gym outside.

A large screened patio covers the back entry. No more mosquitos for those summer barbecues.

Priced to sell at $89,900. Call Venture Realty today.

Sing a song for the season

The Frank Maddock high school band and choir, led by principal Al Day, go into a tune for Christmas.

Your splash or mine?

Two children, two bathing suits and a pool of water...the elements of a fun afternoon.

The truth will set us free

It's been remarkable to watch events unfold in eastern Europe. Barriers to freedom of speech, travel and expression have been coming down for millions of Russians, Germans and Czechoslovakians.

Freedom...people will forsake their families, homes, friends, fortunes, even their own lives for it.

Jesus says, "If you hold to My teaching, you are really My disciples. Then you will know the truth and the truth will set you free." (John 8:31, 32)

That's quite a promise when you think about it.

What Jesus is saying is that if we follow Him and His teachings (which is what a true disciple does) the truth will be a part of us. So what does Jesus teach? He teaches many things which are best summed up in these two commands: Love the Lord your God with all your heart and love your neighbor as yourself.

Putting it as simply as possible, if there's love, then there can be truth in your life and mine. Where there's love, people don't need to hide the truth from each other. We aren't afraid to speak what we think and feel because the one who loves us will accept us in any event.

Furthermore, if we love God with all our hearts, we will follow Jesus, God's Son, as our Saviour. That's when the freedom begins to happen. When you and I face the truth of sin in our lives and our need for a Saviour, we are in a position to be set free. The truth sets us free as we trust Jesus and not ourselves for salvation. In a sense, we forsake ourselves to follow Jesus. In His love and forgiveness, He will control us instead of our sinful nature if we ask Him to.

Oh, what freedom to know there's nothing between me and God. The sin is forgiven; I'm free.

This Christmas season, would you consider following Jesus, the source of truth, that sets us free?

$1.47 M survey will focus on travel patterns of tourists

Federal Minister of Small Business and Tourism Tom Hockin and Alberta Tourism Minister Don Sparrow have signed a contract for more than $1.1 million in Canada/Alberta tourism agreement funding to assist with a comprehensive Alberta travel study.

The $1.47 million survey will focus on the travel patterns of visitors to Alberta. Non-resident travellers will be interviewed as they leave the province at selected highway locations, airports, train stations, bus depots and on motorcoach tours. The questionnaire will consist of a personal interview and a more detailed mail-back portion.

The survey will enable Alberta Tourism to obtain reliable estimates of non-resident visitation levels, travel patterns and expenditures over an entire year.

Additional information to be collected will include the types of activities participated in while visiting Alberta and the level of satisfaction experienced.

Survey results will be used by the public and private sector to assist with planning, development and marketing decisions. They will also play a vital role in contributing to tourism policy setting and forecasting.

Where's Jane?

Four-year-old Doug Graham likes to get a bird's eye view from a bushy vantage point. His older brother chose not to join him in this venture and stayed below.

Town waits for official count

The town is anxiously waiting to find out what Drayton Valley's official population is. Robin Wenbourne, municipal secretary, is hoping it's up from the previous 5,280. Her prediction is 5,500. Population figures were sent to municipal affairs at the end of June following a local head count.

The Drayton Valley Junior Forest Wardens wish to thank all of the people who supported our club these last five years.

It is with regret that due to lack of support the club is going to be inactive. If, at a later date, anyone is interested in reorganizing, the records will be at head office in Edmonton. Our equipment and monies raised were donated to various charitable organizations.

Campground will be upgraded

Drayton Valley has received a $50,000 provincial grant to assist with the upgrading of West Valley Park.

Grant funds will be utilized to upgrade the campground area in the park which will include washroom facilities. Some of the funds are also earmarked for a hiking trail.

Upon completion of the project, the town will be eligible to receive an annual operating grant of up to $10,000.

The grant is part of the $2.3 million awarded to 41 municipalities in Alberta to enhance or develop local outdoor recreation areas.

Grant funds are provided through the Alberta Heritage Savings Trust Fund to assist in the development or upgrading of facilities in recreation areas throughout the province.

Under the program Alberta municipalities, service clubs and associations are eligible for capital grants of up to $100,000 to develop or upgrade outdoor recreation facilities. In addition, annual operating and maintenance grants of up to 20 per cent of the capital grants are available for 25 years upon completion of the project.

Alaskan adventure film sponsored by churches

Cry From the Mountain, a World-Wide Pictures production, is an adventure film set in the majestic wilderness of Alaska.

Scene after scene portrays the beauty and wildlife of this "last frontier" state.

The story centres around the Sanders family. Larry Sanders takes his 10-year-old son Carl on a camping trip where he is to break the news that he and his wife Carolyn are getting a divorce.

Meanwhile Carolyn, filled with bitterness and unable to forgive her husband for an affair he has had with a woman in his office, considers the option of having an abortion. Through a life-threatening accident and an old hermit living in a deserted mining camp, the course of events is changed for the Sanders.

The film is sponsored by the churches of the Drayton Valley Ministerial Association. Everyone is welcome to attend Sunday, July 23 at 7 p.m. at the Calvary Baptist Church.

There is no admission charge.

Crow benefit changes to go through transition phase

Changes to the rate of the Alberta Crow Benefit Offset program will be phased in.

Program payments will go through a transition phase between Sept. 1 when the new rate of $10 per tonne takes effect, and Jan. 31.

Feed grain purchased and delivered before Sept. 1 will be eligible for the $13 per tonne benefit, providing it is paid for in full before Jan.

31. A certificate must also be issued before that date. Grain delivered and paid for in full after Sept. 1 will be eligible for the new rate of $10 per tonne.

Home grown grain fed before Sept. 1 may be claimed by registered producers at the $13 per tonne rate, if the claims are submitted before the Jan. 31 deadline. If the grain is fed after Sept. 1 it is eligible for the $10 per tonne benefit.

There will be two claim periods this year for home-grown grain. They are: the two-month period between July 1 and Aug. 31; and the four months from the beginning of the new rate on Sept. 1 until Dec. 31.

Letters outlining the guidelines have been sent to all registered producers.

"Thank God for my children, family, friends, church

By Bonnie Terry
DV Church of God
"Your husband died."

What force those words hit with as I lay on a stretcher in the Peace River hospital. Only three short hours earlier we had been a whole family. Now, after a head-on collision we were missing a very important member of that family unit.

No! This must be a nightmare, it can't really be happening. God wouldn't let this happen to us. We've dedicated our lives to serving Him. No! It can't be.

Soon I'll wake up and everything will be normal again. My husband is a minister, he's spent years preparing himself to serve the Lord. Biggar, Anderson, Indiana, Prince George, Bervyn — always we've been in the ministry, preparing for the ministry or actively involved in the work of the church.

My children come in to reassure me. "It's okay mom, dad's gone to be with Jesus." Thank God for children, but so young to be without a father: 11, nine and two-and-a-half years. "Oh God, why? I can't do this alone."

Loving, caring, concerned family members begin to surround us with their love as they share our grief. They help with so many details that have to be looked after, care for the children, help us pack.

From the Pastor's Pen

Churches across Canada and even in the States began praying for us. Telephone calls, cards, letters, money, visits, flowers and a large funeral. I guess it's real. I'm not going to wake up and find it's all okay. Why, Lord, why? Please help us. I need my husband, my children need their father. He was so young and still had so much to offer.

We move to Drayton Valley to be near my family and the church I grew up in, the Church of God. I thank God for my children, my family, my friends, my church and strangers who took the time to give encouragement, to offer help when needed, to get me involved in activities, to give a hug, to listen and to pray.

God finally got through to me again; I began to realize He hadn't abandoned us but that He was showing His love through His people.

Two scriptures kept going through my mind: For He causes His sun to rise on the evil and the good, and sends rain on the righteous and the unrighteous' (Matthew 5:45) and... 'Lo, I am with you always, even to the end of the age.' (Matthew 28:20)

I began to come out into the light, returning from the dark alley of the shadow of death. God never promised me that just because I was a Christian and desired to serve Him I would never face tragedy, sorrow and despair, but He did promise me He would be with me always. That's what gets us through each day. No matter what we face, God is with us and will give us the strength we need to be victorious over whatever comes our way.

I thank God for the light He can give us if we trust in Him. I can smile again and mean it. I can laugh and enjoy life and my family. It takes time to get over the loss of a loved one or any other tragedy — give it time, trust in God, allow your family and loved ones to minister to you and get involved in doing something for others.

Walton starts own firm

Dan Walton has left the forest service to open his own consulting firm in Lodgepole.

Walton, who spent 10 years with the forest service including the last six with the ranger station in Lodgepole, received permission to proceed with an office and garage at last week's MD meeting.

Walton says there's a definite need for a consulting firm such as his, considering all the logging and lumber expansion in the area.

HATS OFF TO OUR HEROS

Larry Edwards loves his job as paramedic with Associated Ambulance Service.

"You always have to be on your toes," he says. "Every time you go out on a call in this job, you're learning something."

"It's a hard type of work, especially for someone with a family," Larry says if his wife didn't have the wonderful temperament she does, it would be very difficult because of the longer hours and longer shifts worked in rural settings.

He came to Drayton Valley one year ago to supervise and initiate advanced life support (a classification of personnel on the ambulance).

The people Larry cares for make his job more rewarding, as well as variety. "No two calls are the same."

Certificate Career Programs

In Alberta's expanding economy, it's people with skills who get the jobs. And there's no place like NAIT for acquiring job skills. Why not look into enrolling in one of the following one-year certificate programs this fall:

- Diesel Mechanics
- Millwork and Carpentry
- Welding

Consider the advantages of a certificate program:

- the programs are only 34 weeks in length
- you don't need a high school diploma to enrol - grade X English, Math and Science are required
- job opportunities for graduates are expanding
- credit toward apprenticeship training may be granted
- financial assistance may be available for qualifying applicants.

Programs begin in late August, 1989. Enrolments are limited by quotas. Apply now to avoid disappointment. For additional information, call

Nautical crime wave hits Buck Lake

By Susan Mosciicki

A rash of thefts in the Buck Lake area over the past six to eight weeks could be related according to Breton RCMP Cst. Peter Clark.

"Over the last six weeks or so, we seem to be getting thefts around recreational properties at the lake."

"We're starting to wonder if they are related," he said. "It is unusual to have so many thefts in the area."

During the weekend of the Buck Lake fish derby in June, thieves removed $2,000 worth of fishing tackle from a recreational trailer.

On the same weekend, thieves reportedly pulled up beside a boat on the lake and took fishing equipment, life jackets, etc.

In early July, a man from Rocky Mountain House reported somebody took his motor, valued at $1,300, off his boat which was parked on the lake.

Later the same month, a West Point (west side of Buck Lake) property owner reported fishing equipment having been stolen out of his boat. (Cont'd on page 2)

Charges laid after highway fatalities

By Susan Mosciicki

A 35 year old Fallis man is facing several charges in respect to an accident that claimed the lives of a Drayton Valley woman and her two young children June 3.

Margaret Doreen Henriksen, 32, her six year old daughter Laura, and four month old baby Dallin, travelling in a station wagon, were pronounced dead at the scene of the two vehicle collision on Highway 22, about six and a half kilometres off Highway 16.

Edward Mark Borle, the driver and sole occupant of the other vehicle, was taken to hospital with leg and facial injuries.

Borle will be appearing in Evansburg Provincial Court August 14. He is charged with impaired driving, refusing to provide a blood sample, operating a motor vehicle in a manner dangerous to the public (dangerous driving), and driving without due care and attention.

Council eases tax burden of local property owners

By Frank Ryan

Town council has taken some drastic steps to ease the tax burden faced by 400 property owners.

In the wake of the general assessment which affected the tax roll this year, the town has decided:

- That properties considered by council to be affected by an increase in 1989 taxes, which amounts in excess of a 10 per cent increase of 1988 taxes, excluding those where improvements were added for 1989, were in progress of construction during 1988, zoning or classification, or use of the property was changed during 1988, may receive abatement to a maximum of the remaining 90 per cent.

- That properties under construction in 1988, or where improvements were performed in 1988, may be individually considered by council for abatement of property taxes.

- And, council may consider any other property for adjustment in tax where it is considered equitable to do so.

The action will cost the town between $100,000 and $150,000.

In some cases, property taxes went up 36 per cent.

Most of the affected properties are residential. Only about 20 are businesses.

Councillor Alex Salt feels the decision will satisfy nearly all the property owners in town.

When the original tax notices went out, about 75 per cent of the residential taxpayers either saw a decrease or their taxes stayed the same.

The town plan to contact the property owners who will be affected by last week's decision.

Taxes are due tomorrow (Wednesday).

The town also plans to ask provincial assessors to do a general assessment next year. This is usually done every seven years.

Last week's decision that will affect town coffers, is a direct result of an investigation ordered by Mayor Bob Mayhew. The recommendations were forwarded by administration.

Crosswalk lights at the corner of 50th Ave. and 48 Street are scheduled to be operational before school resumes.

And, traffic lights at the Turbo and North Red Rooster corners are also expected to be in operation by September 1.

The 'old fort' at the Eldorado school playground site was removed last week.

A new playground structure is scheduled to be installed by volunteers in late August.

Yellowhead MP Joe Clark has been criticized by NDP MP Ross Harvey for shelling up $239,500 in jet travel costs during the month of June. The costs were the result of three trips Clark made.

It will be at least three weeks before any earth moving work is seen on Secondary Road 620.

Crushing for the project, which involves paving from Lodgepole to the Elk River corner, is currently underway.

A passing lane near Violet Grove and widening 34th Ave. near the mill are also part of the province's $5 million project.

Some councillors had to shift positions during last Thursday's meeting as the public address system was not working properly.

A meeting was scheduled for today (Tuesday) between the town and school authorities to officially sign the joint use agreement.

Sixty-eight people attended the Court of Revision last week.

The session, arranged to hear tax complaints, lasted 21 hours over a span of two days.

The municipal election will be held October 16. The nomination deadline is four weeks prior to the election.

It will take a while for this osprey's wing to mend after being shot. X-rays also revealed bullet fragments in his chest. Dr. Round will send the bird to the University game farm after nursing it back to health.

'Animals are not target practice'

By Sue Kenyon
Rocky Rapids veterinarian, Dr. John Round is once again nursing another wild animal back to health.

One month ago an elk calf was treated for dehydration and malnutrition after its mother had been shot. The calf wandered around aimlessly before being rescued by Fred Kreiser, Fish and Wildlife officer.

This time it is a two month old osprey. The bird, from the hawk family, has been shot in the wing and x-rays reveal bullet fragments in the chest.

"People have to learn that these animals are not target practice," Kathy Lee, veterinarian technician said. Lee said they could not save a crane which had been found. It was treated but later died of its wounds.

Dr. Round said the bird had an old wound which was already infested by maggots.

"It was starving because being shot in the leg, the wound was keeping it from getting prey," he said.

Round says most of the wild animals he sees have been found in the Brazeau recreation area south west of Lodgepole.

Anyone with information on illegal shootings should get in touch with Fish and Wildlife at 542-5757.

Kreiser says he is not sure whether the shootings of the crane and osprey were intentional, but even so, they carry heavy fines.

"Both are endangered species which carries a fine of up to $100,000 or six months in jail or both," Kreiser says.

There are endangered species around the Drayton Valley and Brazeau area and Kreiser says people should be made aware of it.

Kreiser warns those who have private fish farms, who are having problems with these species catching the fish that they still have no right to kill the birds.

"If anyone has trouble with cranes or anything, they should phone us. We have ways of attracting the birds away to other fishing holes. People should be aware that even if these birds are fishing from private fish farms, it is still illegal to shoot them. You don't resort to killing an endangered species to save a fish."

Lee said the elk calf which did survive the ordeal has been transported to Edmonton and is now living in the University Game Farm.

Buck Lake thefts... cont'd

Between July 17 and 18, a man camping at the south end of Buck Lake found a jack-all had been stolen from the back of his truck.

"It's too bad you can't even go fishing anymore without people stealing your stuff," said Howard Ganske, the West Point property owner.

Ganske said he and some friends observed a suspicious boat on the lake after dark.

It was operating without lights, and according to Ganske, it appeared that there were two people because he could see the glow of cigarettes.

Since November, Round has treated three owls, one crane, one deer calf, one elk calf and now an osprey.

Kreiser admires the work of Round and the time he devotes to caring for the wildlife.

"He does it all at his own cost because of the interest he takes in his job."

Tomahawk gets paved if weather cooperates

If the weatherman cooperates a major paving project will be done in the Tomahawk area this summer.

Alberta Transportation plans to call for tenders next month on base pavement construction on Secondary Highway 759 from the junction of Secondary Highway 524, just south of Tomahawk, for 21.5 kilometres to Seba Beach.

The weatherman may not be the only obstacle.

Charles Lendzion, regional director for Alberta Transportation says his department has been experiencing a real problem with contractors.

"Whoever it is out there doing it (stealing), they're not stupid," he said.

Ganske was of the opinion there was a connection between some of the thefts. "You would assume they were related."

Police are seeking public assistance in these matters.

Man charged after accident

By Susan Moscicki
Michael Monty, 26, of Wildwood, will appear in court August 14 facing several charges in connection with an accident in which two men were seriously injured.

Monty's car and a motorcycle driven by Ricky Block, 23, collided on Highway 16 at Wildwood June 17.

Donald Yuhasz, 31, of Drayton Valley, a passenger in the car, is still in hospital, but his condition is reported as being "pretty good" by the Misericordia Hospital staff in Edmonton.

Block was also taken to hospital, but has since been released.

Monty and one other passenger in his vehicle were not injured.

Cst. Nicholson of the RCMP detachment said Monty will appear in Evansburg Provincial Court facing a charge of following too closely, failing to remain at the scene of an accident or return, and possession of a narcotic (hashish).

"They're really busy. It's difficult getting hold of a crusher," Lendzion said last week from his office in Barrhead.

Because of this, and the fact Alberta Transportation is already 20 days behind with the paving projects, the Tomahawk/Seba Beach project may be delayed until next year.

"It all depends on the weather," Lendzion admitted.

Calling for the tenders and the pending paving was welcome news for Tomahawk area resident Frank Gilbert. Gilbert, who had taken a petition to the County of Parkland recently urging some improvements to the route, welcomed the news.

According to Lendzion, paving the Tomahawk/Seba Beach stretch on Highway 759 was number one on the county's priority list.

"News of this project is welcome indeed. Work on this road is one more step toward providing another modern route in the area," Drayton Valley MLA Tom Thurber says.

Violet Grove woman raises champion dogs

By Sue Kenyon

Moving from toy poodles to bull mastiffs is a big step, but one Say Beauchamp does not regret.

Beauchamp breeds and shows most of her dogs, which total seven. Prince, Lance and Misty all have points towards becoming Canadian champions and Major and Shara are now holding the championship title. Pebbles and Meighan have not yet accomplished such feats.

It isn't rare to find more than seven dogs at one time on the property of the Beauchamps as they also run a kennel in their spare time.

There are 10 runs and holding pens in the kennel and they are now full.

"July, August and Christmas tend to be our busiest times," Beauchamp explained. However, there are no plans for expanding as it is not always so busy.

"If I found the kennel always full, then I would consider it."

Beauchamp used to breed toy poodles. She also used to have her own grooming facilities in Calgary for poodles only.

"When we moved here the need just didn't seem to be there. My husband, Lance, fell in love with bull mastiffs and I learned to love them."

It wasn't love at first sight between her and their first dog.

"I saw one of those and I just thought, that is far too much dog for me," she remembers.

Now, Beauchamp wouldn't give them up.

When Thor, the first bull mastiff they owned, died recently, it cost quite a penny to bury him on their property.

"It was in the middle of winter so we had to hire a machine to dig the hole," she says.

Lance built a coffin for the dog and Thor is now buried in his favorite apple orchard.

Bull mastiffs were originally bred for guarding, according to Beauchamp.

"They were bred to guard estates from poachers in England and were trained to hold the poacher until help arrived."

Beauchamp stresses how gentle these 120 to 200 pound dogs are with their weight.

"They are very quiet, they don't have to be cross to guard and they only guard when they have to."

The Beauchamps have been raising bull mastiffs since 1977 and have been breeding for four years. They have built such a reputation with their kennel facilities they receive calls from Edmonton and Calgary and as far away as Medicine Hat.

Canadian champion, Major, knows what it means to look good and act just like a pro. Say Beauchamp, Major's master has six more just like him. In the beginning, Say felt it was too much dog after working with toy poodles but now she wouldn't give up at all.

Residential subdivision planned

A 35-lot residential subdivision is being planned for the east side of town.

Town council heard about the proposal during last Thursday's meeting.

The subdivision being planned by Glen Bowen will see approximately nine acres being subdivided to create 35 lots 118 by 57 feet each.

The municipal planning commission (MPC) approved the proposal in principal at their June 27 meeting. The area has to be rezoned from urban services to R-1A single family residential.

Some of the concerns raised by MPC included no laneways, the fact that a Northwestern Utilities pipeline runs through five or six lots, drainage and that the lot sizes do not meet regulations.

Negotiations with the developer will address such issues as larger lots, a park area within the pipeline easement and laneways.

Firemen answer school alarm

The Drayton Valley fire department rushed to the H.W. Pickup Junior High school last Monday.

A caller said two boys, armed with a gas can, were lighting a fire in front of the school. However, they were nowhere in sight when the fire department and RCMP arrived on the scene.

The gas can had been taken out of a shed behind the school and was being used by the janitor, who was busy on the grounds cutting grass.

Fire Chief Sheldon Fuson, the first on the scene, feels the siren on his car may have scared the boys off.

Because of the threat of a possible fire at the school, Fuson didn't hesitate in calling two trucks to the scene.

Community bus gives locals a sense of pride

Local groups, organizations and teams who travel to out-of-town events are fortunate to have the services of their own community bus.

The Drayton Valley Community Bus Association is sponsored jointly by the Kinsmen, Lions, Legion and Elks. They contribute a yearly sum toward maintenance and operating costs.

Over the years they have been able to improve on their fleet, and today, offer patrons the use of two buses and a van.

These buses are often seen travelling the highways in Western Canada and the U.S.

The name 'Drayton Valley Community Bus' flashed across the side, gives local residents a sense of pride.

In fact, that's a feeling many residents who come from rural town Alberta have, when they ride in or see one of their community buses.

The Community Bus Association appreciates the support they have received in past years and hope it continues.

In fact, their life hinges on that support.

At the present time the association is looking at a $37,000 deficit. It was $46,000 18 months ago. But business has been fairly good, which is the reason the debt has been reduced.

But, this support has to continue. In fact, it has to increase.

Costs are always going up. And the cost of a new bus is always lurking around the next bend in the road.

If your group, organization or team is going on the road...take a community bus. They are in business for your convenience.

Gravel makes Lumby a lumpy golf course

SUMMER...I hope you enjoyed what we saw of it last week.

Thank God school is over. For no other reason than, we don't have to listen to the noon hour announcements coming from H. W. Pickup.

Maybe next year, we can get the school secretary to turn down the volume.

It never ceases to amaze me, that so many of the people in the boating commercials don't wear life jackets. We're even seeing it in real life. For proof, visit some of the area lakes.

Frankly Speaking

By Frank Ryan

Danny Thompson has lots of tales to tell about his time out on the golf course.

But, how about this one.

During a Canada Day weekend jaunt to Vernon for a 170-team slow pitch tourney, he had the opportunity to golf at the Lumby course.

Danny has golfed on lots of sand and grass green courses and even the odd artificial green, but never GRAVEL.

That's right...gravel greens. He says it was a rare experience.

By the way, Danny isn't saying what his score was on the Lumby course.

A bouquet to Jim and Wilma Enyedy, who did an admirable job running the community buses.

In an effort to save some money the community bus association has dissolved the position of manager.

Complaints about yards spark transport inquiry

Alberta Transportation is looking into complaints about their yards in Drayton Valley.

Charles Lendzion, regional director says claims of sand blowing off piles in their 50th Street yard is news to him.

According to Robin Wenbourne, municipal secretary, the town has received numerous complaints from nearby residents of sand blowing off the piles.

"I'm unaware of any complaints," Lendzion said from his Barrhead office last week.

Despite rumors that Alberta Transportation might be moving, Lendzion says their 50th Street location is quite satisfactory.

He says any thought of moving the highways' yard was promoted by the town.

"They suggested it was prime land," the regional director stated.

Although Alberta Transportation doesn't have any immediate plans to relocate, they have indicated to the town the possibility, was good, if another site could be arranged.

Council heard at their June 26 meeting that if equivalent property and facilities could be provided at minimal or no cost in the form of a land exchange, then Alberta Transportation would give consideration to the town's proposal.

RCMP busy but courts experience summer lull

Although the RCMP are increasingly busy throughout the summer months, the courts have a bit of a slow-down.

This is mainly "due to the unavailability of people (lawyers, witnesses, etc.)" because of summer vacations, said Const. Al Kaufmann of the Drayton Valley detachment.

Kaufmann said traffic offences increase over the summer, but the actual impact on the court system is in September, October and November. "The courts are really busy in late summer and early fall."

It sometimes takes what may seem a long time before some people actually have their 'day in court', but it is not unreasonable when you understand the system, Kaufmann said.

"The legal system is set up to bend over backwards for the accused and there are those that abuse it, but in the long run, it works."

Legion lobbying against turbans

By Paul Cudla

The Royal Canadian Legion has taken a firm stand against Sikhs wearing turbans and beards as members of the RCMP.

The Drayton Valley Legion is currently collecting signatures on a petition which lobbies against Sikhs wearing traditional dress as members of the RCMP. They have collected about 440 signatures so far.

The Legion formulated and passed a position statement denouncing the RCMP for its change in dress policy at a convention held in Edmonton June 10-14. The Alberta-

N.W.T. command convention was attended by over 700 delegates.

The RCMP dress code was changed last April allowing Sikhs to wear beards, RCMP-issued turbans and ceremonial swords.

Vern Bartlett, president of the Drayton Valley Legion, says it is important for the Legion to take a stand on the Sikh-RCMP issue.

"The Legion is based on protocol, and part of the symbol of Canada is their (RCMP's) traditional uniform."

"We have an affiliation with the RCMP. They are eligible for ordinary membership at the Legion. We expect RCMP to be involved (with the Legion)," Bartlett says.

Petitions are at all Legions in Alberta and will be sent to the House of Commons in Ottawa.

Bartlett adds similarities exist in the traditional, symbolic dress of the Legion uniform and the traditional attire of the RCMP.

"If they (Sikhs) come to the country and want to join; accept the tradition that is there or don't join," Bartlett says.

go in and look after them."

Beauchamp recommends people check out kennel facilities before calling up and booking space for their pet.

"People should go to the kennel before-hand and check it out for cleanliness. See how much room the animals have to move around."

If you are boarding a dog, Beauchamp says there should be a run so the animal isn't locked up in a cage for the time you're gone.

She says there are good kennels and bad ones and it is up to the owner to find the best for their pet.

Spot is okay, Whiskers out of luck

By Sue Kenyon

There are some good dog kennels around if you are wondering where to put Spot during your summer holiday, but as for Whiskers the cat, there aren't too many choices.

This is one of the busiest times for dog kennel operators.

Say Beauchamp who runs Country Lane Kennels in Violet Grove has 10 runs which are now full.

"It's like a hotel this time of year. One guest leaves and you just get the bed made up and another one arrives," she says.

Beauchamp recommends that you don't leave animals to fend for themselves if you are planning a trip.

"The money people spend on their own vacation, the cost isn't that much to board animals to keep them safe."

For cat owners, it appears the only places available are veterinarian offices.

"We don't get too many in here. In a year we may get 10 and the most we've ever had in at one time is two," veterinarian, Dr. John Round, of Rocky Rapids veterinarian services says.

He believes the reason why there is not such a demand for cat kennels is because people leave them at home.

"Most people I think probably just have a friend

Local food bank stalemated by lack of building space

Catherine Meredith and Eva Flanders.

By Susan Moscioli
The organizers of a local food bank say until they can get a building to operate out of, they are at a stalemate.

"We're desperately in need of a building for as little rent as possible, or no rent, until we get a cash flow," said

Catherine Meredith.

"We really feel bad when people call and need food now, and we haven't got it for them," said Eva Flanders.

"One woman with three or four children didn't know where to turn. She was right out of food and she said she tried social services to try to get a voucher and they turned her down."

The two women say most of the paperwork for the food bank is now in order, and estimate it to be complete in about two weeks. "If we can, we want to be called the Low Income Society Food Bank," said Meredith.

The pair have drawn up a logo for the new society. It is a heart with a large hand reaching down, and a small hand reaching up to grasp it.

"To me," Meredith said, "the big hand represents the community and the little hand represents the people that need the help and the heart represents love because that's where the love comes from - your heart."

Plan irks councillors

A letter of intent for a proposed industrial subdivision on the north side of town drew the ire of two councillors last Thursday.

In an effort to speed up the process, the letter was presented to council instead of the usual development permit

Tom McGee said he was puzzled by the change in procedure.

"Why is this letter coming to us and we never see any of the others," Jean Saunders questioned.

"It's not that we are all of a sudden doing this. It has been done before," replied town manager Manny Deol.

Charlie Miner, chairman of the planning commission, who originally introduced the letter of intent, said it was quite adequate.

Despite the difference of opinion, unanimous approval was given for the 17 acre proposal.

Civic centre competes

The town's new $1.6 million Civic Centre is being entered in an architect's competition.

Kees Prins, the architect for the building which was originally Drayton Valley's ice arena, told council last week that it was being entered in a competition.

Photographs are also being submitted to a Canadian architectural publication.

Prins informed council that many of his associates were amazed that the building was once the community's arena.

MD appoints returning officer

Jeff Wardlow, director of administration for the MD of Brazeau, has been appointed by MD council as returning officer.

"To my understanding, there will be a senate selection in October to be run with the municipal election," he said.

"The municipal election is slated for October 16."

"We will be setting up voting stations very similar to the last one held in Brazeau," said Wardlow. "We may or may not have an advanced vote this time."

Wardlow's job is "monitoring ballot boxes, to appoint people to help and make sure proper procedure is followed."

"It appears, at the present time, that all systems are go. We're ordering ballot boxes."

Real estate agents say now is the time to buy

By Sue Kenyon
There are 40 per cent fewer houses on the market this year compared to 1988, but this is the time to buy, real estate agents in Drayton Valley, say.

Rod Schultz, sales manager of Venture Realty says buyers looking at new homes should not wait, as he expects to see prices rise 5 per cent by next year.

"Due to the sales tax brought in, it will increase the price of materials which will then raise the price of the house," he said.

Although this year there has been a lot of movement with the homes priced in the $70,000-$90,000 range, realtors see that changing too.

"The market has been really soft for the homes priced $130,000+, but it may change," Schultz said.

PRH Home Equity, head company of Venture Real Estate has informed Schultz and other agents that there is a lot of activity expected in the oil industry.

"We've been told to expect brisk activity," he said.

He expects a lot of movement back and forth beginning as soon as this fall.

"Because of the mergers of the larger companies there will be people moving in and out. There will probably be just as many people moving in as moving out but it will be a busy time this autumn."

Reg Doucet, sales manager of Farmers and Ranchers also expects activity in September.

"I expect to see the executive homes become popular again. The whole thing goes in a cycle. They've been unpopular but I expect the market to start moving again," he said.

Both managers agree that the buyer of today is not the naive push-over of yesterday.

"These people know what they want and they know when a house is overpriced. If it is even $2,000-$5,000 over priced, it will just sit," Schultz said.

Doucet says he has sold more property this year, about 10 per cent more and Al Chesterman, building inspector for the town says even building permits for new homes increased in 1989 over 1988.

"In 1988 there were 52 new home building permits and this year already there have been 52," he said.

Drayton Valley players excel at tourney

The Alberta youth all-star baseball team finished with a disappointing 1-3 won/loss record at the national tournament in Brandon recently.

Despite the team's overall performance, two players from Drayton Valley played well.

Joey Hutzal and Corey Dusterhoft starred for Team Alberta which beat P.E.I. but lost to Manitoba, New Brunswick and Quebec. Quebec won the tournament by beating Ontario in the final.

Hutzal, who played second base, led Alberta at the plate hitting at a .538 clip. He was 7 for 13 in the tournament.

Dusterhoft pitched in Alberta's only win against P.E.I. He hurled a four-hitter in the 7-0 win.

Matching grant spawns project analysis

The town has received a $40,000 matching grant from the province's Community Facilities Enhancement program.

Two projects are currently being investigated by recreation director Paul Nielsen.

These include upgrading of Rotary Park and a new ice plant for the Drayton Sports Centre.

Costs will be presented to next month's council meeting at which time a decision will be made on where to spend the money. Only one of the two projects will be selected.

Tentative plans for Rotary Park include putting a proper border around the sandy area, repainting the old pool building, improving the lighting, spreading the playground equipment around the park and creating a better picnic area.

However, most of Nielsen's attention at the present time is being directed to leaks in the current ice machine.

The 67-ton plant is 25 years old. The average life span of a plant is between 15 and 20 years.

About $16,000 was spent on the plant's electrical repairs after it was moved from the Centennial Civic Centre to the sports centre.

A new 120-ton plant which would easily meet the demands of summer icemaking and serve a second ice facility will cost between $80,000 and $100,000.

Nielsen says his department looked at several projects before arriving at Rotary Park upgrading and the ice plant.

Beaver selects make final five

It was a case of bad news, good news for the baseball beaver Selects at the provincial 'AA' qualifying tournament in Enchant July 15-16.

The bad news was the team lost both of their games, 10-3 to Pincher Creek and the second 11-7 to Enchant.

The good news was that despite the losses, Drayton Valley still qualified for the final playdown in the provincial qualifying tournament with a 7 win 3 loss record.

Five teams have qualified for the provincials July 28, 29 and 30 in St. Albert.

Dave Davies, head coach, says travel took a toll on the team as they had to endure a six-hour drive to Enchant before their first game.

"We should have went down the night before. The kids were just bushed," Davies says.

Davies attributed the losses to too many errors, an occurrence he hopes does not repeat at the provincial finals. "It should be pretty even, all the teams are pretty close."

Davies added he believes the best hitting team will become provincial champion.

Boxing camp extended one week

Drayton Valley will be hosting a two-week boxing camp which offers valuable coaching and training from August 7-18.

Lawrence Duperron will be coaching the Alberta Sports Council sponsored camp and hopes the extra week for the camp will help instruction value.

"Last year we had a one week camp and we had problems with everyone being out of shape. It took us two or three days to get the boys in shape and then the camp was almost over," Duperron says.

This year Duperron says the first week of camp will be dedicated to conditioning and "then we'll have something to work with."

Duperron says last year's camp, which had a limit of 18 boxers, was a good camp and hopes this year's will be even better. The upcoming two-week camp has a limit of 10 boxers.

The daily regiment at the camps will include morning runs of two miles and a total of about eight hours of ring training.

Ring training will be tutored by expert coaches like Duperron, who has been a boxing coach for over 30 years.

Cost of the camp is initially $450, but boxers will receive a refund of between $100 and $200. The refund is made possible because of the Alberta Sports Council sponsorship.

Camp fee includes two-weeks accommodation, meals and entertainment.

Aspenview negotiations have begun for park

Negotiations are expected to get underway shortly on a park for the Aspenview area.

Town council gave administration the go-ahead to proceed with talks with the developer during last Thursday's meeting.

Some features of the proposed park include a pond, playground and walkway.

Councillor Jean Saunders, who lives in Aspenview, says a park is definitely lacking in the area.

The lack of a park in Aspenview is a matter of great concern according to councillor Charlie Miner.

Mayor Bob Mayhew is delighted with council's decision to proceed. "The area was overlooked when the planning was done. It's long overdue," he says.

The proposed pond would be similar to the setup in Northview.

According to recreation director Paul Nielsen, the pond in Northview has been well accepted.

Aspenview, located on the east side of town, behind St. Anthony's school, has seen it's share of housing starts the past two years. Figures show four starts in 1989 after 15 last year.

The Stony Plain Cubs continue on the trail to defend as provincial champions.

The Cubs captured the Zone 5 regionals in Stony Plain by sweeping four games. The win in the regionals qualifies them for the Summer Games in Brooks, August 8-11.

Stony Plain won the first game 16-3 over Sherwood Park and continued from there to beat Westlock 18-7, and St. Albert 10-0. The Cubs beat Westlock 14-11 in the final game.

In qualifying for the provincials the Cubs had their winning streak snapped at seven. After weekend play, the team is 3-2 in provincial qualifying.

Stony Plain began on the right foot against Edmonton winning a squeaker 10-9 against Edmonton.

They went on to win their next two games on Saturday; a 7-1 win over Westlock and a 3-1 decision over St. Albert.

The Cubs were promptly brought down to earth Sunday as they were routed 17-4 by Sherwood Park in the morning and then lost 15-12 to Stettler in the afternoon.

Vern Bartlett, assistant coach of the Cubs, said the teams downfall was too many errors.

"We allowed a lot of unearned runs. We're going to have to play better defensively," Bartlett said.

"I'm not disheartened by the losses. This will make us dig a little deeper and become more of a team."

The top five teams will qualify for the provincial playdowns which Stony Plain will host August 4, 5, and 6. While Stony Plain gains an automatic berth as host team they have nevertheless finished in the top five.

"If you're a baseball fan you should get out to Stony Plain, it's going to be excellent baseball," Bartlett urged.

Bredin places fifth at highland

Shannon Bredin placed fifth overall in the 15 and under category at the recent Canadian highland dance championships.

The Drayton Valley resident collected three thirds in her class at the championships held July 14-16 in St. John's, New Brunswick.

The judges, six from the United States and three from Scotland, had to select the best of 25 in the highly competitive class.

Bredin also participated in several other dance competitions during the championships.

She collected three bronze medals and placed second overall in national dance.

The judges awarded the Alberta competitors a bronze in the Sailor's Horn Pipe and two more bronze medals in a Scottish dance championship.

The competition was especially keen as the event drew 37 dancers.

Bredin was a member of the 11-member Alberta team.

Close to 400 dancers took in the annual event.

The championships were sweet this year by Ontario. Bredin will put her dancing shoes up for a couple of months and turn her attention to competitive swimming.

Floor hockey team void of funding

A Special Olympics floor hockey team from Drayton Valley will not be participating in the national championships this year.

The four day tournament opens tomorrow (Wednesday) at the University of Alberta Varsity Arena in Edmonton. Two years ago, floor hockey players from Drayton Valley journeyed to Toronto for the annual tourney.

According to floor hockey coach Paul Burns, the team missed the qualifying round in Lethbridge due to a lack of funding.

This is the first time the tournament has been held outside of Toronto.

Local athletes qualify

Seven Drayton Valley area athletes finished high enough at the Zone 5 Games to move on to the Alberta Summer Games.

The Zone 5 Games were held in Stony Plain from July 14-16.

In track and field events, Orest Tarasaka, won golds in the 100 metre, and 400 metre for 14-15 year old boys.

Lisa-Maria Vovk placed well in three events for 16-17 year-old girls; winning a silver in long jump, bronze in javelin, and finishing sixth in the 100 metre.

Kerra Hunt, 14-15 year-old girls, placed fourth in the 400 metre run.

Three rowers will advance to the Summer Games, Shely Ostapowich, Lyle Thorson, and Les Ovelson.

In swimming, Andrea Groulx finished fifth in the 100 metre breaststroke.

All seven athletes will be able to compete in the Summer Games in Brooks from August 8-11.

Neptunes second again

The Neptune Swim Club played bridesmaid once again at a meet in Stony Plain July 22.

In placing second for the third weekend in a row, the Neptunes finished only 32 aggregate points behind host Stony Plain.

"Stony was a bit stronger than I thought they would be," Loren Regnier, Neptune head coach, said.

While Stony Plain had most of their club swimmers, the Neptune club had 51 of their 89.

"They (Neptune swimmers) were a little tired, but mostly they are doing pretty good. Sometimes at this time of the year they get a little tired," Regnier said.

Regnier added his team was going through the "hard training" portion of the swimming season.

Winning aggregate medals for the Neptune club were: 9 and 10 year-olds; Carla McGinn, silver; Tim Regnier, silver; 11 and 12; Carla Hutzal, gold; Karen Hutzal, silver; Kevin Oscar, silver; 13 and 14; Kylie Tucker, silver; Colleen Thomas, bronze; Michael Sawec, silver; Scott Maclock, bronze; 17 and up; Andrea Groulx, gold.

The Neptune Swim Club will be in Edson July 29, and Hinton July 30.

Three youths to participate in Edmonton talent show

Three talented young people will be participating in the Klondike Days Youth Talent Quest in Edmonton Northlands Exposition Grounds this week.

Michelle Engblom, 17, of Winfield, and Corey Ancelet, 19, of Breton, took first and second place respectively in the regional youth talent quest in Warburg, and Christy Myles, 15, of Breton, did so well that she was also invited to participate.

The winner of the quest in Edmonton will walk away with $500 and a trip to Memphis to participate in another talent contest. The person who takes the top spot there will get a recording contract.

Engblom played a piano solo, Ballade pour Adeline, in the regional show. She plans to study music at the University of Alberta if accepted.

Ancelet is striving for the recording contract. He sang Lionel Richie's Hello in Warburg.

La Bamba earned Myles the right to participate in the Edmonton quest for talent.

Local takes token key with one entry

One entry was all it took for Kathleen Palmer of Drayton Valley to win last week's token key in the chamber of commerce/retail merchants association car give-away.

"I was really surprised. I don't usually enter contests," she said. "I never won a prize before except for my husband."

"The car would be a timely gift," said Palmer. "I wish it (the draw) could be sooner. I'm just due to buy new tires."

Palmer is confident she has just as good a shot as any to win the car when the draw is made in mid-September. The odds are pretty good

Melvin Moltzan, Royal Canadian Mounted Police auxiliary

Moltzan exemplifies volunteer spirit

By Susan Mosciak
It takes a special breed of people to give up numerous hours of their time on a regular basis for the sheer pleasure of knowing they are helping someone who needs them.

Melvin Moltzan, a volunteer auxiliary member of the Drayton Valley RCMP, is one such example.

He has spent approximately 30 hours each month for the last six years traveling with, and assisting the police, and helping new members become familiar with the area.

"We're (auxiliaries) people in the community that get involved with the police," says Moltzan. "To do it is interesting - different things happen."

"Sometimes you get to help people and that's the most rewarding part."

Const. Al Kaufmann says there are six auxiliaries in Drayton Valley right now.

"They're to be commended. They are volunteers, and for the most part the guys are very public-spirited individuals."

Kaufmann says the auxiliaries are sworn in and have all the powers of a police officer when they are on shift. "They act under the direction of a police officer and they are there to help out."

Moltzan also spends time assisting the Breton RCMP. "For the last four years, Melvin and I have always done the Buck Lake rodeo together, and before that he was out with my predecessor," says Const. Peter Clark. "It's a bit of a tradition."

"He is a long-time experienced veteran of the auxiliary," praises Clark.

The Year 2519 By Tammy Meadows, Grade 8

Once the grass was green,
And swaying in the breeze.
The lakes were clear and blue,
With clear clean skies and trees.

The animals would play,
And frolic in the hills.
The birds would fly so high,
The fish with carefree wills

But, alas, the grass is green no more.
No breeze to sway them
with light.
The lakes are black and foggy,
The skies are dark as night.

No animals are left
To frolic in the hills.
The birds have gone for good,
The fish have lost their wills.

The sun, it shines no longer,
The children are gloomy
and sad.
The few who can remember,
Long for the world they have.

Grade 7 and 8 students pen pollution concerns

Local Grade 7 and 8 students recently had the opportunity to participate in a poetry/ song writing contest held by the Pembina Institute.

The winning song, Pollution Pollution, was composed by Michelle Bazinet (Grade 7), along with the winning limerick and 'Not Only' poem.

Tammy Meadows, Grade 8, wrote the winning poem; The Year 2519, and the winning rhyming couplet was written by Tyson Huska (Grade 7).

The entries were displayed in Derrick Mall before the recent judging.

"It was tough," said Trenis Sondresen, business manager of Pembina Institute. "Some of them were really good."

The purpose of the contest, according to Sondresen, "was to make children more aware of the environment and to get them thinking about it."

Why are you here?
You're making life scary
You're giving us fear.
You're making life

But it's not all your fault
Bringing life to a halt
We shouldn't stick gas in

All we're doing is wrecking our liver.

Pollution, pollution,
Where are you now?
Are you in the air,
Or down on the ground?
Are you in your lungs,
Are you in our water,
Are you in our homes,
Are you in our daughter?

Please go away.

Osterman admits problems exist but stresses change

By Monte Wilton
Whitecourt Star

Connie Osterman, minister of career development and employment admits there are problems with Alberta's school system, but says positive changes are being made.

"There are parameters which the school systems must stay within, but sometimes people do not always fit into those parameters," Osterman said during a recent visit to Whitecourt.

She said one problem was overcrowded classrooms, but another area of concern was school curriculums which were "too" academically structured.

If a student doesn't believe they fit in, said Osterman, then it is unlikely they will finish their education. Which is why she likes the pilot project at the Whitecourt Learning Center.

"This program allows people to proceed at their own pace. I wish I could run around and tell the world about it," she said excitedly.

Speaking to a group of 18 students at the center, Osterman stressed the importance of needing an education to get ahead in the competitive market today.

Osterman also told the women in the program they should realize that they can perform jobs in some of the more traditional roles.

"A good percentage of Alberta's employers are missing out on the 50 per cent of the population made up by women," she added.

Joe MacLellan of Drayton Valley, executive director of the Pembina Educational Consortium said 75 per cent of the students attending the learning center were female and most of them were making a career change or reentering the work force.

MacLellan said the pilot project at Whitecourt combines life skills with high tech training to provide students with more employable job skills.

Problems with bugs

Flea Beetles

Beetles can be very destructive in vegetable gardens if left uncontrolled.

The flea beetle is a tiny black beetle which looks quite shiny in the sun. It does not look like a flea as its name might suggest, but it does jump when disturbed and this jumping will readily identify it.

They emerge from the soil very early in the spring and are ready and waiting when the first potato sprout pops up in the garden. Even the earliest-seeded radishes are attacked by the beetles. Later, they attack transplants such as cabbages, tomatoes and they just love turnips.

Summer fair offers fun and learning

by Bev Brooks, District Home Economist

Most folks consider their summer fair to be a family fun day, but fairs also have an educational component. Bench shows and animal competitions illustrate the features of a top-quality product. They give people a chance to see what techniques and methods are used to achieve that high quality. In addition to high standards of workmanship, fairs encourage creativity and individuality of expression. There's a large method of personal pride involved in doing quality work and demonstrating your skills to others.

Exhibitors enter a competition for a wide variety of reasons. Self-satisfaction in showing their work to others and having it rated against others is a motivator for some. Others find it educational. They learn from judges' comments on their entries and from viewing the work of others.

Still others enter to support their community.

It's vital for an exhibitor to enter competition with an open mind. The standings in any competition are based on the judges' opinion and the quality of other entries. As the saying goes "You can't win them all."

How does the judge arrive at his or her decision? Entries are judged on general criteria, the choice of appropriate techniques, materials and methods relevant to the article's use. In other words, velvet and satin potholders might be beautifully crafted, but not really useful in the kitchen.

A judge's personal preferences shouldn't enter into the judgement.

Most fairs in the province use the fair system of judging. This means prizes are given to the three best entries in each class. If no article in the class is an acceptable standard, a prize won't be given.

If you're entering some of your work in the fair this summer, read your fair book carefully. Be sure your entry meets the class requirements outlined in the prize list.

The Drayton Valley Agricultural Fair will be held August 25th and 26th at the Drayton Valley curling rink. The fair book outlining entrance categories, as well as the entry tags, are available at our office, Alberta Agriculture in the provincial building.

If you'd like more information on judging standards, you may also contact us at Alberta Agriculture (542-5368) and ask for Judging Standards for Foods, Sewing and Handicrafts and Judging Standards for Horticulture Shows.

Second operator Steve Huntley and a Firemaster firefighting unit.

Saving lives is number one for Firemaster firefighters

By Susan Moseicki
Firemaster Oilfield Service Ltd. may be a little-known, but definitely not a know-little organization.

It has top quality firefighting equipment, and well trained personnel to complete the job required.

"We basically supply standby fire protection and emergency services," said Howard Kirby, manager and sales.

Most of our services are standby for fire (fracturing a virgin zone). Under a 15 to 20 foot crust (approximated) there are an assortment of different zones - layers of earth - and in the layers of earth are oil and gas.

"We stand-by while they're (oil companies) pumping flammable material," he said.

Canadian owned Firemaster also has trained personnel to deal with blow-outs and fires on sites.

"Our number one priority is to protect lives, number two is equipment and three is oil companies' property," said Kirby.

"The basic thing about fire is the first two minutes," he said. If you're quick at it, there is minimal injury or damage. Fire starts small and spreads to a large one."

Danger is always a factor when firefighting. "We're dealing with fluids, pressure (3,000 to 15,000 pounds per square inch), and equipment," Kirby said. "A fire-fighter has a high pressure job."

Prior to Firemaster's existence said Kirby, "A lot of these (oil) companies never had fire protection and there were a lot of accidents."

Drayton Valley Firemaster is a three man operation. Along with Kirby there is assistant manager and senior operator on the fire truck Larry Warner, and Steve Huntley, second operator on the fire truck.

There are also three more offices in Alberta, and one in Saskatchewan.

"Firemaster is basically like a family," said Kirby.

"There's a tightness and feeling there. It's a family."

Chinchillas don't talk back

By Susan Moscicki
Twenty years of thinking about it and a desire to supplement their farming income, were the reasons Dianna Poss and her sister Fern Huslage chose to raise chinchillas.

The small, gray, silky rodents are the world's most valuable fur-bearing animals. The average person would have to work more than a year to earn enough to pay the $30,000 price tag on a good quality, full-length chinchilla coat.

Despite this, Poss and Huslage say raising them is not a get-rich quick project. The pelts sell for $45 to $50 Canadian, and it takes approximately 120 pelts for a full-length coat. The animals, themselves sell for about $225 each.

So, why would anyone want to raise them? "When we were younger, we saw them advertised and they were interesting. We've thought about it for 20 years. We wanted something that we could do to earn money and be productive," Huslage explains.

"We went in blind," she adds. "We found out what it was all about. I would say that is a very good way to go. You have to start small and learn as you go."

The two women, from the Rocky Rapids area, started in 1986 with five females and one male each. They now have 350 chinchillas altogether.

The animals are approximately 10 inches in length (adult) and have large eyes, ears, and a bushy tail.

Chinchilla pelts are extremely soft and are made up of innumerable tufts of fine fibers. Each hair follicle can produce 40-60 fibers, compared with four to eight in other fur-bearing animals.

According to Huslage, one chinchilla pelt weighs little more than a kleenex.

Chinchillas are nocturnal, preferring to sleep during the day, and are very active at night.

They can have up to three kits (litters) a year, with up to six in the litter.

The young are weaned about 48 days after birth.

Special care must be taken when handling the little animals. "You have to be very calm with them. If you're rough, they're going to be high-strung," says Poss.

"It (raising them) is not hard work," Poss says.

"They're a nice animal."

"They're a nice retirement or semi-retirement project," Huslage adds.

"I work on the chinchillas and unwind," says Poss. "It's very relaxing."

"One nice thing about raising them," she chuckles, "is they can't talk back to you."

The homes of the valuable critters.

Diana Poss and Fern Huslage hold two of the chinchillas.

Getting a galactic view of things

When is a galaxy not a galaxy? When it's a telescope. Taking their cue from predictions made early in the century by Albert Einstein, modern astronomers have recently found that galaxies can act like huge telescopes in the sky.

When light from a distant object in the universe, such as a quasar, shines through a galaxy, it is bent and magnified by the galaxy's gravitational field. The galaxy, in effect, behaves like a huge lens in the sky, making it easier for observers on Earth to see the light from the distant quasar.

Already, astronomers have located nearly 20 'cosmic telescopes' in the sky. The images that come from them are not sharp and clear. Instead, they are usually soft arcs of light, comparable to things seen through an unfocused magnifying glass.

One of the most recent images was taken with the help of a galaxy cluster that is roughly three billion light-years from Earth. Through this galaxy cluster, astronomers were able to see an arc of blue light coming from a much more distant galaxy, one that is probably six billion light-years from Earth.

The image was taken at the Canada-France-Hawaii Telescope in the island of Mauna Kea in the Hawaiian Islands.

HATS OFF TO OUR HEROS

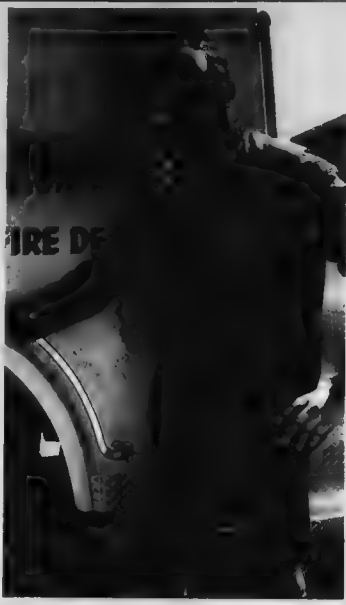

Ken Dusterhoft can't seem to say enough about his fellow fire-fighters.

The deputy chief of the Drayton Valley fire department says his job is more enjoyable because of the other volunteers. "They are a great bunch of guys. They make the job so much easier."

Dusterhoft, born and raised in the Rocky Rapids area, joined the fire department 16 years ago because he thought he could help out, and has never looked back. "It really gets in your blood."

"The families put up with an awful lot. You get a call and they are left holding the bag, or the bill for a meal."

But even if he knew then what he does now, Dusterhoft said he would do it all again.

Bookasaurus club gets poor turn out

Library staff are disappointed with the numbers involved in the summer Bookasaurus program.

"We have 112 involved and our goal was 175," Joanne Mankow, coordinator of the program said.

She attributes the low number to lack of knowledge.

"Maybe people aren't aware it is offered or they may not understand it."

Bookasaurus is for children of all ages. It includes a summer long reading contest, games and videos.

Every Tuesday and Thursday videos of cartoons and movies are shown. As well, everytime a child finishes five books, their name is entered in a contest with a prize given away at the end of the summer.

Traffic accidents increase while injuries are down

Statistics released by Alberta Transportation and Utilities indicate that while traffic collisions increased in 1988, there was a marked decline in the total number of injuries and fatalities.

The statistics based on Alberta's 1988 reportable collisions, show a 5.2 per cent decrease in traffic injuries and a 9 per cent decrease in fatalities over the previous year. Total collisions increased by 13.1 per cent over the same period. Since 1984, there has been a 23.9 per cent increase in collisions, but a 0.9 per cent decline in the number of injuries and 1.3 per cent fewer fatalities.

Transportation and Utilities Minister Al "Boomer" Adair say, "Every year collisions cost Albertans dearly in dollars and tears. While the reduction of injuries and lives lost is encouraging, safety on our roadways will continue to be a priority with this Department. Our concern is reflected in the public's growing perception of responsibility for driving particularly in the area of impairment, and with more people buckling up in 1988 the safety message was enforced."

Farmers should check silage rates before using custom operators

Farmers who plan to use custom operators to put up their silage in 1989 may want to use an Alberta Agriculture survey of last year's custom silage rates to help them budget.

The survey included costs for both the traditional silage pit and also the bagging method, says Garth Nickorick, a farm management economist with the farm business management branch in Olds.

Cutting silage ranged between $5 and $7 per acre or an hourly rate of between $35 and $40, he says.

To chop and haul silage to a pit, the cost ranged between $5.50 and $6.50 per tonne. Packaging was an additional $1.50 to $3 per tonne or from $42 to $52 per hour.

Rates for chopping, hauling and bagging varied with the size of the bag used to store the silage he says. The rate also includes the price of the bag.

For an eight-foot by 150-foot bag, the rate for chopping, hauling and bagging was between $1,300 and $1,800. A rate of $2,600 was charged for a nine-foot by 200-foot bag and $3,200 for a 10-foot by 200-foot bag.

For more information about custom rates for silaging and other farm services, contact Nickorick in Olds at 556-4247.

Airport renovations 'May not be worth fixing', says Olsen

No decision has been made on repairs to the airport terminal building.

Howard Olsen, chairman of the transportation committee, says he hasn't seen a report on an architect's findings.

"It may not be worth fixing," Olsen said last week.

The terminal was originally an old school portable and moved to the airport by the flying club to be used as a training centre.

No 'ifs' when it comes to God and christianity

By Pastor H. Heinemann, Emmaus Lutheran Church

"What are you doing?" said the shocked mother to her son who was scratching in his Bible with a pen knife.

"Mom, I've been reading of that poor father who came to Jesus and said, 'If you can do anything, have compassion on us, and help us' (Mark 9:22). And I thought that he should not have said 'if' to Jesus, so I scratched it out."

While we do not approve of scratching out anything from God's Word, we do appreciate the vision of faith exhibited by the boy. Many people coming to God still retain the "if" — possibly not in word but in their actions. The little "if" reveals the genuine and the false. Every genuine has a counterfeit, something that looks as good and is much cheaper than the genuine. We see that in clothing, in building materials, and even in education. The most tragic counterfeit, however, is in religion.

Pastor's Pen

Christian living is cheapened by the prevalence of easy believism. When a person thinks that he or she needs to only accept a few basic facts about God and everything will be all right between themselves and God, they are handing themselves and others a counterfeit faith. Nothing short of persons facing their own sin against God and others, repenting and becoming part of Christ's family will stand the test of God's Holy Will. Viewed honestly that 'turning' is impossible for human beings. But all things are possible with God. In Jesus, the Father has done what we cannot do by paying the price of human sin. Through Word and Sacrament and the power of the Holy Spirit, we are brought into and sustained in the conviction that everything between us and God has been made right through Christ. No 'if' here — if we live right — if we believe the right things! There are only 'because's' — because God by His Grace and through faith in Jesus has set aside our sinfulness and brought us into the glorious union with Himself.

Lease survey complete

Alberta Agriculture's statistics branch has released its annual pasture leasing survey results for 1988.

"Rates charged vary across the different regions of the province," says farm management economist Garth Nickorick. "The range is from a high of $20 to as low as $5 for a cow/calf pair per month."

Rates quoted in the survey are on animal unit month (AUM) basis. The animal unit consists of a cow/calf pair.

The highest rates charged are in the area between Calgary east to Medicine Hat and south to the Montana border. The most common rates were between $12 and $15 per AUM. The average was $14.50, notes Nickorick.

In south central Alberta, approximately from Calgary north to Red Deer and east to Oyen, the most common charge was between $10 and $15 - per AUM with an average of $13 per AUM.

An area bounded by Edmonton in the north, Red Deer in the south and Killam in the east had an average rate charged of $11 per AUM. The range was between $8 and $15 per AUM.

area bounded by Edmonton in the south, Athabasca in the north and Mayerthorpe in the west, had an average rate of $8 per AUM. The area range was between $7 and $10 per AUM.

For more information, or a copy of the survey, contact Nickorick at the farm business management branch in Olds at 556-4247.

Don't let bugs get the best of you

Mosquitoes in the garden are among nature's most unpopular forms of wildlife. There are several ways of controlling mosquitoes to make life more pleasant.

Personal repellents applied to the skin prevent bites. They are good in the woods but are smelly and don't eliminate the mosquito problem in the garden.

Fogging the area with a fogging solution will give quick, effective control and can save a party from disaster. Let the fog drift with the air right across the property and neighboring areas. The larger the area treated, the longer the relief from mosquitoes.

The third method is to spray the lawn shrubs and small trees with a residual insecticide which will control the mosquitoes which wander into your garden from the untreated neighborhood.

No easy answer to fighting off the ring you just have to keep digging

One of the most common problems people have with their lawn is the appearance of fairy ring.

"The fungus disease is first noticeable when a very dark green colored grass grows quickly in a circular or semi-circular pattern. Over time, the grass dies out leaving a circle of dead grass bordered by dark green grass," says Pam North, information officer at the Alberta Tree Nursery and Horticultural Centre.

Another common sign of fairy ring is small tan mushrooms growing in the circle. The mushrooms are the fruiting stage of the fungus and usually appear during or after rainy weather.

There is no chemical control for fairy ring, so digging out the infected area is the only way to get rid of the fungus, says North. "If you strip the sod, you can see an abundance of greyish-white strands. This is the mycelium, or vegetative growth, of the fungus. All of this must be removed or the fungus will regrow. The mycelium can be a few centimetres into the soil or as deep as 30 cm."

As well as digging out the ring, the area 30 cm (one foot) from the inner and outer edges of the ring should be dug out. It's also important not to drop any of the infected soil on the healthy lawn.

"If you don't want to dig out the ring right away, there are ways to mask the symptoms of the fungus," says North. "If only the dark green rings are present, the entire lawn can be fertilized and watered heavily to mask the symptoms."

The fungus cuts off the supply of water to the grass roots so heavy watering will encourage the grass to grow back. A "poke and soak" method can be used to control fairy ring.

"Use a garden fork and make holes 25 cm deep and 10 to 15 cm apart throughout the ring and 30 cm beyond the inside and outside edges," she says. "Put a small amount of liquid soap in the holes, it acts as a wetting agent for the dry waxy fungus. Water heavily every second day until the ground is soggy to encourage the grass to grow back."

For more information about fairy rings contact North or Betty Vladicka in Edmonton at 472-6043.

Once upon a time...

...there were several young children with a lot of time on their hands when summer vacation came along. But just when things looked bleakest, along came the parks and recreation fairy godmother with a solution to the problem, and the children have been playing happily ever since at Rotary Park in the summer playground program.

Systems appear to be similar in Whitecourt and Drayton

A new regional sanitary landfill and waste transfer station planned for the Whitecourt area is similar to the Drayton Valley operation.

Henry Rondeau, chairman of the Drayton Valley Landfill Authority, isn't sure if the Whitecourt people came here for a look-see, but 'is pretty confident the two systems are similar.

Because some building was involved in the Drayton Valley proposal four years ago, the province contributed a $1 million grant while Whitecourt is receiving $590,000.

Rondeau says a similar system is also being planned for the Edson area.

When weather permits, two more transfer stations will be added at Lodgepole and Cynthia. At the present time transfer stations are located in the Easyford, Rocky Rapids, Violet Grove and Buck Creek areas.

$1 million contract awarded for paving

A $1,189,011 contract in the Ma-Me-O Beach/Pigeon Lake area has been awarded to Roads West Paving Ltd. of Winterburn.

The contract involves a pavement overlay on Highway 13 from east of Ma-Me-O Beach for 16 kilometres to the junction of Highway 2, as well as a pavement overlay on Secondary Highway 771 from the junction of Highway 13 north for 9.3 kilometres to the junction of the access road to the Pigeon Lake provincial park. Also included in the contract is the paving of the access road to Pigeon Lake provincial park for 1.7 kilometres.

Highways Minister Al Adair praised Drayton Valley/Devon MLA Tom Thurber and Don Sparrow, MLA for Wetaskiwin/Leduc, for being strong supporters of the project.

In Memory
In loving memory of Wayne, who passed away July 27, 1987.
His smiling way and pleasant face, Are a pleasure to recall.
He had a kindly word for each, And died beloved by all.
Lovingly remembered and forever missed by sister Gayle and family.

WOLLEN
In loving memory of our father, Merv, who passed away July 25, 1989.
No one heard the footsteps, Of angels drawing near.
Who look from earth to heaven, The one we loved so dear.
And you loved to much, And died beloved by all.
Lovingly remembered and forever missed by sister Gayle and family.

WOLLEN
In loving memory of Merv, who passed away July 25, 1989.
I remember the day I met you, And the day God called you mine.
I remember the day I lost you, And I will live the end of time.
But through all the tears and heartaches, There is one thing that makes me glad,
That you chose to share with me, The wonderful years we had.
Always loved and remembered by loving wife Betty.

Stop-off saves injury

The owner of this '79 Oldsmobile smelled gas when she stopped at a local store but didn't worry about it...until it burst into flames while she was inside the store. Fortunately, there were no injuries caused by the blaze.

Visitors check-in, then check-out

By Sue Kenyon
So far this summer 1,661 visitors have checked into the chamber's tourist booth.

Due to a lack of attractions in Drayton Valley, many people are being directed elsewhere.

Cindy Walters, a certified travel consultant working this year at the tourist booth, says the usual places visitors are directed to is the antique museum in Lodgepole or Em-T-Town near Alder Flats.

Natalie Gibson, chairman of the chamber's tourism committee says people are directed to these places because they want something to see. "I think what happens is we tell them about the parks, arena and swimming pool but they are looking for something different to see," Gibson says.

One of the more popular activities visitors do enjoy are tours of the oriented strandboard mill.

Lack of attractions is a problem and one the chamber tourism committee along with the tourism action plan committee have been working hard to change.

At the present time the action plan committee has come up with 36 objectives which are plans to enhance tourism that will be presented to council in fall.

"Nothing has been approved yet, it is only in the draft stages right now," Gibson says.

A tourist/historical building is among those items being studied. The actual plan has grown from a tourist booth. Funding for such a building is still uncertain.

"Bob Olson (of Pelican Spruce Mills) wrote the Chamber a letter offering a donation of building materials for a booth," according to Gibson.

Now that plans have escalated into a building, Gibson is not certain whether Olson's offer will remain open.

Oilpatch hit again

By Susan Mosciicki

Police are investigating the recent theft of approximately $10,000 worth of equipment from a service truck on a lease site north of Buck Creek.

According to Breton RCMP Const. Peter Clark, between July 12 and July 18 a thief, or thieves, forced their way into a service truck owned by Canadian Hydraulic Workovers Centurian and made off with a power plant valued at about $8,000, and assorted tools and supplies valued at approximately $2,000.

Breton RCMP are still investigating and are seeking public assistance.

Clark said there are always problems with oil patch theft in the Drayton Valley, Breton, Buck Lake, Buck Creek, Cynthia, Lodgepole, and other areas.

MD probes recreation and culture in meetings

By Susan Mosciicki

The future of recreation and culture in the MD Brazeau over the next five years was open to input from community organizations and interested individuals in three meetings held in Lodgepole, Breton, and Drayton Valley last week.

A master plan, essentially a management plan, is being formed from information received from societies and organizations in the MD to give direction as to what should happen in recreation and culture services. It will include an inventory of facilities and programs available, as well as who uses them (age groups), their source of funding, etc.

"We need the master plan to qualify for community recreation and culture grants (CRC)," said Jeff Wardlow, director of administration for the MD.

Jean Huber, a spokesperson for a group from the Moose Hill area, said in her presentation in Drayton Valley, "We feel the parks could be advertised and could be improved by better roads. Also, the bus-to-swim program and day camp for the children were very beneficial."

Regarding a proposed pool for Breton, she said, "A duplication of facilities would result in the one already in existence suffering even more (the Park Valley Pool had a large deficit last year)."

All of the spokepeople at the Drayton Valley meeting, including Huber, expressed their overall satisfaction with services the MD has been providing.

The master plan recommendations will be brought before council August 16 to 20 and reviewed by the recreation board before being sent to the provincial government.

"Your input here tonight will help us to sort of fine-tune the recommendations," said Jeanine Glassford, recreation and culture master planner.

Glassford said the master plan will be available in final draft form, although still subject to suggestion, no later than August 2 in the MD office and Breton Civic Centre. She said it would be complete in late August.

Wardlow praised the master plan; "We really feel comfortable and confident that our document will be every bit as good as some of the others."

Wardlow said he felt the meetings were a success and said the MD is seriously considering implementing some of the suggestions expressed at the meeting.

He said the meetings in Breton and Lodgepole were very interesting. It was probably the first time anybody had come out to Lodgepole for a meeting from their local government.

Local News Briefs

Alberta Transportation conducted a traffic count on Highway 39 recently near the entrance to the Willey West campground. They have been asked to consider a turning lane into the park.

Travis Sekura of Drayton Valley placed fourth in saddle bronc at the July 15-16 Cochin, Saskatchewan rodeo.

The province has no immediate plans to pave the southern portion of Highway 759 across the Berrymoor Bridge connecting with Highway 39.

Charles Lendison, regional director for Alberta Transportation, says he will have to check with the County of Parkland and the MD to see where it is on their priority list.

The town is planning a safety training program for their own operators (graders, loaders, etc) in the fall.

Plans are being finalized for a competition to fill the vice-principal's vacancy at Frank Maddock High.

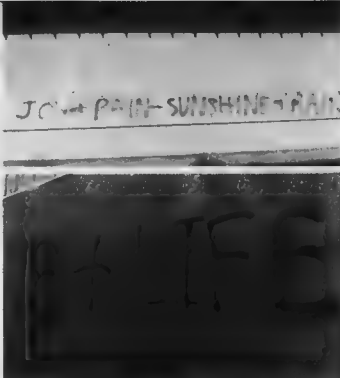

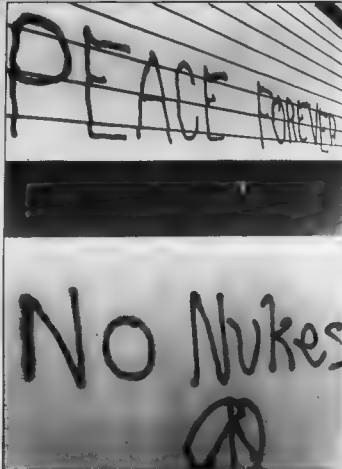

Gary Unterschultz who held the position for the past four years has joined the Twin Rivers School Division staff.

Texaco Canada has received permission from the MD for a compressor site six miles west and two miles south of Cynthis.

The MD has decided to pay $4,500 to DeJager Signs for work they have already completed on new road signs. Total cost of the signs is $14,000.

The owners of the Country Style Mobile Home Park will be getting an $9,000 bill from the MD for sewer charges dating back to September of '88.

Earlier this year, the owner of the Poplar Ridge Trailer Court got a similar bill.

Anderson says Twin Rivers can be division of excellence

Dr. Al Anderson will assume his duties as superintendent of the Twin Rivers school district, Aug. 15.

Anderson says his focus will be on classrooms and team work between staff, administration and the board.

"I am really excited about the fact we are a new school division. There is lots of potential to be a division of excellence and the children are the beneficiaries of all we do," Anderson said.

Dr. Al Anderson

One of Anderson's first tasks will be hiring a secretary-treasurer and a deputy superintendent.

Secretary-treasurer, Bill Weber, who was hired on a temporary basis, will be leaving September 30.

The Andersons have two children who attend post secondary institutions.

Anderson will be replacing Dr. George Bevan who was hired on a temporary basis.

New staff join Twin Rivers

Gary Unterschultz

Two new staff members will be joining the Twin Rivers school division, taking administrative positions.

Gary Unterschultz, former vice-principal at Frank Maddock High will be the deputy superintendent and Murray Donaghy will be taking Bill Weber's position as secretary treasurer.

Unterschultz will take up his position September 1 and Donaghy will start October 1.

Alder Flats resident sentenced to two years

By Susan Mosicki

An Alder Flats man was sentenced July 25 in Court of Queen's Bench to two years less a day in a provincial correctional centre in respect to an accident that claimed a man's life last October.

Stewart Hare, 24, was convicted of dangerous driving causing death and two counts of dangerous driving causing bodily harm. He will also have one year probation and a three year driving prohibition.

Hugh Leonard MacLean, 25, also of Alder Flats, was killed instantly from injuries sustained in the collision. He was a passenger in Hare's van.

Bretton RCMP Const. Dave Haeislop reports that the van was clocked at speeds in excess of 100 mph (160 kph) and observed going from ditch to ditch at least 25 to 30 times by independent witnesses.

Hare was travelling west on Highway 39 when his vehicle collided with a truck and horse trailer three kilometres east of Alaiske on Highway 39.

After the collision, the van left the highway and came to rest among trees.

Hare received slight injuries, but two other of his passengers suffered serious injuries and spent a considerable amount of time in hospital.

The driver of the truck and horse trailer was not injured.

Police said Hare had no previous convictions.

FCSS program in Drayton Valley may not be too long in coming

By Sue Kenyon
There is no Family Community Support Service (FCSS) program in Drayton Valley yet but Jean Saunders would like to see one.

Town council is currently investigating the possibility of setting one up.

Ever since Saunders was elected to council, she has been actively pursuing the establishment of the program.

"I see it as a coordinating body for all the services here," she says.

Although council has not made a decision Saunders says they have past a couple of motions to review and set up terms of reference for an FCSS board.

Saunders is now busy collecting information on how FCSS boards are set up and put together.

The MD of Brazeau are not interested in banding their program with Drayton Valley.

"We asked them if they would be interested in having a joint board but they said no. They feel their needs are different and I believe that is true," Saunders says.

An FCSS board, if one were set up, could be in charge of coordinating all the services provided and make sure no duplication of services exist. Saunders also sees such a board being responsible for putting together a booklet which would outline every service available to the public.

"I see it as a coordinator and a way of getting the information out to the people," she says.

Vandalism in park creates headaches for the MD

The MD is having it's share of headaches over vandalism at Lodgepole Park.

Councillor Bob Booth told last Wednesday's council meeting that he had received reports that both the toilets and cook stoves had disappeared.

"We've had quite a bit of vandalism in that park," added Reeve Henry Rondeau.

The cookstove was found in the bush according to Terry Fleming, supervisor of land services. "There wasn't much left of it," he added.

The MD had a chemical toilet at the park last year but according to Fleming, it spent most of the time on it's roof.

At the present time the MD is waiting for prices on some better washroom facilities for the park.

Rondeau suggested that Fleming's department look at some cement tables which he feels would be more difficult to damage or move.

Power outage closes plaza stores

At least two stores in the Dodson Plaza closed early last Wednesday night due to an unexpected power outage.

Both the IGA and Penney's Drug Mart closed about 6:30 p.m. after a truck hit a power pole behind the IGA.

Opinions

Lack of babysitters is a major concern

One of the major crises facing a lot of the households in town during the summer holidays is the lack of a babysitter.

Especially for those working moms and dads who have children out of school for two long months.

Some parents have to shuffle their work just to cope with this situation.

Others have to depend on family and friends.

It's a real problem that doesn't seem to get any better.

Several years ago the Alberta Safety Council sponsored a babysitting course in town.

However, much to the frustration of the town's recreation department, who got a lot of the calls for babysitters, names of the successful graduates were not made public.

One option in the summer is the Hire-A-Student office. Other avenues to explore include church groups, day homes and the local day care centers.

But, other than that, the lack of babysitters, seems like a challenge some one or some group should tackle.

If a group was to accept the challenge, there would undoubtedly be a lot of community support. At least from mothers looking for a sitter.

Making babysitter's names public has always been considered a risk, especially those graduating from local courses.

If that problem could be over-come, it would undoubtedly help.

And, according to reports the pay isn't bad. Especially New Year's Eve.

Gibson upset

Help is on the way for local tourist industry

It appears that I stepped on some toes with my July 11 comments on promotion, or the lack of it in town.

Natallie Gibson, who has contributed six tireless years working behind the scenes with the chamber's tourist committee takes exception to my comments.

She feels the tourist committee has contributed their share in making Drayton Valley better known.

And, I'm not about to argue with the time and effort Gibson or the tourist committee has contributed.

Some of their projects include:

- four issues of the town brochure
- creation of Riggy, the town mascot

Frankly Speaking

By Frank Ryan

- stuffed Riggy's for retail purposes
- operation of the tourist booth
- I Luv DV' stickers
- guided tours for visiting caravans
- place mats for local restaurants
- pins, pens, buttons and banner

Add to this impressive list, the work the chamber does in promoting the town with such projects as:

- car give-away
- annual trade fair

The town has also been active with their own video.

And, according to Gibson, things are even going to get better, as the tourist action plan committee have drafted 36 objectives to improve and promote tourism in our town over the next several years.

Maybe this was the promotional tool that I was looking for when I made my comments.

Writer is peeved at editor

Dear Editor:

I would like to reply to your article titled "Frankly Speaking" in the July 11th issue on Drayton Valley's Promotion.

I have been actively involved in tourism and promotion of Drayton Valley for the last six years. Until recently, you also have been involved in tourism and have served on the Chamber of Commerce Tourism Committee, and the Tourism Action Committee with me. You are well aware of the promotional items and events that have been created for Drayton Valley by the Chamber of Commerce Tourism Committee. Although there is still a lot of work to do, I feel we've come a long way.

The following are some of Drayton's promotional accomplishments of the recent past:

Four issues of the "Drayton Valley Brochure" and "Business Directory"; creation of the town mascot, Riggy; stuffed Riggy's for retail purposes; pins, pens, buttons, banners; Drayton Valley pins; operation of the Tourism booth, seven days a week for summer months; tourism packages- D. V. bags with merchandise, coupons; "I Luv DV" stickers; a town video; town lure brochure; future plans for new Tourist Information Centre; many courses and events hosted by the Chamber of Commerce created to improve and promote Drayton — Trade Fair, New Car Give-away, etc.

And the biggest one of all, the newly formed Tourism Action Committee. We have drafted 36 objectives to improve and promote tourism over the next several years.

In the future, through the Tourism Action Committee Plan, we hope to work closely with the MD and surrounding areas to improve and promote all of our assets.

According to Travel Alberta Reps who were recently in town, Drayton Valley is above average in the town promotion department. We, as volunteers, are working hard to increase awareness of the importance of tourism and make Drayton's assets known. Drayton Valley really does have a lot to offer but it seems we have to convince our community of this.

You, having served on both tourism committees, should realize the importance of stressing our goals and achievements. Yet, you print an article outlining nothing of our accomplishments.

In the future, I strongly suggest you stick to printing facts, or both sides of a story, instead of printing one-sided opinions....Isn't that what a newspaper is for?

MD conscious of environment

The environmentally conscious MD of Brzeau is setting up pesticide container collection sites in the Lindale and Drayton Valley areas to ensure chemicals and toxins don't pollute the environment.

Jeff Wardlow, director of administration, said the site at Lindale will be used as a temporary collection site.

He said the containers collected in Lindale will be transported to the new four-sided enclosed metal shed to be built at a land-fill site near Drayton Valley.

"If we set one up in the Lindale area, the farmers won't have to drive so far."

Wardlow said the containers will be picked up on a "quite regular" basis and brought to the Drayton Valley collection site. "Approximately once a year, Alberta Environment will take them up north to be disposed of properly."

Hire-A-Student having good year

By Susan Moscicki
This has been an extraordinary year for Hire-A-Student, according to manager Tracey Vatter.

"This was a really good year. People were really participating and donating a lot of stuff that really helped us out," she said.

"This summer is particularly unusual because a lot of students are registering late. It's quite good because the year started up pretty slowly."

The students have been involved in various projects including popcorn sales, painting faces, selling donuts and cookies, washing windows, and more.

Approximately 85 students have been placed in casual labor (five days or less), and 66 have been placed in regular positions so far this year.

The advantages for an employer who hires a student are many, said Vatter. "They get a student who is willing to work for the summer, they're keeping money in the community, and they're helping out students who are furthering their education or high school students."

"I remember what it was like to be a kid."

She said most of the funding for the program comes from the provincial and federal governments and the chamber of commerce.

Jim McQueen, manager of Movie Madness, is one of the local businessmen who supports the Hire-A-Student program.

"I remember what it was like to be a kid" was one of the reasons he gave for getting involved in the program.

"It went really good this year. We just donated the popcorn and they sold it."

"We don't use it (the fact that they support the program) as an advertising ploy, so we don't benefit by it in that way," McQueen said.

He praised Vatter's organization skills. "She did a really good job."

McQueen stressed how important the program is for students. How they perform and conduct themselves could determine whether an employer will hire them in the future when they are finished school.

"I'll remember that's what they did when they were with Hire-A-Student," he said.

Mall merchants are confident they've solved parking dilemma

Merchants in the Derrick Mall feel confident they have solved their parking dilemma.

In an attempt to solve the problem, angle parking has been introduced in the mall parking lot.

"A lot of customers asked for it," says Derrick Mall merchant's president Dale Rendflesh.

Rendflesh says one of the problems prior to the change, was one vehicle was using up two stalls.

"I'm really pleased with the change," says Crossroad Travel's Bill Wallace. Rendflesh admits that there may not be as much parking in the lot now as before, but is confident the customers will like it better.

MD gets new park by-law

The MD's new parks bylaw is now official.

The bylaw was established for the purpose of control and operation.

Several changes were adopted at last Wednesday's MD council meeting following the initial presentation of the bylaw.

Highlights of the bylaw include:

- There shall be no discharging of fire arms within the boundaries of the parks.

- Liquor may be consumed with food in a picnic area only if application has been made to the MD council and a special permit has been issued.

- Animals will not be allowed in the parks unless they are in a cage or are restricted by a leash, chain or other device that is not greater than two meters long.

- No person shall set, light or maintain a fire in a park except in a fireplace, pit or other facility designed for that purpose, or when an order is given by council to ban fires.

- No person shall, operate or ride any vehicle, off-highway vehicle or any other such specialized means of conveyance, whether motor-driven or propelled by human power, except, on a designated trail.

- No person shall camp for more than 10 consecutive days in the same campground without written permission of a park supervisor.
- After 10 consecutive days, a person must vacate the park for a minimum of 72 hours before re-registering.

- Every person who contravenes the provisions of the bylaw is guilty of an offense and liable for a fine not exceeding $2,000 or imprisonment for a period of not more than six months or both.

Parks affected by this bylaw include Willey West, Easyford, Lodgepole and Modeste.

Favor should be returned to Breton

By Paul Flegel
Leduc Representative
Warburg residents should throw their support behind a swimming pool planned for the neighboring community of Breton rather than try to build a facility of their own, says the president of the West End Swimming Pool Society.

Judy Meade says residents in the hamlet of Breton supported construction of an arena in Warburg and suggests the courtesy be returned, because, "We can't support two pools," between the small communities.

She said Breton residents continue to use the Warburg arena and noted the only fair option is support for the Breton pool, in order to provide "total recreation" for the two centers.

"We've been working for four years and I think we should be given at least one year to work with the M.D. of Brazeau."

She said it came as a surprise when her group discovered Warburg residents were organizing to build a pool, four years after fund raising began for the Breton pool.

A Warburg swimming pool committee was formed shortly after residents met in May to view a slide show and discuss options for a local facility. And while those present agreed the idea might have to be dropped if significant progress took place in the community 18 kilometres east, the group has no intentions of disbanding, according to its chairman.

"As far as I know, they don't have enough to get started," said Bern Siemens, adding, "Since they found out we're serious, they're getting serious too."

Siemens wouldn't say whether the option of supporting the Breton project had been ruled out, but said the Warburg communities would be meeting July 18 to discuss its next move.

Construction of a pool to be attached to the Breton high school has been approved by the Twin Rivers School Division and should coincide with the school's modernization, according to society member Caroline Strand.

She noted efforts to seek regulatory approval were stalled by the recent annexation of Leduc County land (including Breton) into the M.D. of Brazeau. So far, $180,000 has been raised for the pool which is expected to cost about $517,000.

'Biggest thing I've ever won'

The token key in the chamber of commerce/retail merchants association car give-away is the "biggest thing I've ever won even if it's just the dinner," said last week's winner Peggy Tyler.

"It would be a good parting gift from Drayton Valley because we're going to leave this fall."

Tyler said she and her husband are going to retire on Vancouver Island.

She stressed how impressed she was with this promotional idea. "The chamber does a marvelous job in promoting Drayton Valley. It's a good promotional idea. Something interesting for summer."

Dorothy Bendflesh, Peggy Tyler, and Kamal Hamdon

Tyler is the fourth token key winner this year and could be the lucky person that wins the draw for a brand new car.

"I take life one step at a time," she said. "I'd hate to bank on it."

She is going to keep entering the draws for the token keys, but said, "I'll put my daughter's name in this time."

Rain is a gift for foresters

By Paul Cudla

The Lodgepole Ranger Station is one outfit which has graciously accepted the large amount of rainfall the area has experienced this year.

Currently, the ranger station is under a high hazard forest fire alert.

"It's been fairly quiet for us this year," Greg Cunliffe, Lodgepole forest officer, said.

"The last couple of summers and springs we had an unusually high number of action fires."

Cunliffe said the Lodgepole station was called to put out 25 fires last year, whereas to-date this year they have had eight action fires.

All eight fires were caused by either lightning strikes or falling power lines.

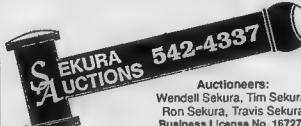

But while no fires have been man-made, Cunliffe says, "we still continue to get man-caused fires each year, so we have to keep on top of that. We continually remind people about their camp fires and cigarettes."

Cunliffe said that if the weather continues to be dry and hot, the fire hazard warning would be increased to very high.

On the other hand, a few days of rain would cause a lowering of the hazard.

Ag library adds Canada thistle video

A six minute video tackling the problem of Canada thistle is a new addition to Alberta Agriculture's film library. The video was produced by Sandoz Agro Canada with the assistance of Jim Hunter of Agriculture Canada. Hunter has studied Canada thistle extensively. His research revealed control is best achieved by understanding the thistle is a "long day" plant. "Blending cultivation and herbicides as the plant moves through the bud to rosette stages will yield excellent control," says Hunter. The video, 641-1, is available by contacting the Alberta Agriculture film library at 7000-113 Street, Edmonton, T6H 5T6.

by FRANK MULLICK

Mike Tyson has changed the whole heavyweight scene, As boxing spectators have found, The question is not now which guy's gonna win, But who can predict the right round,

In 36 walks with the opening bell, Opponents must feel they are cursed, It seems Tyson could have just phoned some fights in, 16 were KOs in the first.

Pre-fight time predictions are always far out, Some guy's gonna wrestle the crown, Until Tyson pulls the old jackhammer trick, On those who show up to go down.

The mind crumples first and the body obeys, A rule that belongs to the game, One after another they learn how to lose, And Tyson is always to blame.

Hines simply slumping

As Clayton Hines puts it, he is in a slump, pure and simple.

Hines, a leading saddle bronc rider has been to about 40 rodeos this year and his best finish was a third at Saskatoon.

"My performance has been lacking. I'm just in a slump that's all," Hines said.

Last year Hines led the Canadian pro rodeo standings from start to finish.

How do you work out of a slump in rodeo? Hines has been offered a few different views.

"I tried taking a month off. Some people say take some time off and work. Other people say you have to keep at it and ride through it.

"I think if I got on that one horse and everything clicked, then I would go on from there and be all right," Hines said.

During this rodeo season, Hines took a month off to work. He is a self-employed welder.

Last season, Hines rode in about 140 rodeos as he tried to qualify for the NFR.

With 12 rodeos left in the professional rodeo season, Hines hopes to qualify for the Copenhagen/Dodge rodeo series (six rodeos) and the Budweiser series (five rodeos).

Breton Cardinals take title in provincial 'A' tourney

By Paul Cudla

The Breton Cardinals won the 'A' provincial baseball championship in dramatic fashion by winning the final game in their last at-bat.

Breton beat Concert 6-5 in the final game of the three-day provincial tournament held July 28-30 in Ardrossan.

The two teams went into the bottom of the seventh inning tied 5-5, but Breton scored a run in their half of the inning to pull out the provincial championship win.

"We were all pretty happy. The kids did really well," Gerry Polei, head coach, said.

Breton gained a birth into the final game by going 3-1 in the round-robin tournament. The Cardinals beat Ardrossan 19-9 in their first game and then went on to beat Concert 6-3, and St. Paul 15-1 before they lost to Athabasca 12-11 in extra innings.

That set-up Sunday's game versus Concert and Breton's championship victory.

The key to the Breton win was pitching, according to Polei.

"We probably had the best pitching staff there."

Polei said he was pleased with the season enjoyed by the Breton Cardinals, during which the team played over 40 games and lost just seven.

"The community of Breton itself has been really great. I've been involved with championships in other towns with other teams before, and this one has been the best," Polei said.

Thorsen makes sculling teams

By Paul Cudla

Drayton Valley resident Kurt Thorsen will be competing in two rowing events at the Canada Summer Games in Saskatoon.

Thorsen made team Alberta as a member of two sculling boats, quad and double. He will be competing the first week of the games, August 13-18.

Although he actually made the team at the first tryout, Thorsen wasn't told until July 9 as his coach wanted him to continue to train hard.

"It's a big competition, it's going to be tough. I think we have a better chance in sculling than sweeping," Thorsen said.

Thorsen added he was happy to make the team as a sculler as he enjoys it more than sweeping.

To prepare himself for the games Thorsen has been training in Edmonton everyday.

While Thorsen has only faced two other provincial teams in competition, he feels B.C., Quebec, and Ontario will be the teams to beat in rowing.

"So far we raced Winnipeg which is Manitoba's team, and Saskatchewan, and we should be competitive with their two teams."

Bomb threat at mall believed to be 'just a prank'

By Sue Kenyon
A bomb threat had firemen and RCMP cording off the Derrick Mall area Sunday after an anonymous caller told police a bomb was set for 7 pm.

Brian Fuglerud, deputy chief training officer of the Drayton Valley fire department said the caller specified the bomb was in Maximum Break, the pool hall in the mall.

Constable Chris Beamish said all police have to go on is that it was a male caller.

"We are writing it off as just a prank," he said.

Police will investigate further though, he said.

Firemen did not enter the mall upon arriving as stores were closed and there would be no reason to believe anyone was in the mall.

"We were just there to keep people away from the area and to wait it out," he said.

The bomb squad was not called in from Edmonton as a search by firemen at 7:30 pm came up with nothing.

"We did search the mall and roof top for any suspicious boxes or packages but we didn't find anything. If we had we would have called in the bomb squad," he said.

According to Fuglerud this is not the first bomb threat for Drayton Valley.

Car bursts into flames in local store parking lot

Firemen quickly doused the engine fire.

By Sue Kenyon
A stop-off at the north end Red Rooster Sunday night may have saved Bonnie Lawrence of Drayton Valley some serious injuries.

Lawrence's 1979 Oldsmobile burst into flames in the parking lot while she was inside the store.

"I could smell gas when I pulled in but I wasn't going to worry about it immediately. I ran into the store and this lady said, your car is on fire," Lawrence said.

Drayton Valley firemen and RCMP were both called to the scene at approximately 10:30 pm.

"It looks like the problem was in the carburetor. It was probably flooded and spurring out more fuel than the engine was using," Brian Fuglerud, deputy chief training officer of the Drayton Valley fire department said.

RCMP constable Grant Gingery says the exact cause of the fire is still under investigation and said the car itself is probably not salvageable; it is a total write-off.

The scene was especially upsetting for Lawrence as for her, it was a new car.

"I've only had it for about two months," she said.

The fire appeared to cause no damage to the store or other vehicles.

Nursing shortage felt in Drayton

By Sue Kenyon

The nursing shortage being felt by many Alberta hospitals is also affecting Drayton Valley.

And there doesn't seem to be any immediate relief.

Jim Jansen, administrator at the Drayton Valley Health Complex says he doesn't know of any graduates this year from Frank Maddock who have gone into nursing.

"Students are becoming smarter and nursing doesn't offer the advancement that other professions give. Nursing is not all that glamorous any more," he says.

In Drayton Valley, the hospital is short two extended care nurses and are in need of a physiotherapist.

"We have advertised all over and have received no replies."

The hospital has one therapist coming in one day a week but Jansen would like to see it become a full time position.

Come September there will be more need of nurses as Jansen says they expect some to go on maternity leave.

"It is a temporary position, but those who are hired will probably be able to find other work when the nurses return from their leave," he says.

Breton hospital has not been effected by the shortage, so far, Janet Young, hospital administrator says.

"We could use a couple of casuals, it's always nice to have extra people," she says.

Award winning family

Crib-death claims baby

Police were called last Saturday to respond to the tragic crib-death of a five-month-old Drayton Valley girl.

The baby died of natural causes (Sudden Infant Death Syndrome), and Drayton Valley RCMP say there will be no further investigation.

Reform Party to congregate in Edmonton

As many as 40 Yellowhead Reform Party supporters could attend the Reform Party of Canada's Fall Assembly, slated for October 27-29 at the Edmonton Inn.

According to voting delegate guidelines, this federal constituency is allowed to send 12 voting delegates. The Yellowhead Reform Party executive set a target of twice as many members-at-large attending, in addition to the 12 voting delegates.

"If those who said they were planning on attending follow through on that commitment, we can expect a strong Yellowhead contingent," says Reform Party Yellowhead Constituency president, Allan Shipton.

Voting delegates were selected during six delegate selection meetings held throughout the constituency in late June. Each region was entitled to send two delegates.

Attending from the Drayton Valley region will be Mark Smith and Roy Coates.

A total of about 80 attended these delegate selection meetings.

"We're fairly pleased with the turn-out, considering the time of year," says Shipton. "There are some areas where we have to work harder, but generally, we had good turn out in these areas where we did well in the last federal election. This shows that our popularity is firm in those areas."

Three main issues will be discussed at the October

Assembly. They are: the federal debt and deficit, the environment, and future of the Reform Party. Voting delegates and members-at-large will debate strategies on how the federal debt and deficit should be managed, what policy the Reform Party should adopt on the environment issue, and whether the Reform Party should expand into Eastern Canada as well as into provincial politics.

The Reform Party also welcomes observers to attend. Information on registering can be obtained through Allan Shipton in Barrhead, or by calling the Reform Party head office in Edmonton.

Zelensky, the Jello junkie

Amanda Zelensky, 5, enjoyed the homemade Jello squares Mom made for lunch in the park. Rotary Park is a popular spot during lunch time on most days. It is hard to find an empty picnic table, but easy to find a quiet spot under a tree.

Farmers need to take a look at their ability to repay loans

Determining the ability of a farm business to handle debt, means the farm operator needs to take a tough look at his ability to repay a loan, says an Alberta Agriculture farm business management economist.

"Will the property pledged for collateral on your loan provide enough net cash income to service the debt against it? This is one of the key tests each farm business proposal should meet," says Garth Nickorick, of the farm business management branch in Olds.

Nickorick says the test can be applied in two ways. First, will the net cash income the individual farmer makes from the land pledged against the loan, make the loan payment? Net cash income is the revenue left after deducting production expenses and operator labor expenses.

"A more rigid evaluation test is whether cash rent earned from the land pledged in the loan would pay the loan payments and land taxes. This test allows for operator labor and depreciation and represents the returns to the land.

"For example, the cash rent rate to landlords is about five per cent of the market value of the land and long term financing is available at nine per cent. To meet this second test about 50 per cent equity is necessary," says Nickorick.

These tests focus on handling debt with a reasonable risk for long term survival. "Certainly there are other ways to evaluate credit proposals, but meeting the conditions of these tests should reduce the individual farm's vulnerability to adverse changes in the international agricultural economy.

"Use and growth of a debt is not necessarily a danger signal, unless there is no corresponding growth in income," he says.

Church drainage problem sparks new landscaping

A major landscaping project is underway at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

President Alan Smith says the landscaping was undertaken to reduce serious drainage problems.

According to Smith, water was getting into the heating ducts causing major problems inside the church.

The front lawn has also been dug up and will be re-sodded and a retaining wall added on the south side of the property.

The church is located behind the Black Gold Inn.

Attention!

How's your cholesterol? Watching your weight? Are you attending your exercise classes regularly? Do you jog 5 miles a week? Only eat healthy foods? Have you protected your INDOOR AIR? Never thought you had to, or didn't think you could? Think again.

THE FACTS:

- People spend 90% of their time indoors. Either at work or at home.
- Micro-organisms and airborne particles from mold, dust, dust mites, smoke, fungi & bacteria cause diseases such as Legionnaires disease, Pneumonia, Pontiac Fever and increase Asthma & Allergy symptoms.
- A one ounce dustball contains as many as 42,000 dust mites.
- There is twice as much air pollution in our homes & offices as there is outdoors.
- The air we breathe while sleeping, eating, exercising or just watching TV may be slowly killing us.

THE SYMPTOMS:

- Do you always seem to have a "Bug"? You know, the one that's going around.
- Do you suffer from a stuffy nose, sneezing or a dry cough?
- Do your eyes burn or itch often?
- Do you suffer from chronic fatigue?
- If you have asthma or allergies do they seem to be better when you are away from home?
- These are some of the many symptoms of Sick Building Syndrome.
- Take the time and the test today to find out if your house is making you sick.

THE SOLUTION — SANI-DUCT
 • Reasonably priced
 • Medically proven
 • Less dusting
 • Energy efficient

SANI-DUCT is not a cure, but a preventive measure that we should all take to protect ourselves and our loved ones.

- People spend thousands of dollars on protecting themselves while in the home by installing fire & burglary alarms, and locks on their doors.

IS OUR HEALTH NOT AS IMPORTANT AS OUR POSSESSIONS?

- We quit smoking & join anti-smoking groups.
- But we don't stop to think that the dust, mold & mildew building up in our homes is in fact reversing the effect of the time, energy & money spent on the above.
- We can't protect ourselves from mother nature or the outside world, but we can take the time to see how we can protect ourselves from indoor air pollutants at home and at work.
- The Canadian Lung Association says the average Canadian loses between 7 1/2 to 10% of their annual wages due to sickness or flu like symptoms. Is it really the flu? The symptoms are very much alike.
- If you are interested in more information on indoor air purification give us a call from a FREE check of your forced air heating system.

Root maggots pose problem for cole crop

If some of your cole crops are wilting and their outer leaves are yellowing, you may have to combat root maggots says an Alberta Agriculture horticulturist.

"If the condition isn't treated, the plants may turn brown, dry up and die," says Pam North, information officer at the Alberta Tree Nursery and Horticulture Centre.

Root maggots, as adults, are greyish-colored flies that resemble house flies. The flies lay eggs in the soil. They hatch into small white legless larvae that can reach one cm in length.

These root maggots particularly attack cole crops. These include broccoli, cabbage, radishes and turnips. Another type of root maggot attacks onions.

"While wilting and yellowing leaves are a first sign of root maggots, digging up an infested plant will also show few feeder roots. You can also see tunnelling into the edible portion of the root," says North.

Liquid diazinon as a soil drench is one way to control root maggots according to North. Directions on the label will tell you how to mix it with water. It should then be applied around the base of each plant. The soil drench should be repeated once every seven to 10 days from late July to mid-August.

North also says it's important when applying chemicals to root crops to read the label and find out the pre-harvest interval.

For more information about root maggots, contact North at 472-6043.

Crops are off to good start

Rains across the Prairie, during May and June got crops off to a good start and greatly improved pasture and hay conditions, according to the latest Prairie Provinces Water Supply Conditions Report issued by PFRA (Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Administration). However, low subsoil moisture levels and the current hot weather mean timely rains will be required to maintain healthy growth.

The information for the report covers the period up to July 1, 1989 and was provided by the Prairie Drought Monitoring Network which consists of a number of federal, provincial and private sources.

Major water reservoirs in Alberta are at normal levels and irrigation districts expect an average supply of water this season.

Groundwater conditions in most shallow wells in southern Alberta are below normal. Levels are near normal in the rest of the province, except in the northern part of the Vegreville district where shortages in shallow wells are being experienced. Deep wells continue to provide a reliable source of water.

On-farm surface water shortages are not expected to occur except in the east central and northeast areas of the province.

No communities are expected to experience drought-related water shortages.

Farmers should watch for viral disease

Farmers who stock their dugouts with fish should be aware of two viral diseases that threaten Alberta fish says an agriculture pathologist.

The two diseases, viral hemorrhagic septicemia and infectious pancreatic necrosis, have recently been reported and identified says Dr. James Hanson.

Viral hemorrhagic septicemia was identified in reproductive fluids obtained by salmon returning from the ocean to their fish hatchery sites in Washington state. Infectious pancreatic necrosis has been identified in rainbow trout at the Sam Livingston hatchery in Calgary.

Hanson says while precautions have been taken to keep infected fish from entering Alberta or leaving the Calgary hatchery, farmers should still be on the lookout for signs of either disease.

"It's very important that natural wild trout populations not be infected," he says.

Viral hemorrhagic septicemia, perhaps, the most serious viral disease of European rainbow trout and Pacific salmon, hadn't been identified in North American fish before this spring.

"Because of its significance, Alberta borders were closed to movement of fish and fish eggs from potentially infected sources in the United States and British Columbia. Examinations and recertification of facilities for import into Alberta are occurring. A number of sources of fingerlings have been identified," Hanson says. This virus causes sudden losses in all age groups of fish, but particularly in those more than five cc long. Typical signs of virus are hemorrhages (bleeding) on the gills, around the eyes and in body organs and muscle. Fish that don't die, suddenly appear to be darker in color and may have bulging eyes. It tends to be a cold water disease with few outbreaks once the water exceeds 8C.

Did you know?

To stay alert, to stay alive, when lightning strikes:
Don't work on fences, telephone or power lines, etc.
Don't use metal objects, like fishing rods and golf clubs.
Don't handle flammable material.

Stop tractor work. Diamount and move away.

Get out of the water and off small boats.
Automobiles offer excellent lightning protection, but they are unsafe places when a tornado or severe thunderstorm approaches, with strong winds, due to the possibility of destruction by wind-blown debris.

Seek shelter from lightning in a building; otherwise, in a cave, ditch or ravine. Do not seek shelter under trees.

If you have metal on your clothing such as golf spikes or belt buckles, get rid of this clothing — you may be grounded and strongly attract the lightning electrical charge.

Avoid wire fences, metal clotheslines and metal sheds which may be electrically conductive.

For further information call the Disaster Services coordinator, Dave Turner at 542-5327.

Construction to begin on school parking lot

The Twin Rivers School Division hopes to start construction later this month on a new parking lot at the Eldorado school.

Bids for the project close Thursday.

The lot, to be built on the north side of the school, will extend from the street west to the Elks parking lot.

Besides serving the needs of the school, the lot is expected to be utilized by the public.

Glue makes cereal/cracker boxes difficult to reseal

Just why do manufacturers glue the inner bags of crackers and cereals to the upper insides of the boxes? The glue is often high enough to make resealing the bag, without ripping it, almost impossible.

Manufacturers of foods sold in boxed inner liners use glue to make the packaging process easier and to keep costs down. However, the benefits to the consumer are indirect, if they exist at all.

Whether your box of crackers is glued or not depends on the type and age of the machine used to pack the snacks. There are two basic methods for packaging. In one, the bag is inserted into the box and glued into place, then the crackers are dropped in. Gluing prevents the bag from collapsing under the weight of the crackers.

To allow for easy resealing, the glue is supposed to be positioned low on the inside of the box. Unfortunately, it is sometimes difficult to get the machines to squirt accurately. One reason for the bungled squirting may be that the machines are old. This process started about 60 years ago and the machines were built to last.

Other brands of crackers are packaged in bags that are not glued to the box - a process that was developed in the mid 1950's. The crackers are put into the bag first, then the full bag is inserted. Manufacturers probably won't change to this newer process unless consumers complain directly to them.

Lake campsite swimming is best it has ever been

Buck Lake News

By Joan Elmout

Red Cross swimming lessons will be completed this week at the lake.

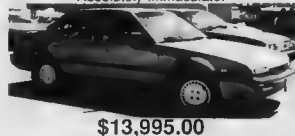

The Lake campsite swimming place is the best it has ever been. With the retaining wall, the larger beach and the brand new carpeted pontoons it is a much safer place for kids to learn. All we need now is to get rid of the 'lake itch'.

The Buck Lake Agricultural Fair will be held on August 16 and 17.

Don't forget the Winfield 29 th Annual Ugetuk Days on August 11, 12, and 13.

Local cadet returns from overseas exchange trip

Breton News

By Shelli Carson

Dianne Hutchinson of the Breton Cadet Corps recently returned from a trip to England.

She was one of 12 Canadian female cadets chosen to take part in a cultural exchange in England. She was very surprised to be chosen, but assumes that her 'Gold Star' and 'Duke of Edinburgh' awards, which she had previously received, may have helped her qualify.

The trip began on June 26. Once in England, a few days were spent at the Sussex Training Centre training in ambushing with the 'A' company. Then they were on to the Firmlay Park Cadet Training Centre for a week-long course.

The aim of the course is to 'develop cadets' initiative and self-reliance and to exercise them in problems or practical leadership. This aim is achieved by placing the cadets in positions of authority while under physical and mental pressure, by developing a team spirit in competition and in physically demanding circumstances." Hutchinson says that the course was extremely demanding physically and mentally and states that the tremendous support given by the British cadets was really what got her through it.

Involved in the training exercises were 12 Canadian female cadets, three British female cadets and 100 British male cadets.

After the week at Firmlay Park, the remainder of her time in England was spent touring. This included a trip to London to see the Royal Tournament. Also toured were Buckingham Palace, the Parliament Buildings, Tower Bridge, Westminster Abbey, and Leeds Castle.

Congratulations to Harold, the Hanover of Breton, who recently won the door prize at the Edison Oilmen's Golf Tournament. The prize is a trip to Las Vegas. Hanson also placed second in the Texas Scramble at a golf tournament in Lloydminster.

Alder Flats to hold homegrown agricultural fair this month

About 30 seniors went by West Country Fun Tours bus to Edmonton on Monday, July 24 to spend the day the Klondike exhibits at the Agricom.

Bring your wares to the Alder Flats 'Homegrown' Agricultural Fair on August 22 to 24. Displays, a china painting demonstration, children's craft table and a pot luck supper will make it a fair for everyone.

The West End Education Committee has not met recently and do not anticipate any action until word is received back from the School Buildings Branch. "At the moment we have gone as far as we can" reports WEEC representative Linda MacKinnon, "right now is the waiting game".

Hopefully an answer will be forthcoming in August concerning the fate of the schools in Alder Flats and Buck Lake.

"The County of Wetaskiwin has gotten as far as they could. The ball is now out of their hands."

In the meantime the Board of Education has appointed representative of WEEC to become part of what is now "West End Educational Advisory Committee". This committee has been established to assist the County Board of Education to pursue and garner community and Provincial Government support for the improvement of the West End Educational facilities and programs and to enhance two-way communication between the board and communities.

The only real problem facing the committee rests with the decision to be made on annexation.

Alder Flats

Right now with

Wetaskiwin they have gotten a door open for us" reports MacKinnon, "if we're annexed it could be the start of another ten year battle but regardless of where we end up we still have goals to pursue."

Bottom line for Klub is speed

By Paul Cudla

Go-carts are just motorized toys for children... right?

Wrong.

The Warburg Kart Racing Park (WKRP) Kart Klub is a testament to a sport which is growing rapidly in popularity among all age groups.

Racers use 2-cycle and 4-cycle go-carts which are categorized into weight and engine classes.

Two cycle carts can reach speeds of around 80 to 85 mph, while 4-cycles can attain speeds of 70 mph. A two-cycle cart can lap a half-mile track in 48 secs., while 4-cycles can circle the track in 52 secs.

And in kart-racing, speed is the bottom line.

"I like the speed more than anything," Allen Lainchbury, 32, of Drayton Valley says.

"If you take one for a ride, you're hooked right away. You feel like you're going 100 mph because you're two inches off the ground."

Lainchbury has been racing for a year and a half. He got into kart-racing after he saw a cart at a local trade fair.

"It gives me something to do on weekends. I race for the fun of going out there and racing. I don't care if I win; I just like it," Lainchbury says.

There are about 75-100 members in the WKRP Kart Klub and most memberships include entire families.

Although go-carts aren't solely a children's toy, children are encouraged and do get into the racing action.

Justin Eggert, 8, who was competitively racing for the first time July 23, enjoys carts for that ever-present speed factor.

"The thing I like about racing is going across the straightaways. You get to go fast," Eggert says.

Eggert, who came from Calgary to the race in Warburg, began racing when his grandfather got him involved.

"I'd like to win a race, but it's so hard," Steve Lane, also from Calgary, began go-cart racing 12 years ago when his uncle built him a cart.

"It's addictive," Lane says of go-carting. And what does Lane like best about go-cart racing?

"The people. It's the only group of people that I've dealt with where, if you have a problem on the track while you're racing, they'll help you. I haven't seen any other classes of racing where that happens."

"In other racing, if you have technical troubles, that's too bad. You go watch the race from the stands; not in carting."

This year, Warburg is hosting 'the World Series of go-cart racing', the Grand Nationals where an expected 200 entries will converge on the Warburg track for 2 and 4 cycle races.

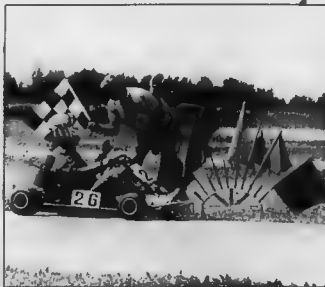

Carters from all over North America will be racing carts in 27 different classes from August 19-20 (4-cycle) and 26-27 (2-cycle).

Grand National racers will be striving for the championship trophy dubbed 'The Duffy', which is every cart-racer's icon.

Fans of racing, or just admirers of speed, would be wise to attend the Grand Nationals in mid-August, as Warburg becomes the centre of the cart-racing universe.

Justin Eggert, 8, raced for the first time competitively July 23.

Allen Lainchbury literally takes the checkered flag in winning the first heat in 4-cycles.

The finish line...and coveted checkered flag.

A little fine tuning.

Duelin' for the lead.

Junior citizens awarded

Ten Alberta youngsters who have shown exceptional effort and commitment have been selected as the 1989 Alberta Junior Citizen of the Year Award recipients.

The judging panel, consisting of Alberta Weekly Newspapers Association editors and publishers, an Edmonton school principal and a 1988 recipient of the Alberta Junior Citizen of the Year Award, had the difficult task of choosing the ten recipients from the 119 nominations received from across the province.

"Being a 1988 Alberta Junior Citizen Award recipient, I know what an honor this award brings," said Linda Olson, one of the judges on the 1989 judging panel. "The ten individuals chosen should be extremely proud of their outstanding achievements in their communities."

The 1989 recipients are: Kimberley Dickau, 14, Wetaskawin; Robert Fleit, 13, Fort McMurray; Robbie Gordon, 11, Red Deer; Tracie Lee, 17, Stony Plain; Cara Mowat, 12, Langdon; Victoria Nguyen, 12, Edmonton; Jason Reinhart, 11, Chauvin; Raewyn Schnee, 16, Gwynne; Karen Sorochuk, 13, Vegreville; and Charlotte Wolters, 17, of St. Albert.

The Lieutenant-Governor of Alberta, Her Honor Helen Hunley, will present the awards at a special ceremony in Calgary on September 22, 1989. Each recipient will be presented with a framed citation, an exclusive lapel pin, and a cash award.

For 28 years, the Alberta Junior Citizen of the Year Awards program has been cosponsored by Alberta Power and TransAlta Utilities, in cooperation with the Alberta Weekly Newspapers Association.

HATS OFF TO OUR HEROS

Brian Fuglerud won't be entering any rehabilitation centres for his addiction.

The deputy chief-training officer at the Drayton Valley fire department says he is addicted to being a volunteer firefighter.

"It's something for me to do that I can feel good about. It tends to take time away from the family but it makes us appreciate the time we do have even more."

Fuglerud has been involved with the fire department for the past eight years. He says being a volunteer firefighter is a chance to help out in the community.

"Once in a while somebody says thank-you, and that's all a guy can ask for."

Electrical muscle stimulation worries medical professionals

By Samia Vallemand
Can electrical muscle stimulation (EMS) replace old-fashioned workouts? A new industry wants you to think so.

For the busy person on the go who wants to keep in shape without working up a sweat, sessions on an electrical muscle stimulation machine sound ideal. You place on your skin a number of electrodes or pads that carry an electric current. The current stimulates muscles, supposedly offering effortless muscle toning and tightening, increased circulation and even weight loss.

Until recently, EMS was used in Canada only on a limited basis by physiotherapists and others involved in physical rehabilitation. Accepted uses of the device include relaxing muscle spasms, "re-educating" muscles after a stroke or helping relieve pain common to muscles.

Consumer's Corner

Now, however, this technology is being used by those other than medical professionals. For between $150 and $1000, you can now buy a home EMS unit. As well, EMS salons have now arrived in Canada.

The spread of EMS has raised a host of concerns. There are worries about misleading claims over the effectiveness of the technique. Worse, medical professionals worry that consumers may be placed at risk.

Always check with your physician before starting a new program such as this. CAC Alberta can give you an in-depth look at the Canadian Consumer article concerning EMS. Phone 420-0747.

Abundance of moisture an asset to crops this year

Recent moisture has not only helped the crop picture, but has turned thoughts to the summer hay crop.

"This year's custom haying rates will probably be in the same ball park as last year's rates," says Garth Nickorick, an Alberta Agriculture farm management economist with the farm business management branch in Olds.

An annual survey is conducted by Alberta Agriculture during the July/August haying season.

In 1988, mowing and conditioning hay ranged between $6 and $10 per acre, says Nickorick. Custom operators also charged on the basis of the final product, a rate between 10 and 15 cents per small square bale, he says.

Baling small, square bales ranged between 30 and 40 cents per bale says Nickorick. Hauling rates for short distances, a mile or less, fell between 20 and 30 cents per bale. This figure includes stacking.

Custom operators with equipment for large round bales charged between $5 and $6.50 per bale for baling. Stacking and hauling the big round bales ranged between $1 and $2 per bale.

"These figures were the most commonly quoted ones from our 1988 survey," added Nickorick.

For more information about custom rates for haying and other farm services, contact Nickorick at 556-4247.

'Living, learning...and loving it' theme of conference

By Bev Brooks
District Home Economist

On July 17-20, I attended the 59th Annual Alberta Women's Week at Olds College as the conference chairperson. After a year of planning, it was encouraging to see over 225 enthusiastic women from across the province. Their reasons for attending varied, but for all it was a break from the routine, a chance to enjoy, relax, learn and meet other women like themselves.

The theme, "Living, Learning...and Loving It" expressed the entire mood of the conference.

This theme was addressed by David Irvine, a counsellor, consultant and educator, in his keynote address. Irvine encouraged participants to trust themselves more, love others more and take charge of the many challenges we all face daily.

When it came to deciding which of the 29 select-a-sessions to attend, it was often difficult to choose. The comment "I'd like to take them all" was often heard. The topics varied from safety to gardening to insurance, family communications and assertiveness training.

Alice Brown, an active farm woman, encouraged participants to take control of their destiny. She discussed how through their organizations, farm women can shape, and face, the future with pride.

In the closing address, Jim Miller, a successful Calgary businessman, drew a lot of laughs. He urged each of us to "Stop Taking Ourselves So Seriously", and helped us realize how humor can assist us in finding new ways of thinking and understanding.

In addition to the lectures and sessions, there was a lot of time to socialize. The dessert party with musical entertainment, The Multicultural Extravaganza, and the banquet with the dinner theatre presentation, "Little Miss Fresno", were all popular and entertaining.

Some participants attended one of the two optional day tours of local agricultural enterprises. One tour went to Custom Woolen Mills and Pasu Sheep Farms and the other tour went to Pearson

Berry Farm and Beck Carrot Farms

Alberta Women's Week is sponsored by the Home Economists Branch of Alberta Agriculture. Everyone needs a break and Alberta Women's Week allows you a chance to learn, meet new friends and share common concerns with women from across Alberta.

Plan now to attend Alberta Women's Week 60th Anniversary celebrations next July. Call me at Alberta Agriculture, 542-5368, for more details.

Birches, Scotch pine, Colorado spruce and Siberian elm are the types of trees sapsuckers prefer. In Memoriam

BROOKS
 In loving memory of our dear son Dear, who passed away Aug. 2, 1987. Nothing can ever take away the love our hearts hold dear. Fond memories linger every day. Remembering keeps you near. Deep in our hearts we will always care. The love and tenderness you always gave. Silent thoughts of our time together. Will bring loving memories that will last. So sadly missed and forever loved. Mom and Dad

In memory of Dale Miller who passed away August 5, 1988. There was no time to say good-bye. The day you went away. You left us so very suddenly. One year ago today. We think you still smile. And often speak your name. But all we have are memories. And your picture in a frame. Our hearts still ache with sorrow. And silent tears still flow. What it meant to lose you. No one will ever know. To some you may be forgotten. To others a part of the past. Be it to us who loved and lost you. Your memory will always last. Sadly missed, lovingly remembered by Glady, Morris and Lanny.

She's got it covered!

This unidentified resident used her imagination when making a "Glad" dash for cover during last week's heavy downpour.

'We can't operate on hints'

The Pembina Educational Consortium is trying to "nail down some money for (1988/89) programs" says executive director Joe MacLellan.

But his hammer will have to be rather large considering the amount needed is about half a million dollars.

"Hints or suggestions or possibilities or probabilities are not what we operate on," he says. "But I think it's (funding) forthcoming. It should be here imminently."

Some of the regular programs include academic upgrading, technical upgrading (trades), power engineering, oilfield safety training and early childhood development, and the consortium is hoping to include a teacher's aide program and micro-computer accounting.

Severe storm causes wide-spread havoc

By Sue Kenyon

A storm which ripped through Drayton Valley and area dumped over 100 millimetres of rain and winds reaching 50 km/h caused damage to some homes.

The thunder began Tuesday and by Thursday the rain still had not let up.

The rain brought with it severe thunder and lightning Tuesday which continued through Wednesday.

Dan Walton, forest fire supervisor of Lodgepole ranger station says the flooding in 1986 occurred after the area received just about as much rainfall as the last two days.

"Why we didn't experience the same flooding was due to the dry periods this time we had between rainfalls," he said.

Home suffers extensive damage

Donna Wiltie, clerk typist at the ranger station reports one lightning strike which started a fire but the heavy rain extinguished the fire immediately, causing no threat.

Bob Masse's farm, just east of Drayton Valley on Highway 39, appears to be amongst the worst-hit in the area. The siding on the west side of the house was ripped off by heavy winds, causing extensive damage.

A large wooden structure which housed hay was thrown clear over a fence landing on its roof, and the wind completely destroyed another wooden structure on Masse's land.

The Edmonton weather office confirms a tornado did touch down in Mulhurst over Pigeon Lake causing a water spout.

"A water spout, basically, is just a tornado over a lake. Instead of sucking up debris which it does over land, it sucks up water," a spokesman in the weather office says.

Many homes in that area suffered damage from winds which broke windows and uprooted trees.

RCMP in Evansburg, Drayton Valley and Breton say they really didn't have too many problems attributable to the storm.

"We really haven't had any problems, no traffic accidents caused by the weather," Const. Allan Kaufmann of the Drayton Valley RCMP says.

Evansburg RCMP Const. Ken Taylor reports they have had minor road wash outs and assisted a farmer moving cattle from one field to another, but that is about all.

"The field was soaked. The cattle weren't in any real danger but the farmer wanted them moved to a drier field," Taylor said.

Const. Peter Clark of the Breton detachment reports no flooding in that area and no damage.

Terry Fleming of the MD of Brazeau says the storm didn't cause too many problems but there were problems with culverts and streams overflowing when they couldn't take the amount of rain.

Before the storm hit, Walton says the average wind was 10 km/h. From Tuesday to Thursday the average was 25 km/h and in some areas reached higher velocities.

The new home of the Pembina Educational Consortium is expected to be complete by Aug. 25.

Executive director Joe MacLellan said the move will probably take place the last week in August.

The driver of this 1979 Kenworth escaped with only scrapes and bruises. The truck is a write-off and will cost about $50,000 to replace.

'79 tractor written-off in accident

Damage to a Whitepass Systems 1979 Kenworth tractor and trailer that lost control on Highway 22 last week is estimated to be around $50,000.

According to Drayton Valley RCMP, Kenneth Capaniuk, 20, was heading south on Highway 22, approximately three kilometres east of 50 Street when his vehicle went out of control.

Capaniuk received minor injuries (scrapes and scratches) when the truck went into the ditch.

Whitepass supervisor Keith Couturier said the tractor is a write-off, and the trailer has minor damage.

'It has been great'

Promising year to come for MD

By Susan Mosicki
A challenging first year for the newly formed MD Brazeau has just ended, but the year to come is holding even more promise.

Plans for the future include tourism action plans, economic development, getting general land use bylaws in place, and more.

"If all required agreements aren't in place, they will be in the future," said manager John Eriksson.

He was elated over the accomplishments of the MD over the last year, including organization, establishing a administration, computerization, financial statements, tax notices, bylaws and annexation hearings. "It has been great. As municipal manager, one rarely gets an opportunity like this."

"We've accomplished a miracle, really, in organizing this municipality," said Reeve Henry Rondeau.

"It's been hectic. Starting in 1988 with few staff and little equipment. The public were very good, too. They understood our situation and we did provide the services."

"Having the office right here in Drayton Valley, I think, was a tremendous asset to the municipality," he said. "Having our own agricultural service board here has been a tremendous asset for farmers," he added.

Regarding the proposed annexation of several areas into the MD, Rondeau said, "We're anxious to know definite boundaries."

Overall, Rondeau and Eriksson said it has been a very successful year. "We have one of the best rural municipalities in Alberta, if not the best," Rondeau asserted.

Eriksson seconded this opinion and said, "In a very short period of time, what we've done is develop a professional organization willing to consider the needs of the people. We've busted our butts and we're proud!"

Henry Rondeau and John Eriksson.

First-time win for token key recipient

Left to right: Dale Rendflesh, Alf Young and Gilbert Aubin.

Alf Young, of Lindale, is now among the token key holders after his name was drawn in the chamber of commerce/retail merchants association car-give-away contest.

Young's name was drawn from the IGA in Derrick Mall and when asked what he's won in the past, his answer is "zip."

Between Alf and his wife Elaine, he says they must have entered the contest about five times before their name was drawn.

The winner of the car itself has a choice of a Ford, Nissan or a Dodge. Young says he doesn't know what make he'd choose if he won but it would not be a car.

"I need a car like a hole in the head; I would definitely choose some kind of truck," he said.

Shoppers can enter the contest at several local participating businesses...just fill out the entry form and keep your fingers crossed.

Holding the strandboard that has been approved by Japan is plant manager Percy Champagne (left) of Pelican Spruce Mills and Gary Martin, international marketing manager of Weyerhaeuser Canada.

Pelican gets Japanese approval

By Sue Kenyon

Pelican Mills is the first mill in the world to receive Japan's stamp of approval and will begin trade in the Japanese market, Gary Martin, international marketing manager of Pelican Mills says.

Martin was in Tokyo, Japan July 27 and attended a ceremony to commemorate the deal.

The JAS (Japanese Agricultural Standards) is one of the toughest approvals to receive, according to Martin.

No figures have been set as to how much Pelican will trade with Japan but Martin says they should know in six months' time.

"We are going to let the Japanese market dictate to us in determining how much trade takes place," Martin says.

Right now the mill manufactures 250 million square feet of the strandboard a year and Martin says Weyerhaeuser's goal is to draw 20 per cent of the volume out of the mill for international trade.

Weyerhaeuser was trading mostly with the United States and Martin says the company didn't want to be tied so closely with the Americans as the plan is to diversify their trade. The supply of strandboard in the mill will not actually increase, just trading will be diversified, he said.

Weyerhaeuser is in the process of also applying for the BBA (British approval).

"We currently have an application for wall and roof material and we are now completing a flooring application with the British," said Martin.

The long-term goal is to eventually trade with Britain, France and Germany. The British approval for flooring material should be received within three months, according to Martin.

"We are just very proud of the fact that we are the first mill in the world to receive the JAS. I think that is quite an accomplishment," said Martin.

Campers can enjoy upgraded 'nature site'

The new Battle Lake campground is not fully developed, but people can camp there now if they wish, says County of Wetaskiwin assistant agriculture fieldman Duane Warnke.

Originally a private campground site, the county has been upgrading it, but parks supervisor Gordon Walker says, "We didn't want to disturb the area more than necessary."

He says the main reason for developing the campground was to provide the public with access to Battle Lake.

"It's a nature site," says Warnke. "There are a lot of nice birds and wildlife, and it's a fishing lake."

He says there is a boat ramp, a small beach, approximately 25 campsites, a small tenting area, and a day-use area in the campground located on the northeast end of the lake.

"It's a nice, quiet area," says Walker. "If a person wants a nice, quiet campground, hopefully that will be the one."

Severe shortage of rental, housing vacancies in Drayton Valley

There appears to be an immediate need for more accommodation in Drayton Valley.

The 'no vacancy' sign is evident at most of our hotels and motels.

Finding an apartment or vacant house to rent is next to impossible.

And realtors report 40 per cent fewer houses on the market this year compared to 1988.

Add to those problems, word is that activity is expected to pick up in the oil patch as early as next month.

It's certainly not a healthy sign for a town like Drayton Valley that experienced significant growth in recent years.

Home builders are trying to keep pace as they have taken out 52 permits already this year. That was the same total for all of last year.

There has been talk these past couple of years about the need for another hotel in town. But talk is about all we've heard.

It should be obvious to those in the hotel business there is a need.

There have also been similar rumblings about more apartments. But, like another hotel, it's just been talk.

If rental accommodation is impossible to find now, what will it be like next month when the teachers return to classes?

It's obvious from what the community is experiencing that more accommodation is needed.

Young people having difficulty finding employment

Students experience taste of the working world

Some students have been frustrated at the difficulty in finding a job this summer.

Especially in the younger age bracket.

Recently these students, assisted by HIRE A Student coordinator Tracey Vatter, got a taste of the working world.

They went door-to-door downtown selling fresh doughnuts, cookies and orange juice. Another day the students sold popcorn and capped the week with an ice cream/face-painting session.

Besides the few dollars they pocketed from this experience, they learned a lot about being responsible.

A tip of the hat to Vatter for taking the time out from a hectic schedule to assist these young people.

Frankly Speaking

Every time I see a pancake eating contest on the tube it brings back a few memories.

It was many a year ago when I entered a similar contest in conjunction with the Dawson Creek fair.

When the eating was finally over, I nudged out the only other competitor 96-95.

The following year I decided not to enter for obvious reasons and the winner consumed 115 pancakes.

Nowadays I have trouble eating a half-dozen pancakes.

Not that I want to enter, but maybe a pancake eating contest could be arranged in conjunction with the Evergreen Rodeo.

Department of Agriculture 'surprised'

Check pines for blister moths

By Paul Cudla

Have you checked your pine trees lately?

Don Regenwetter has and he's noticed an interesting and disturbing trend amongst his tree nursery.

One week ago he detected a blister that was infecting about 75 per cent of the 1,200 trees in his nursery. Regenwetter owns the Tasmanian Nursery six miles north of Drayton Valley.

"It's the first time I've seen pines with something of this magnitude," Regenwetter says.

Partly curious, and mostly concerned for the health of his pine trees, Regenwetter set out to find out what was causing this plague at his nursery.

After research and numerous phone calls, Regenwetter found out pine blister moths (or pine shoot moths) were to blame for his blistering pines.

"The Department of Agriculture was surprised I had them; they say it's regional."

The pine blister moth is a worm about three millimetres long which bores into the bark of a pine tree. The worm will form a cocoon (the blister) out of silk it produces and will feed off of the tree for a two-year incubation period.

"The Department of Agriculture says the worm will not kill a tree," Regenwetter says, producing a brown stem off a tree from his nursery which is obviously dead.

"I call it hokey-pokey."

After the two-year larvae period the worm becomes a full-grown moth in late April or May. The full-grown moth will then fly off to lay its own

The full-grown moth will then look to lay its own eggs and chooses the new chutes of pines.

Once the new moth's eggs have hatched the worms from that larvae will move down from the top chute of the pine and bore into the bark at the trunk.

Regenwetter says the worm will feed off the tree's nutrients at the core leaving the tree un nourished...and eventually dead.

But fear not local pine tree lovers, if your trees have been infected they can be saved.

"The important thing about this is there is a cure," Regenwetter says.

And the cure according to Regenwetter is Cygun 240 EC which is a systemic pesticide.

Regenwetter says systemic pesticides will be more effective in battling the pine blister moth because sprays will not get into the actual core of the tree which the worm feeds off.

Don Regenwetter has discovered a pine blister moth infestation at his nursery. Approximately 75 per cent of his trees have the disease.

Poplar Valley Church hits half-century mark

Present (far left, back row) and former pastors of the Poplar Valley Church.

More than 180 people 'came to the church in the dale' last weekend to celebrate the golden anniversary of the Poplar Valley Church in Winfield. M.L.A. Tom Thurber and Wetaskiwin County Councillor Gordon Sherwood extended greetings at the Saturday evening banquet, and Rev. Rick Rose (pastor from 1982-89) acknowledged special visitors.

The commemorative gathering was also attended by most of the former pastors of the church, as well as the newest pastor, Rev. Jeff Longard, who was inducted in a special service Sunday.

Music for the banquet was provided by the Victory Brothers, a gospel quartet.

The history of the church was depicted in video and slide presentations narrated by Rev. Rick Rose and Rev. Walter Gamble (1960-72) (special speaker).

A fond farewell was bid to Rev. Rose and his family (leaving for Ontario) in service on Sunday.

New assistant, new courses planned

By Sue Kenyon

The Pembina Educational Consortium is being relocated to the old town office building and plans are underway to add two new courses plus a program assistant.

Executive director Joe MacLellan says the consortium is getting full support from the community and most courses have waiting lists. Due to the demand a new assistant is needed and more space.

"We are doing renovations now on the old town office building and we should be moving into it at the end of August," he said. The new location will give the consortium about a third more room than the old building, according to MacLellan.

Two new courses may also be added to the curriculum. A teacher's aide course and a micro-computer accounting program are in the planning stages.

"Nothing is finalized but we'd like to get them," he said.

There is a need for both courses, says MacLellan.

"We are doing ongoing educational surveys and choose our courses according to what employers are looking for."

Plan ahead for severe weather

By Susan Mosicki

In light of recent severe weather in our area, there may be some concern as to what is the correct procedure in the case of severe weather.

Steve Watson, a weather services specialist at the Edmonton weather office, suggests choosing a shelter area in advance, and having drills. "They should have some kind of plan ahead of time or everybody panics."

In the case of a tornado, he says, if you have no basement, choose an inner hallway or small inner room away from windows.

"Avoid large halls, cafeterias, supermarkets, barns, etc. because they are not very well supported."

If you have a basement, Watson suggests going under the stairs, in the middle of the basement, or on the side away from the approaching tornado.

If outdoors, get as close to the ground as you can, hold on to a bush or tree so the wind can't blow you away, or crawl in a ditch or low lying area.

If driving, drive away from the path of the tornado at a right angle, and if that is not possible, get out of the car and seek shelter in a ditch or ravine; or if no shelter is available, crawl under the car to protect yourself from flying debris, he says.

Windows in your home should be closed, Watson says. "There is some suggestion you should leave the windows open, but that's not really advisable as far as we're concerned."

In the case of thunder and lightning storms, Watson says heavy downpours can cause flash floods, so don't seek shelter where you could be trapped by water. Take lawnchairs, etc. from outside because wind gusts can send them flying through a window.

Stay away from lightning conductors (anything metallic), he adds.

"Don't make yourself the tallest point in a field, and avoid the use of phones, electrical appliances, and avoid taking showers."

"When out in the open, you should drop to your knees and bend forward so your head is lower than your back, but don't let your head touch the ground, and put your hands on your thighs."

"You're going to be lower and there will be less likelihood of getting a severe jolt of lightning," says Watson.

Stay away from open water, metal objects and windows, don't stand under trees, and don't carry an umbrella, golf clubs or fishing rods, he advises.

If you should find someone who has been struck by lightning, they can be handled safely, he assured. "Always try to resuscitate — even if they appear dead, they may be revived."

Neptunes enjoying record-breaking season

The Neptune Swim Club capped its regular season meet schedule by winning the Edson meet July 29 and finishing third at the Hinton meet July 30.

The Neptunes took 51 swimmers to the Edson meet where they beat six other teams, including St. Albert which sent only a small contingent of swimmers. Aggregate individual winners were not available.

In Hinton, the Neptune club had 47 swimmers and finished third behind St. Albert and the Edmonton Humma Humma club.

St. Albert came from behind to win the Hinton meet by one aggregate point over Humma Humma. The Neptune club finished 38.5 points behind St. Albert.

"All around there were good times posted. Some of the kids are showing real good speed," Loren Regnier, head coach of the Neptune club, said.

Thus far, Neptune swimmers have broken 28 existing swim club records which Regnier said is unusual for this time of the year.

The club is now setting its sights on the most important meet of the season, the regionals Aug. 19 and 20 in Hinton.

"We will be tapering our swimmers. They'll start doing more quality swims, speed work, sprints and hard swims."

"They're looking good, they should be rested and in good condition (for the regionals)," Regnier said.

Individual aggregate winners at the Hinton swim meet were: 8 and under - Kori Samis, gold, Tara Brigley, silver; 9 and 10 - Carla McGinn, bronze; 11 and 12 - Tanya Sprague, bronze, Kevin Oscar, gold; 13 and 14 - Ryan Unterschultz, silver, Scott Maclock, bronze; 17 and up - Andrea Groulx, silver.

Golf club league playoffs in progress

The Drayton Valley men's golf league has completed its regular season and the winning team is Mike McAllister's squad of 10.

McAllister's team finished with 154 points. In second was Wayne Tedrick's team with 146 points. Rounding out the top five are the team of Link with 144, Kuzek 138 and Al Dick at 137 points.

A total of 18 teams competed this year with 10 golfers on each team.

Teams play off head to head in match play format (based on handicap) with separate individual team members playing off against each other. A team is awarded two points for each separate match win and also gains two points for beating the other team in overall strokes.

Playoffs began in the league Aug. 1 and 3.

Dennis Balderson, who has helped organize the league for the past six years, said the regular season went smoothly.

"It has gone very well. It's a solid league and we've had good success with it this year," Balderson said.

Dean Perry tees off at men's league playoffs Aug. 1.

Playoffs for the men's league will be stretched over a four-week period and will be played on Tuesdays and Thursdays at the Drayton Valley golf club.

Rugby

Clinic stresses basics

Potential rugby players will be pleased to know a rugby clinic is scheduled to take place in Drayton Valley, Aug. 27.

The clinic will take place from noon until 3 p.m. at West Valley Lions' Park at the football field.

"There is no experience necessary. Anyone who wants to learn the game can come out and throw the ball around," Rob Landers, who is helping organize the clinic, says.

"All you need is yourself and a pair of runners." The clinic is free and will emphasize the basic skills of rugby.

Landers says if there is a large enough turnout and interest expressed in rugby, tournaments may be planned for next year. The potential of forming a Drayton Valley team will be examined if interest is maintained.

For more information individuals may contact Rob Landers at 542-2243.

Froese racing for first

Kan Froese's pursuit of first overall in drag-bike racing continues as he won a race July 28 and finished second July 30.

Currently he sits in second-place overall in the points standings at Calgary's Race City Speedway.

"Second doesn't count. I made a promise to myself at the end of last year that I was going for number one," Froese says.

Froese finished second overall last season.

With a Sept. 4 racing 'extravaganza' nearing, in which points will be doubled for placing in the money, Froese has been gearing up his bike for that particular race.

"It's going to go down right to the wire (the race for first)."

"I've been more successful this year than last, but then so are other people so that's what is making it so close," says Froese.

The top three racers in drag-bike racing are bunched tightly together, separated only by a difference a few top-three finishes.

Beaver ball club

Team ties for third position

The Drayton Valley beaver select team fell short of its goal of becoming provincial 'AA' champions.

The beaver team, consisting of 13 and 14 year-olds, finished in a third-place tie at the provincial tournament held July 28 and 29.

The beaver selects finished with two wins and two losses in the weekend tournament. They beat Enchant 7-4 and Stettler 7-5, but were defeated by St. Albert 10-7 and Pincher Creek 14-7.

Drayton Valley lost their two games on Friday but rebounded Saturday to win two and even up their record.

"We played really, really well on Saturday which was great but it just wasn't our day Friday," Dan Bartlett, assistant coach of the beaver selects, said.

During the regular season the beaver selects won three tournaments and finished no worse than second.

"I told the boys they could be proud of themselves. They played well all season. I think it was an excellent year," Bartlett said.

St. Albert ended up winning the provincial tournament with a 2-1 win over Stettler in the final game.

Breton cowboy experiences 'biggest rodeo in the world'

Bill Badgerow, 19, competed in the High School Finals Rodeo in Pueblo, Colorado from July 23-30, and it was an experience he will cherish.

Badgerow, a Breton cowboy, made the high school finals in saddlebronc.

"It was well worth the experience. It was a lot of fun. I enjoyed myself. I met a lot of people, and have a lot of friends from Texas and all over Missouri now," Badgerow said.

The high school finals, dubbed 'the biggest rodeo in the world' drew 110 competitors for the saddlebronc event.

Badgerow rode his first horse for a 59, but was disqualified on his second ride for not getting his spurs out.

Girls can play baseball, too

By Paul Cudla
Girls can do anything boys can do, and that includes playing baseball.

This year's girls baseball division experienced an enrolment of 117 which is the highest ever in Drayton Valley.

Kathy Matlock, coordinator of girls baseball, was impressed with the turnout for this season.

"They really came out of the woodwork this year. We weren't quite prepared for that many and we really had to dig around for enough equipment," Matlock said.

There were nine teams in three age groups competing this season which ran for two and a half months up to June 17.

If they keep on like this we're going to have to get more sponsors and uniforms," Matlock said.

Matlock has been girls baseball co-ordinator for two years, but girls baseball itself has been in existence in Drayton Valley for about five years.

In appreciation

Sports volunteer — Kathy Matlock

Matlock has had tremendous help from her coaches and three directors who she says were extremely efficient and helpful this year.

The directors of girls baseball this year are Darrel Hunt, Lois Gilbertson, and Ann Grindrod.

Coaches who took on the task of handling girls teams include Pat Adamson, Lorne Nienaber, Debbie Ballas, Donna Kelly, Lynn Macdonald, Rita Steele, Brian Baumann, Shirley Birney, Richard Tatro, Brian Walsh, and Harold Lathe. Equipment manager was Wendy Bartlett.

Drayton Valley Oldtimers take gold at Games

By Paul Cudla

The Drayton Valley Oldtimers slow-pitch team captured a gold medal at the Spruce Grove Senior Games July 11, 12, and 13.

The DV Oldtimers won their three allotted games to take the gold medal on the runs for and against tie-breaking rule.

By beating Spruce Grove, Mayerthorpe, and Sanguo, the Oldtimers compiled a spotless 3-0 win/loss record.

Otto Hansen who plays on the over-55 team said the team played well in all aspects of slow-pitch.

"We played sound ball all the way around. It was mostly our hitting which won us the medal. The boys played good," Hansen said. Boys!

"We're in our second childhood out there," Hansen explained.

The DV Oldtimers are presently playing in the 'B' record. division of the local slow-pitch league and have a 12-8

Their next tournament will be Aug. 19-20 in Castor.

Snell's late start doesn't affect her performance at Games

Many Alice Snell captured the gold medal in the 50-metre freestyle swimming event at the Senior Games held July 14 at Spruce Grove. "I was very excited to win.

It was a very good event," Snell said.

Snell started swimming relatively late, when she was 50, and says she was previously scared of the water. She has been swimming for five years.

"I enjoy it. I usually swim a mile every day three or four times a week for four months during the winter."

Previous to the July 14 meet, Snell hadn't swam since March.

The Spruce Grove games were for 55-and-over seniors.

Air Expo

By Frank Pavlick
Canada's Sports Poet

The Expos are flying in this season's race, The Eastern Division has them in first place, The Cubs and the Mets are both chasing the fun,

But talent still has Montreal #1.

A dream isn't aircraft for others to try, Why shouldn't the Montreal Expos team fly. Take Langston, Martinez and Pascual Perez, Add all those arms up and then see what that says. The 9th inning comebacks in games that were lost, The Expos are paying whatever the cost. The grapevine is buzzing, baseball is alive, With waterholes reved on the 'pos overdrive. The face of our country is starting to grin, With a few breaks and bounces, the Expos can win.

Gym club Alberta Sports Council donates new equipment

The Rose Creek Gym Club has received several new pieces of equipment to benefit their programming this year.

A landing mat, foam wedge, balance bench, beam cover andommel-vault will make for more interesting activities. Funding for the equipment was provided by private and corporate donations and Alberta Sports Council who donated $1,000 towards the purchase of theommel-vault.

The club is looking for anyone with a genuine interest in teaching or assisting children to learn the fun, fitness and fundamentals of recreational gymnastics. This is a volunteer position but offers practical training in gymnastics and coaching techniques.

Travel Alberta recently filmed a 'drama' at Em-Tu Town. Sheriff Len Mohr and 'bad' Myles Main were locked in a gun fight, then sheriff Mohr had his hands full sorting out a card game which had got out of hand. A bunch of rowdy cowboys fresh from a cattle drive made a fast ride through the town 'whooping it up'.

A demure 'bride' (Irene), carrying a bouquet of wild flowers and her 'groom' (Greg Miller), in top hat and tails, drove through town in a buggy for the benefit of the cameras.

Sandi Watson held a successful barrel riding clinic for six to 15-year-olds in the Em-Tu corral. Another clinic may be held in August.

Producers can explore rates for custom harvester use

Producers planning to use custom harvesters this fall can explore the rates they'll likely be charged by using an Alberta Agriculture survey.

"The estimates for this year are based on our 1988 custom rate survey," says Garth Nickorick, a farm business economist in Oids.

Nickorick says he expects swathing rates to range between $4.50 and $6 per acre or from $35 to $45 per hour.

Combining rates in dryland areas he estimates will range between $12 and $15 per acre or from $70 to $130 per hour. The rate is slightly higher for harvesting crops on irrigated land at between $15 and $21 per acre.

Hauling grain within two miles adds another $2 to $3 per acre, or $25 to $35 per hour, to custom harvesting costs, he adds.

For more information about custom rates, or a copy of the survey, contact Nickorick at management branch in Oids the farm business at 556-4247.

Pressure canner could be a good investment

By Bev Brooks
District Home Economist

For those involved in preserving, a pressure canner is a good investment. Not only does it cut down the amount of time and energy used, but the safe canning of low acid foods such as vegetables, meats, poultry and fish requires a pressure canner.

A pressure canner processes food at higher temperatures because the steam pressure produced forces the boiling point of water up. At these temperatures, food poisoning bacteria are killed or neutralized.

The base or kettle contains the jars to be processed and water. It is covered with a tight-fitting lid that contains the controls. The controls include an open vent to let air and steam exhaust before processing time begins; it is closed with a weight or a separate valve. A safety valve or plug that will blow if the pressure builds up dangerously high, and a pressure indicator which could be a gauge or a weight.

The gauge monitors interior pressure. On models with a gauge there is a separate valve closing the vent tube. As steam pressure builds up, the gauge moves accordingly. On these models, pressure is adjusted by heat control. This means watching the gauge to see how many pounds of pressure has built up and adjusting the heat to maintain the pressure you want.

The weight maintains and regulates the pressure in the canner. The weight has different rings to indicate five, 10 or 15 pounds and it sits on top of the vent tube.

When steam builds up, it lifts the weight and that vents enough steam to maintain an even pressure. The weighted indicator starts rocking when the pressure has built up to the desired amount. This reminds you to start timing the processing.

There are advantages and disadvantages to both the gauge and the weight. The pressure canner must be able to pressurize reliably and distribute heat evenly through the foods being processed. Models with gauge or weight pressure indicators do this equally well.

Canners are usually made of cast aluminum, but some are stamped aluminum. The two types are equally sturdy. Consider the size of canning jar you use most often because small, less expensive models hold as many quarts.

as larger ones. Larger ones are an advantage if you use pints. Also, consider your strength. A loaded pressure canner weighs over 40 pounds.

Fish and Wildlife diagnose Obed Lake fish disease

Fisheries staff of the Alberta Fish and Wildlife Division have investigated the fish kill at Obed Lake and have diagnosed a fish disease called furunculosis.

Furunculosis is caused by a red-shaped bacterium (Aeromonas salmonicida) which is believed to enter a fish's body through external injuries, through the gills or through the digestive tract. In the blood stream the bacterium multiplies rapidly, at an optimum temperature range of 10-15 degrees Celsius. The bacteria are unable to develop at mammalian blood temperature.

Symptoms of furunculosis vary considerably with the stage of development and the age of fish infected. Bacteria collecting and multiplying in the body tissues result in local swellings that may eventually form open boil-like lesions. These often occur near the base of the dorsal or pelvic fins. The swellings or blisters may be the only external symptom of furunculosis; however, internal organs will usually indicate the first signs of infections as hemorrhaging is evident and blood-tinged fluid is present in the body cavity.

The bacteria in Obed Lake are believed to originate from the native fish species in the lake, such as stickleback, dace, and white suckers, although this is still being investigated. The extent and duration of the kill are dependent on a number of environmental conditions. Previous kills in Obed Lake have occurred in late June and early July. Also, previous kills indicate that few fish become infected as the lake continues to support an excellent sport fishery for brown trout ranging in size up to 4.5 kg.

Help!

The Eldorado School Parents Association is installing a new creative playground on August 25th and 26th. On these two days we need 20-25 volunteers to assist in the assembly and installation of this equipment.

If you as a parent or as a member of the community would be able to assist, please leave your name and phone number and what hours you would be available, at the Twin Rivers School Board Office, Telephone 542-4888.

HATS OFF TO OUR HEROS

Spencer Ross, captain of the Drayton Valley fire department, is full of praise for employers of volunteer firemen.

He says thanks is due to "the employers letting the firefighters go when there's a fire, because without them there wouldn't be a volunteer fire department, at least not in the daytime."

Ross, an electrician by trade, has been in the fire department for nine and a half years and routinely volunteers about 20 to 30 hours per month, not including the time spent going out on fire calls.

He says he gets a lot of satisfaction out of firefighting and the rewards are great "when you're trying to fight a fire for people and you save most of the building, and in accidents when you get the people out alive."

Tourism thriving industry

Alberta Tourism Minister Don Sparrow says his department officials are in direct contact with over 200 tourism entrepreneurs. Through the new Business Development Branch which is entering its second year of activity, Alberta Tourism is working one-on-one with private sector operators throughout the province.

"In addition to our highly-successful community tourism action program and team tourism marketing program, we are addressing the individual needs of tourism operators," says Sparrow. "We recognize that specialized business counselling is required by those operators not eligible under specific programs."

"Alberta entrepreneurs are coming forward with some exciting projects to strengthen Alberta's profile as a tourism destination. We have worked with a wide range of projects including family vacation resorts, ski areas, golf courses, campgrounds, steam trains, river boats, native cultural centres and guest ranches."

Sparrow emphasized that tourism, as Alberta's third largest industry, holds potential for spin-off economic benefits.

Faulty electronic insect killers being recalled

Melnor Manufacturing Ltd. is asking owners of Precision electronic insect killers, models BK15 and BK40 to return their units for repair.

It has been determined that under certain unusual conditions the plastic grid insulators on these units could ignite.

Melnor is asking that owners immediately take the unit out of service and return it to the place of purchase or return the unit collect to: Melnor Manufacturing Ltd., 80 Morton Ave. East, Brantford, Ont. N3T 5T3.

The insect killer will be repaired and returned. Repaired units will be identified by a brown adhesive label with the repair date. Future production units after Aug. 1, 1989 will have a revised construction and can be identified by their date code.

Granary placed on hopper bottom could cause possible bin failure

On-farm grain handling has been vastly improved by the advent of hopper bottoms for grain bins, but farmers have to make sure they add the innovation to their bins correctly.

"Placing steel granaries on hopper bottoms can cause bin failure if the proper details aren't followed," warns Dennis Darby, a structures engineer in Lethbridge.

The most frequently reported problem has been the collapse of the corrugated steel bin wall where it joins the hopper base. Most makes of grain bins have had at least a few of these failures, Darby adds.

The problem, when bins are placed on hoppers, is the stiffener bars might not rest on a solid support, as they do on a flat floor. "One bolt at the base is probably not adequate to prevent a collapse. Most manufacturers recommend welding a small steel bracket below each stiffener, unless the hopper ring is designed to provide positive bearing support for the steel stiffeners," says Darby.

The vertical stiffeners should rest on a solid support, not just rely on one small bolt. If in doubt, he says, check with the bin or hopper manufacturer for their recommendations.

Egg prices will drop

The price paid to producers for Grade A large eggs in August will decrease one cent per dozen in all provinces, says the Canadian Egg Marketing Agency (CEMA). The price decrease is due to a drop in the conversion rate. Not all eggs produced are large, therefore a conversion rate is built into the pricing system. The conversion rate is the difference in price between Grade A large eggs and the average price the farmer is paid for all eggs.

CEMA sets the producer price for Grade A large eggs at the beginning of each month using a cost of production formula.

Interest rates drop

Farm Credit Corporation recently announced a quarter of a percentage point reduction in its interest rates. This is the fourth reduction since May 12. Since then, rates have fallen a full percentage point for the shared risk mortgage (fluctuating interest rates). All other loans have declined three-quarters of a point since April. Lower funding costs are the primary reason for the reduction in rates.

We need high level resources to see life through

By Rev. Wes Herbert
DV United Church

What do you do when you get in a jam? Clam up? Bluff your way through? Cry for help? Or try to get down to the bottom of things and ask God for guidance.

This was Daniel's method. If anybody was ever in a jam, Daniel was that man. What did he do? He prayed. The Bible reads: "And his windows being open towards Jerusalem, he kneeled...three times a day, and prayed."

From the Pastor's Pen

We too, should keep our windows open toward God if we would have His power — no, not just to get us out of a jam, but to live the life victorious that Jesus tells us of.

What about our religion? Have you ever felt your religion was a burden to you? Keeping you from enjoying life? And that you would like to throw it overboard?

When we feel that way, it just means this: that we have a high set of ideals and little or no power to see them through. A high sense of duty with a low level of power. Now that's one sure way to be miserable. To have a high sense of duty and a low level of power.

The high ideals are good. All of us need to dedicate ourselves anew to the good and the best. But the low level of power — No! Inner resources of power, that's what we need, to see us through.

Ideals without motivating power are like automobiles without gasoline, like light fixtures without electricity. That's it. A high level of power — that's what we need. We need a high level of power to see life through and it comes only as we keep our windows open to God. Don't leave God out of the picture. Remember, He is sovereign ruler of this old universe. He is not only Creator but Sustainer as well.

We have tried to run our lives and the affairs of the world without His help, and it won't work. We must keep our windows open toward Him.

The old caretaker of John

Knox's house had a visitor linger at the famous preacher's little study, a room which juts out over the street. One window opened towards St. Giles Cathedral and the other toward Holyrood castle. The caretaker commented: "It is a very small room you see, but it has a great outlook."

Ours may be a small room. We may have few talents. Our needs can by many but, we too, can have a great outlook, when we open our windows to God in prayer.

Fox Run Sept. 17

Nine years ago, Terry Fox set out on his Marathon of Hope with a dream to raise enough money to find a cure for cancer.

On Sunday, Sept. 17 people right across Canada will continue Terry's dream by participating in, or donating to, the ninth annual Terry Fox Run.

Last year, the people of Alberta contributed more than $487,000, a wonderful testimony of their generosity and belief in the importance of cancer research.

With the proceeds from the Terry Fox Run, special research programs are funded, new researchers are recruited and dedicated scientists are able to devote themselves to the search for a cure for cancer.

Public support is an important contribution to the success of the Terry Fox Run and very much appreciated.

The high ideals are good. All of us need to dedicate ourselves anew to the good and the best. But the low level of power — No! Inner resources of power, that's what we need, to see us through.

You can diet and barbecue, too

We've all experienced it. It's summertime and barbecue fever hits the neighborhood.

You take a deep breath and the aroma of a barbecue sizzling on an open grill conjures up mouth-watering images of food.

The thought of a backyard barbecue with friends and family is enough to tempt even the most committed weight-conscious individual away from a diet plan. Without the proper care, excess weight that dieters have worked so hard to lose can be gained back fairly quickly.

Everyone can enjoy barbecued foods even if they need to lose weight. Limit the amount of butter on corn-on-the-cob and fat in barbecue sauces and pay attention to the number of potato chips you put on your plate.

Prepare as much food ahead of time, incorporating low-calorie ingredients and substitute natural fruit juices, ice-cold water, club soda and wine coolers for high-calorie soda and highly caloric alcoholic beverages. If it's hot outside, drink plenty of water and avoid alcoholic beverages which can cause dehydration.

If you're a guest, bring a tray of fresh vegetables or a watermelon as a gift for the host, ensuring a lower-calorie choice.

With some advance planning, you can enjoy grilling outdoors without feeling guilty. Grill at your will!

Drivers and passengers lucky

The drivers and passengers in these two pickup trucks were very lucky. Only minor injuries were experienced in the two-vehicle collision. According to police, one of the vehicles was proceeding east on 50 Avenue and the other was headed west and making a left turn into the Mohawk station at the corner of Highway 22 and 50 Avenue. The passenger in the westbound vehicle received minor injuries. Const. Allan Kaufmann said the incident is still under investigation and any decision with regard to charges hasn't been made.

Cabin hit for the third time

By Susan Mosicki

A recent break-in to a cabin and camper trailer in the Lindale area was the third one in the past three years, according to the owner's son, Rod Downey.

Downey, a paraplegic confined to a wheelchair since a truck accident in 1974, said the cabin is broken into every year, and although not much damage is done, it is inconvenient.

Damage, this year, included damage to the cabin door, broken windows in the cabin and camper and damage to flooring.

'Inconvenience is worst part'

Downey spends a good deal of time at the cabin, and takes care of it when his father is not there. He and his friend will be doing all the necessary repairs themselves.

"The worst part is the inconvenience, the aggravation of cleaning-up after, and the expense," he said.

"The floor is swelling from the weather coming in (after the window was broken), the rain and the wind."

Rod Downey points to footprints where vandals attempted to kick the door in. "There's nothing here to steal anyway," Downey said. "What's the sense of breaking in just to break in?" "Every time I turn around, it's $20 for a new lock." Breton RCMP are investigating the incident.

Vandals damage Alder Flats school

Police are anxious to identify the person or persons responsible for the damage done at Alder Flats school recently.

"It would appear that beer bottles were used to smash windows to the furnace room," said Const. Peter Clark of the Breton RCMP.

Clark said the damage was located by the County of Watakiwin constabulary.

More damage done to public property

By Sue Kenyon

Spray paint graffiti vandals were at it again over the long weekend.

This time, Frank Maddock high school, the landfill sign and welcome sign at the south entrance into town, were the victims.

Both Frank Maddock and the landfill sign were left with the message, "Grad 89, Bonnie, Clyde and me."

Const. Allan Kaufmann of the RCMP says police are definitely interested in who is doing the damage, and everyone should be.

"It should be a concern to everyone as it is taxpayers' money which pays for the damage," he says.

Secretary treasurer Bill Weber says the damage done to both HW Pickup junior high and Frank Maddock will easily pass the $1,000 mark.

"We haven't got a fixed cost on it, but we want to get it cleaned up. It all depends on whether we can just paint over it or if we have to sand blast," he said.

To date, the Radio Shack store has suffered the graffiti along with HW pickup, the Scout building by the pool and three others over the long weekend bring the total to six.

Council denies funding for River Ridge area

Chairman for the River Ridge area structure plan Ernest Stables met with MD Brasseau council last week to discuss the possibility of receiving municipal funding assistance for the plan.

It was recommended by council the request be denied because they felt planning and development of such projects should be at the developer's cost, and that the MD staff had put in a considerable amount of time and effort into the proposal to date.

"I know that we have spent at least a third more than we should have. I feel you're being a little over-cautious," Stables said.

"I can see your problem," Councillor Bob Booth told Stables. "I hope you can see our problem, too, in terms of setting a precedent."

"It is imperative we lay a firm, solid foundation to deal with everyone in a fair and equitable way."

Cost incurred by landowners in the River Ridge area structure plan has run over the $10,000 mark.

Winning new car may cause 'family dispute'

This week's key winner in the chamber/merchants association car give-away contest is Fern Gauthier and if she wins the car, there may be problems in the family.

Problems may arise between the Gauthier's two little girls, three-year-old Christine and Kimberly, 6.

It appears that if there is a new car to be had, Kimberly would like a big white car with air conditioning and Christine would like a purple one.

Fern says her husband Roy will want a Dodge, most likely, and probably not a car at all, but a pick-up. So there will be some decisions to be made.

Gauthier's name was drawn from the IGA and it is the second prize from the store she has won.

"This is the biggest prize I've every won but I did win a cushion from IGA once," she says.

Change in area means change in agriculture

By Paul Cudla

Elaine Ryl, the new district agriculturalist, is looking forward to her new job and the challenge it presents.

Ryl had been working in Manning as district agriculturalist for the last four and a half years, and says the change in areas presents a change in agricultural emphasis.

"In the Manning area we were looking at cereal and oil seed with quite a bit of emphasis on forage seed, whereas here it looks like livestock is quite a big industry," Ryl says.

"There's going to be a change where your production changes from crop to livestock," she adds.

Ryl graduated from the University of Alberta in 1977 with a BSc in agriculture majoring in animal science.

"Most of my time will be spent trying to meet as many people as I can."

Before working in Manning, Ryl worked with the Pembina Forage Association for six years.

"Their (Westlock's) major emphasis was on pasture and hay management," Ryl said, adding this would give her a good basis to work with Drayton Valley's agricultural needs.

As far as immediate plans go for the new DA Ryl says, "most of my time will be spent trying to meet as many people as I can."

Ryl said anyone who would like to stop by the DA's office to discuss projects and ideas is more than welcome.

The new district agriculturalist took over the position from Gerald Lathurist Aug. 3.

Mobile home regulation?

It was suggested in last week's MD council meeting that perhaps mobile home licensing regulations are required.

Bill Fleming, director of finance, said, "We need to look at our mobile home licensing. Maybe we'll make a recommendation to the province that we need some regulations."

Make your holiday a happy one

You're leaving for a fun-filled vacation at one of your favorite holiday get-away spots. You take the kids, the dog, enough food for an army; and only forget necessary things like can-openers and barbecue fuel...or securing your home properly.

Staff Sgt. Jim Humphrey of the Drayton Valley RCMP offers some valuable tips to make your holiday a happy one, from beginning to end.

"We recommend leaving a key with a close friend or neighbor and letting your neighbors know you will be gone so they can keep an unofficial eye on the place."

Leaving a light on is a good idea, according to Humphrey. "Possibly alternated by the keyholder."

The obvious, says Humphrey, is to secure the residence (lock windows, doors and outbuildings).

"You might have someone look after your yard, tend the grass. It gives the impression of activity there," he says.

Humphrey suggests taking advantage of the vacant premises check offered by the police. "If you're going away, file a report with our office and the members on late night patrol will check your premises as regularly as possible."

If you follow most of these procedures, you will certainly be able to go away with peace of mind and be able to do what vacations are really for — relax.

Staff Sgt. Jim Humphrey offers some valuable tips

Opinions

Chance in October to get involved in municipal election

Interest in this year's municipal election is expected to pick up.

The lack of a mayoralty race the last time around sparked little interest in the event.

But with Bob Mayhew already announcing he will be seeking re-election and Councillor Tom McGee saying he's giving the mayor's position serious thought, look for a race come October for the top spot.

Although McGee has only said he's seriously considering running for mayor, many people are taking that as a definite yes.

With the exception of Dave Lundberg who has already announced he won't be seeking re-election, look for all of the other present councillors to throw their hats in the ring. Veteran councillor Charlie Miner has already done that and the others will likely follow next month.

There's also been talk around the community that as many as four others may take out nomination papers for councillor.

The municipal election is an excellent opportunity for those who don't like what council has been doing to get involved.

One of the biggest issues the past couple of years has been the mill and the related environmental and health problems. Maybe some of those people will consider running for office.

All in all, it appears this year's municipal election will create quite a stir in Drayton Valley.

Migraine headaches

Round of golf may be just the right therapy

Doctors have been trying to find a remedy for migraine headaches for years.

I know that from experience.

After years of suffering, I think I have finally found a cure.

A round of golf does wonders. That's right, a simple game of golf.

I have found that by the third hole, most of my migraine headache is gone. Maybe because my frustrations have turned to that little white ball I'm trying to hit.

But whatever, I've found golfing to provide relief.

The only problem with that, is that our golfing season is too short. Maybe that might prompt me to take a winter vacation south where I can play a little golf.

Frankly Speaking

Golfing is also good therapy for those who have a lot of things on their mind.

It's worked for me and hopefully it will work for others with similar headaches.

Have you noticed the influx of $2 bills in the market since the introduction of the loonies?

The town has announced plans to renovate their 25-year-old public works building. Total cost of the renovation is expected to be about $75,000.

That seems like a lot of money to spend on a 25-year-old building.

Instead of spending that kind of money the town might consider a new building, based on the same design as their civic centre.

Inquiry planned into Grove school tax increase

By Rich Gossen
Spruce Grove Examiner
The city of Spruce Grove plans to ask the provincial government to hold an impartial inquiry into the issue of this year's local public school tax increase. Aldermen suggested at their meeting last month that Mayor George Cuff draft a letter to Premier Don Getty and Education Minister Jim Dinning informing them it's Spruce Grove's opinion that an impartial inquiry is the only means of properly addressing the issue.

County of Parkland board of education chairman Ken Fuhr told Cuff in a July 10 letter, their board is most anxious to have the actions of government clarified with respect to the impact on the county school system of the formation of Twin Rivers School Division No. 65.

The board recently passed a motion urging the provincial

Funding approved
In last week's meeting, MD councillors agreed to provide assistance with funding for kitchen upgrading in the Breton community centre.

A maximum of $15,000 was approved and Reeve Henry Rondeau said, "$4,170 has been approved through CRC."

Council agreed to provide an additional $10,830 to bring the total to $15,000.

government to support and participate in an independent review of the events and decisions which resulted in the separation of the Twin Rivers school division from the County of Parkland which precipitated the major tax increases for county public school supporters.

Fuhr wrote a letter to Premier Getty the same day indicating the taxpayers had to shoulder an unusually high tax increase but they also had their confidence in government, both at the local and provincial level, severely shaken.

The local citizens group that attempted to organize a rebellion in Spruce Grove and surrounding area in reaction to this year's public school tax increases is also supporting the call for an independent inquiry.

Turban and dagger-wearing very controversial

By Joe Clark
People and Art

A recent proposal that would allow Canadian Sikhs to wear turbans and ceremonial daggers while in the RCMP uniform has become a very controversial and emotional issue in Yellowhead.

The proposal was made by RCMP Commissioner Norman Inkster, who believes the courts might interpret the Charter of Rights and Freedoms in such a way that would require the RCMP to make such a change in the uniform. The proposal is being considered by Pierre Blais, Solicitor General of Canada.

Section 15(1) of the Charter of Rights forbids discrimination based on religion. Because the Sikh religion requires they wear turbans and daggers, some RCMP lawyers believe the force's present dress requirements could be interpreted as religious discrimination against Sikhs, who, as Canadians, should enjoy the same rights as others to practice their religion.

If the proposal to allow Sikhs to wear turbans and ceremonial daggers is approved, it will not treat an entirely new situation in Canada. Sikhs are permitted to wear turbans and daggers in the police forces of Edmonton and Toronto, as well as in the Canadian Armed Forces, except for reasons of operational effectiveness (such as situations where helmets are required).

Commissioner Inkster's proposal requires the turbans be designed by the RCMP and they be of the same color as its regular cloth caps. The proposal also states the daggers be small ceremonial replicas, concealed from sight in the uniform.

This issue has worried people concerned with the tradition and historical importance of the RCMP uniform, and there has been widespread reaction to the proposal in Yellowhead and throughout Western Canada, where the RCMP and the North West Mounted Police before it have played such a prominent role in our history.

The number of letters and petitions I have received on this issue indicates its importance, and it has become very emotional, as it raises questions of the rights of Canadian Sikhs to practice their religion and of the traditions of the RCMP uniform.

The government understands the significance of this issue, and we are giving careful consideration to Commissioner Inkster's proposal before making a decision.

'We try to correct bad habits'

Boxing camp stresses basics

By Paul Cudla

Lawrence Duperron is stressing the basics at his boxing camp in Drayton Valley running from Aug. 7-19.

"With all the beginners in the camp, they start to pick up some bad habits that we try to correct," Duperron said.

Duperron, who has been working with youngsters in boxing for about 31 years, says he is pleased with the camp this year.

"The camp is going just beautifully. To me the kids are learning a lot, we're working good sessions, everybody is learning."

The boxing camp has put an emphasis on conditioning as it has been extended one week.

The daily routine for the boxers include a three-mile run at 6 a.m. followed by about eight hours of workouts in the gym.

"What we like to do is train for a good left hand first and then a good right and then work on combinations; we stress a good left jab."

Raul Munoz, a 17-year-old from Lloydminster, was attending his first boxing camp and said he had learned more than just boxing techniques at the camp.

"I've learned lots of discipline. Getting up in the morning and dedicating yourself," Munoz said.

Technique-wise, Munoz said he had learned "about defense and how to set up combinations."

Munoz will be going to the Canadian Nationals in boxing for the second time this year and hopes to eventually make the Olympic team.

Shane Teeter, 19, from Drayton Valley, has been out of boxing for four years and was using the camp as a way of getting back into the sport.

"I'm getting into good shape. I'm learning how to use my hooks, uppercuts and I'm learning respect — lots of respect," Teeter said.

The boxing camp is the second one in Drayton Valley, and is taking place at the Derrick Boxing Club. The camp is being sponsored by Alberta Sport Council.

'Lust for speed' taken to the racing circuit

By Paul Cudla

In street-car racing, Linda Bennett portrays what she calls the 'sleeper' image.

"It's a sleeper car, it looks really slow, but it's a quick car," Bennett says in reference to her 360 cc, 1976 Plymouth Duster.

"We even have a trailer hitch on it for the full sleeper effect."

Bennett, 31, has been street-car racing for five years in total but has resumed this year after spending nine years away from the track.

Was she concerned about the effect of a long layoff on her driving ability?

"Well I was worried because I'm a lot older and slower than I used to be."

Bennett has done surprisingly well in her first year back in competitive racing. She has two semi-final finishes to show for her efforts and sits amongst the top five in the overall points standings at Race-City Speedway in Calgary.

In 1979 Bennett finished eighth overall in the province and earned a trip to the National Hot Rod Association (NHRA) finals in Seattle.

So how does a nice girl from Calgary get involved in the male-dominated sport of car racing?

Thirteen years ago, after compiling three stunting violations in her '73 Duster at age 18, she decided to take her lust for speed to the track.

"My friend said 'because your car is so fast why not bring it to the track?' and I did and I never looked back."

"I like going fast and I'd rather keep it on the track than on the street."

One aspect of street-car racing which is different from when Bennett last raced is the dawn of reaction time.

Reaction time is the measuring of a driver's reaction to the green light at the start-line.

"I'm really worried about reaction time. It's one more thing to worry about."

Along with worrying about reaction time, Bennett has dealt with three mechanical failures that have put her car out of races.

"If you want to know the meaning of frustration that is it." So as Bennett hurries herself heading back into racing she looks to building up the basically stock engine in her Duster, and sharpening her racing ability.

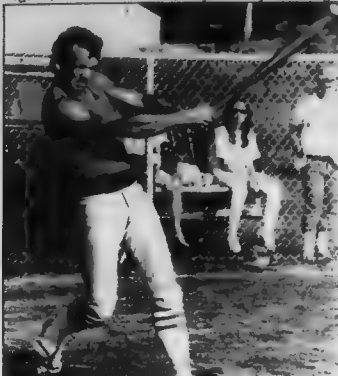

"I think by next year I'll be as good as I used to be. This year there are too many variables — getting back into practise, and the new car."

Bennett at the starting line...trailer hitch in tow.

Bennett takes time out to pose in front of her '76 Duster.

Pat Rehn, Wildwood, cracks a good one at the slow-pitch tourney.

Grin Reapers win C division

The Grin Reapers, a local slow-pitch team, was grinning from ear-to-ear after their C division victory recently in Drayton Valley.

Gemini Services of Edson won the A division, and the Rehneers, from various areas, won the B division title.

Thirty-two teams competed in the weekend event sponsored by Labbatt's and organized by Tim and Peggy Mitchell and Last Chance ball club.

Tim Mitchell said the tournament was a great success with 15 out-of-town teams and 17 from Drayton Valley and surrounding area competing to win the division titles and cash prizes.

Triathlon is a fitness program

Ironmen/women of Oiltown are training in preparation for the fourth annual triathlon Sept. 16.

So you think you're the next Ed Allen? You think you're not Ed Allen and you're tired of being a couch potato?

Then the Oiltown Triathlon may be just what you need.

"It is a fitness promotion," Debbie Brigley who is organizing the event, says.

"I think the fitness level in Drayton Valley is great," she adds.

The triathlon is being split into individual and team categories.

Men's and women's triathletes will be partaking in a one-kilometre swim, 10-kilometre cycle, and a five-kilometre run.

Teams of men, women and mixed will compete in the same distance whereas junior teams (12 and under) and family teams will do a half-kilometre swim, five-kilometre cycle, and two-kilometre run.

Registration deadline for the triathlon is Sept. 14 at noon. Brigley said teams who need swimmers, runners or cyclists to fill out their team can contact the pool for help.

Cubs do it again

The Stony Plain Cubs became the first team in Alberta midget baseball to repeat as provincial champions.

The Cubs midget team, ages 16, 17 and 18, won the provincial championship tournament with a 7-6 extra inning win over Fort Saskatchewan. Stony Plain hosted the tournament which ran from Aug. 4-8.

"Any one of the teams could have won it. On any given day anyone can beat anyone," Vern Bartlett, assistant coach of the Cubs, said.

A testament to the parity between the five competing teams is the fact all five ended with records of two wins and two losses after the round-robin tournament.

A runs for and against tie-breaking rule then came into effect to sort out the logjam and it was deciphered that Fort Saskatchewan had finished first and Stony Plain second.

That set-up the final game between Stony Plain and Fort Saskatchewan on Sunday. Stony Plain had to come from behind in the final after Fort Saskatchewan scored a run in the top of the eighth inning for a 6-5 lead. The Cubs rebounded with two runs in the bottom half of the eighth for the 7-6 provincial championship win.

Stony Plain also came back from an early 4-0 deficit as they scored four runs in the bottom of the third inning to tie it up.

Trevor Federus drove home the winning run. Jerry Bartlett hit a two-run homer earlier in the game. Kevin Bergquist pitched six innings in relief.

"Pitching was the key; it kept us in every ballgame and the hitting came through when we needed it," Bartlett said.

In the preliminary round-robin, Stony Plain won its first game 19-6 over Edmonton. Boyd Ginther and Kevin Dusterhoft shared pitching duties.

In game two, Cory Dusterhoft pitched a complete game and got the victory 3-2 over Fort Saskatchewan.

Games three and four turned out to be losses to Stettler 11-7, and Sherwood Park 9-1.

Prairie regionals

By winning the provincials, the Cubs qualified for the Prairie Regionals in Fort Saskatchewan on the weekend.

Stony Plain swept through the round robin undefeated at three wins and no losses, but ended up finishing second after dropping two final games in a row to Team Saskatchewan.

In the round-robin the Cubs beat Fort Saskatchewan 9-5, Saskatchewan 3-2, and Manitoba 9-3. Stony Plain went on to meet Saskatchewan in the final.

Drayton Valley Stony Plain Cubs, left to right: Kevin Bergquist, Cory Dusterhoft, Jerry Bartlett, Joe Hutzal, Trevor Federus, Keven Dusterhoft and Chris Hutchinson. Missing: Jason Kipling.

Because the Cubs were undefeated in the opening round, Saskatchewan had to beat them twice to win the title.

Unfortunately that's exactly what happened.

Saskatchewan beat Stony Plain twice in a row on Sunday, 9-4 in the morning and 7-2 in the afternoon.

On the year the Stony Plain Cubs finished with a record of 38 wins, one tie and eight losses.

Premier Getty releases comprehensive response

Premier Don Getty recently released a comprehensive response to the report of Inspector W.E. Code into the failure of First Investors Corporation (FIC) and Associated Investors of Canada (AIC).

The premier announced a settlement offer to contract holders in the two companies and the repeal of the Investment Contracts Act. He also outlines a series of legislative actions for a fair financial marketplace in Alberta.

Two years ago, the Alberta government joined in a request for the court-ordered investigation because it was committed to a full disclosure of how and why the companies failed.

Getty announced Alberta will provide a settlement offer to all investors in FIC and AIC of 18 and 15 cents on the dollar respectively. Provincial Treasurer Dick Johnston explained that, including other distributions of funds they have or should receive, investors can now expect a total return of 75 cents on the dollar, representing principal, interest and credits to June 30, 1987.

"This offer is fair and final," Getty said. "Mr. Code found the people who controlled the companies were responsible for their financial difficulties. The government cannot offer more. We have a clear responsibility to the Alberta taxpayer."

"Alberta is making this settlement to all investment contract holders, however, this settlement offer does not extend to noteholders in the Principal Group Ltd. Mr. Code provided no new information to change the government's position on that matter."

The total cost of the government settlement offer to contract holders will be up to $85 million.

Sustainable development has been making headlines around the world as people and governments begin to take stock of the planet's resources and balancing the needs of the human population and economic progress with pressure on fundamental water, soil, air, wildlife and other resources.

Sustainable development is most simply defined as development that meets the needs of the present without compromising the needs of the future. Soil and water conservation top the list in maintaining a viable agriculture industry.

Soil conservation advocate Senator Herb Sparrow told delegates at the recent 44th annual meeting of the Soil and Water Conservation Society in Edmonton, that soil degradation is the most serious issue in agriculture, ahead of the economic problems currently plaguing the industry.

"If we don't stop soil degradation in the next 40 years, then we will lose the agriculture industry," he says.

He says more research dollars need to be put into halting soil degradation. More funding has been devoted to soil conservation in the last five years, he says, but still more is needed. The Alberta and federal governments have recently signed a $34.8 million soil conservation initiative.

Couples ask for 'silly photos'

Fashions change year by year but it seems when it comes to wedding fashions, they stay pretty well the same.

The only real difference when it comes to photography, according to Bruce McKittrick of Big Guy Photography, is couples are asking for "silly photos."

"The bride and groom will always get the traditional photos but they are now also requesting the silly shots, like the groom baring one leg wearing the garter belt, or the couple playing leap frog," he says.

As far as the amount of business they have done, it appears to have increased steadily over the last two years.

"Whether it is the fact there are more weddings or we are getting more requests is hard to say," he says.

Dorothy Rendflesh, owner of Mar Nel Fashions, says she wouldn't really be able to estimate whether there are more weddings in Drayton, as many go out of town for bridal gowns.

"We have quite a business with mother-of-the-bride gowns but as far as wedding gowns, I think a lot of people go to the city," she says.

The store also services bridesmaids and Rendflesh says the only change in fashion came two years ago and remains with us.

"A couple of years ago, the mid-calf length in bridesmaids gowns came in and it has remained," she says.

As for mother-of-the-bride gowns, she says they are becoming more dressy.

"They are very elegant and very dressy and most of the length requests we get are for dresses below the knee but not as long as the bridesmaids dresses," she says.

According to Rendflesh, usually the mother-of-the-bride's gown is two inches shorter than the bridesmaids dresses.

Colors have remained constant, in the bridesmaids dress. Rendflesh says in the spring it is pastels and in the summer and fall the deeper colors are requested.

Pesticides are not always necessary

Pesticides are useful, but not always necessary, for controlling insect problems around yards says an Alberta Agriculture horticulturist.

"There are some very simple ways to deal with insects that can be effective ways of ridding the problem from your trees and plants. Picking off the insects by hand, strong jets of water and soap and water can control problems," says Pam North, information officer at the Alberta Tree Nursery and Horticultural Centre.

"One of the easiest ways to control insect pests is to hand-pick them. Of course, this is easiest when the insects are large such as caterpillars or slugs. It's also only practical when there are small numbers of insects to deal with," she says.

If insects are small, for example aphids or mites, then a strong stream of water from a hose will wash them off. "Plants that are susceptible to spider mites — spruce, cedar, and junipers — should be sprayed with water once a week to deter the mites," she adds.

A safe and effective insecticide can be made by adding 100 mL (one tablespoon) of liquid soap to a litre (quart) of water. A pure soap should be used, not a detergent. Concentrated insecticidal soap is also effective. It's available at greenhouses and garden centres.

"Soap solutions are particularly effective on aphids, spider mites and pear slugs," says North.

Many of the same methods used on trees will also work in the garden. If numbers are low, hand-pick slugs and Colorado potato beetles.

Soapy water can also be used to control insects. "Just make pure produce is washed off well with clear water before it is used or eaten," adds North.

Weeds will often attract insects, so keeping them hoed down is a good control. A new non-pesticide control product on the market protects garden rows after they are planted. The reemay row cloth, or garden blanket, is a lightweight cloth used to cover plants after they are transplanted or to cover rows after seeding.

Leave bark-covered logs behind

Alberta is free from Dutch elm disease, but the devastating fungus is moving closer to our borders each season. It could be introduced here at any time in diseased insect-infected firewood.

"For safety's sake, campers should leave all bark covered logs behind them when returning from any province east of Alberta or from anywhere in the United States," says Jim-Holley, an Alberta Agriculture plant pathologist.

There are signs along major routes into the province that make people aware of our firewood quarantine policy, he says. Canadian-American border crossings are posted as well, he adds.

Dutch elm disease is a very virulent wilt disease that causes American and Siberian elm trees to die back completely in three to five years. It has already destroyed all native elm stands east of Winnipeg. Now the disease is killing trees in eastern Saskatchewan and in northern Montana, says Holley.

Dutch elm disease is caused by the fungus, Ceratocystis ulmi, and is spread by native and European elm bark beetles. Beetles living under the bark of diseased logs fly to healthy surrounding trees, bore underneath the bark, hollow out galleries and deposit fungal spores in healthy wood as they feed. The fungus grows into the water conducting system of the trees and eventually plugs it. Without water from the roots, leaves on affected limbs turn yellow, wilt and fall off.

Usually one or two limbs near the top of the tree show symptoms initially. Symptoms start to become visible in early to mid-July. As beetles move downward to feed on the main trunk, more and more branches are affected.

Healthy trees can be sprayed with systemic insecticides to protect them from feeding beetles.

Spraying with insecticides, however, not only is costly but is controversial in densely populated city neighborhoods where most elms are planted. "In this instance, the best solution really is prevention," he says.

Chances of keeping this disease out of Alberta are good, he says. Treeless areas in southern Alberta should act as a buffer to the spread of the disease from affected regions. "Transmission from beetle infested firewood, however, still is our major concern," says Holley.

Many Alberta cities and towns literally have thousands of elms planted in boulevards and parks. These stands are impressive and stately, and would take 30 to 50 years to regenerate, he says.

For further information about Dutch elm disease, contact Holley at the Alberta Special Crops and Horticultural Research Center in Brooks at 362-3391.

Compound interest

More begets more

By David Glass, CA

The difference between a comfortable old age and a hardscrabble one can be summed up in two words: compound interest.

Letting interest sit in a long-term savings plan to gain ever more interest is compound interest. Since more begets more, the compounding effect can be astounding at the end of the savings term.

The earlier you start, the greater the reward.

Take the basic example of a 25-year-old who puts aside $100 a month in a savings vehicle carrying a 10 per cent rate of interest. Leaving that $1,200 a year and the interest to compound over 40 years would give him a $584,000 nest-egg at age 65.

That's a 1,200-per-cent increase on the $48,000 he invested over four decades.

If, however, he waited until age 35, his $100 monthly would amount to $358,000 at 65 — or $226,000 less than if he had started 10 years earlier.

Every silver lining is threatened by a cloud. In the miracle of compound interest, that raincloud is the hovering taxman.

The trick is to shelter your savings in an investment which attracts no taxes. This could be an RRSP or your own home which is tax-free when you sell. Or you can put the money into stocks or real estate which attract taxes on the gain in value only on being sold.

Since old age is you and me and everybody — in time — the prudent start saving early. Then the 'golden years' will truly be that.

STARS gets generous donation

The Shock Trauma Air Rescue Society (STARS) recently received $50,000 from a major oil and gas company for interim financial support to operate the emergency air ambulance service. The air service transports critically-injured patients by helicopter from rural communities to Calgary hospitals.

The use of the STARS helicopter for emergency services is a highly effective but expensive method of transport but the provincial government pays for only part of it. STARS is responsible for raising the additional $1 million per year needed to maintain 24-hour standby service.

Over the past three years STARS has received contributions and support from major oil and natural gas companies and municipal and individual donors. Without long-term funding however, STARS is fighting for its survival and the service is in jeopardy. A proposal for permanent funding is presently under review by the Department of Health.

Since 1985, STARS' crews of pilots, volunteer paramedics and medical specialists have flown nearly 800 rescue missions. Time is a major factor in the survival of critically-ill patients and STARS has frequently made the difference in saving a life.

Uniform to support request for appeal

Uniform president Ralph Jespersen has pledged his organization's support for the Alberta Cattle Commission's request the provincial government appeal a recent court decision on access to Crown grazing leases.

The provincial court decision which effectively gives unlimited access to Crown grazing leases means leaseholders will have no legal right to control access or what people do on the leases. If damage is done to the grass by the public or if cattle are harmed in any way, the leaseholder will have to appeal to the civil courts for redress. At the same time the leaseholder could still be held liable for any mishap that occurs to members of the public while they are on the lease.

Jespersen says the decision holds serious implications for surface rights agreements which up to now have been negotiated with the leaseholder.

He also expressed concerns over the decision's potential for violent confrontations during the upcoming hunting season. Most hunters are courteous and considerate, he says, but those few who trespass without hesitation in the past might become quite belligerent as a result of the decision which puts the law on their side.

As custodians of the property under lease, Jespersen insists leasees should have the right to control what is an integral part of their production units. "Unlimited access means they will be unable to guard against environmental damage or harm to their cattle."

Not just any silkworm...

Brothers Ryan (left), 6, and Wayne Meronowich, 13, made an unusual discovery in their back yard last week. The boys found an uncommon giant silkworm moth called antheraea polyphemus, which will turn into a large, multi-colored butterfly with a wing span of 125 mm. District Agriculturist Elaine Ryt says because the moth is fairly rare, anyone who finds one might want to keep it rather than destroy it.

What exactly is 'natural' beef?

Confusion surrounds the term 'natural' when applied to food products and particularly to beef, says Alberta Agriculture's provincial foods and nutrition specialist.

Consumer and Corporate Affairs Canada says the claim "natural" is synonymous with the claim "contains no food additive, added nutrients, flavoring agents, incidental additives or contaminants and has not been further processed", says Aileen Whitmore. "Based on this definition, the question becomes 'Isn't all beef natural?'"

"Whether or not there is any justification, some consumers regard foods described as natural of greater worth. In the case of beef, and using Consumer and Corporate Affairs' guidelines, all beef could be described as natural," she says.

Some advertising of "natural" beef suggests a "back to nature" approach is used in raising that beef product. It outlines that cattle are nurtured on fresh water from natural water sources, untouched prairie pasture and natural feed, says Whitmore. "In fact, all fresh water is from natural sources," she says.

"While 'untouched prairie pastures' may arouse emotional feelings in the consumer, pasture alone very rarely provides sufficient feed to finish cattle. With respect to natural feed, all grain fed cattle are receiving natural feed," she adds.

Advertising literature for natural beef also says it has no artificial additives, preservatives, chemicals, growth accelerators or antibiotics used at any time. "The simple fact is that all beef is free of artificial additives, preservatives and chemicals."

New RCMP inspector in Stony

By Phil Melnychuk

Stony Plain Reporter

It's a long way from running the RCMP's commercial crimes section in Calgary to taking charge of the Stony Plain subdivision.

But Inspector Klaus Gerhardt, 48, thinks he'll enjoy the change.

After five years in Calgary, Gerhardt takes over from George Rechner who retired last month.

"From what I've seen of Stony Plain...it's a very nice area. I think I'm really going to enjoy this post," he says.

Although he will be working out of Stony Plain, the new inspector will have more on his mind.

As commanding officer he'll be in charge of detachments in Spruce Grove, Stony Plain, Devon, Leduc, Thorby, Breton and Drayton Valley.

Gerhardt's job will be to ensure the policies, directives and ethics of the force are followed throughout the subdivision.

He has been with the RCMP for 29 years.

Tremendous Beaver support

Breton News

By Shelli Carson

Breton and district residents have shown tremendous support for their championship Beaver A baseball team. When the boys returned after winning the provincial championship in Ardrossan July 30, they found a huge sign of congratulations posted and covered with the signatures of their supporters.

Donations ranging from pre-game gum to financial support have been offered, and the good wishes and support the team received were, according to Beaver parents and coaches — phenomenal.

If your mountain bike has cantilever brakes - it's hazardous Mountain bikes equipped with cantilever brakes are potentially hazardous, the product safety branch of Consumer and Corporate Affairs Canada warns customers.

Cantilever brakes are a new system of brakes found on most mountain bikes in which each of two cables, one on either side of the tire, activates a brake pad through an arm connected to the fork of the bike. The two cables join into one main cable above the tire. Together the cables form an inverted 'Y' above the tire. The rider activates the main cable through a brake lever located on the handlebars.

The danger occurs if the two cables operating the front brakes shake loose from the main cable and catch the knobby tires used on these bikes. This could result in the bike stopping suddenly and its rider being hurled over the handlebars, risking serious injury.

Racing bikes, on the other hand, are equipped with sidepull brakes. The hazard associated with cantilever brakes does not exist with these brakes. A failure of the single vertical cable which activates the sidepull brake pad calipers will not jam the wheel.

Some Canadian bicycle manufacturers, in consultation with Consumer and Corporate Affairs Canada, have agreed voluntarily to add a special restraining device to the front of mountain bike frames to prevent the brake cables jamming the wheels. The device could include a reflector at its front end.

In the meantime, mountain bike owners are advised to take their bikes to a bicycle shop where this device can be installed. The cost is only a few dollars and will ensure safer riding for mountain bikers.

For more information, contact the nearest office of Consumer and Corporate Affairs Canada.

How much is your car costing?

You've put a 20 per cent down payment on a jaunty little sportscar, and the monthly payments are just within your budget.

But do you know how much your car is really costing you this year? The Alberta Motor Association's new Car Costs brochure helps motorists determine the cost of operating your car.

The test vehicle used as an example is a 1989 Dodge Shadow, with a number of options, being driven about 24,000 km per year. Included in AMA's Car Costs brochure is a breakdown of "variable costs," including gasoline, maintenance and oil, and tires; and "fixed costs," including depreciation, insurance and financing expenses.

The bottom line? For the test vehicle, 21 cents per kilometre (34 cents per mile). For your vehicle? Use the brochure's easy guide to complete the calculations.

Maintenance and oil costs vary from car to car. If you've just bought a new car, and you're lucky, you will probably find maintenance costs may not exceed the cost of the maintenance program required by your car manufacturer to keep your warranty valid. And it's a good idea to follow the maintenance schedule outlined by your car manufacturer; it could save you money later on in your car's life.

Depreciation is the difference between the vehicle purchase price and the amount of money you get when you trade in your car or sell it. Generally, depreciation is considered a "fixed cost," but vehicles accumulating excessive mileage must be assigned additional depreciation because of the lower resale value.

Artichokes ease manure odor

Additives and artichokes have recently been advocated as solutions to controlling odor from swine operations.

Despite the claims on behalf of these solutions, Brian West, Alberta Agriculture's provincial waste management specialist, says there really haven't been any new breakthroughs in manure management. For example, success with manure additives have been mixed. Enzymes or bacteria are put into the manure to reduce its odors.

"People who have tried it, either swear by it or say it doesn't work. Alberta Agriculture is currently involved in a study looking at the effects of manure additives on 13 odorous compounds found in manure," he says.

As well as evaluating the effectiveness of manure additives, the study may provide some insight into measuring odor. One of the study partners, the Alberta Environmental Centre in Vegreville, has developed interesting analytical techniques, West says.

"The major problem, at present, is in measuring the results of odor control. Most results we get now are testimonials by users which are easily biased by the human nose," he says.

The technology to deal with odor control is still developing, says West. Some concepts are still not economical, not practical or not applicable to Alberta's climate. These include fully aerated storage, anaerobic treatment, ventilation exhaust chimneys, pre-storage aeration and composting.

For example, exhaust chimneys — common industrial development — in a piggery, would have to be at least 50 feet high to be effective. That would require major changes to building and ventilation design.

Some of the suggested technologies are workable now, he says. Solid-liquid separation does make manure handling easier. Building landscape or vegetation buffers can remove the operation from sight and work the way of the old adage. "The visual part of the nuisance is very real," he stresses.

Manure management requires proper facility design, an adequate separation distance between confined animals and neighbors, frequent manure removal, manure-tight storage, sufficient land for using the manure and rapid soil cover of manure once it's been spread.

Siting and storage are the two major considerations in minimizing odor. Alberta Agriculture has developed a minimum distance formula. These guidelines can be a starting point for choosing a site, he says.

Beaver control ongoing process, says fieldman

Ag fieldman Barb Shackel said the MD beaver control program has had good results this year.

"It has been a bit busier this month because people are haying and with the rain, the beavers have been plugging culverts," she said.

"It's an ongoing process. They keep migrating and you can't keep them out of one spot for a long period of time."

"Most people are trying to control them themselves and keep damage to a minimum," she said.

September expenses can put damper on end of summer

With those long, lazy days of summer here at last it can be very hard to remember that September will soon come around again. Unfortunately, unless we plan well ahead for those back-to-school expenses, September will be hard on our family finances too.

School fees

These are the fees charged by most schools at the beginning of the year for course materials, textbook rentals and so on.

The amounts you will have to pay depend on the ages of your children and the courses and options they take.

Fees start at around $25-$40 for elementary school children, while fees for a student in senior high could cost $100 or more. Add to this the charges for any extra services that might be necessary.

School supplies

These are the materials a student will need for the year and include pens, writing paper, pencil crayons, dotangs, calculators, binders and math instruments. If you don't have a list of required supplies from the school you should make one yourself and include only the essential items.

Check your child's school bag for any of this year's supplies which could be used again. Then compare the advertised sale prices before heading out to the stores.

For greatest value, avoid 'trendy' items. Children can personalize their binders with stickers, cutouts, decals or their own art work.

Fall and winter clothes

Now is the time to check your children's clothes close for outgrown clothes and possible hand-me-downs.

Consider exchanging outgrown clothing with other families in your area. Then make a list of clothes your children will need for the coming school year. Despite the pressure put on us by advertisers at this time of year, we do not need to buy these all at once!

If your child needs a new winter coat or jacket, compare prices carefully. You may get better value later in the season. Second-hand stores often stock good used children's clothing at bargain prices.

A fixed chamber baler better than expanding chamber?

"At this time of year we get a lot of questions about the advantages and disadvantages of hard and soft core big round bales," says Doug May, Project Engineer in charge of round baler testing at the Prairie Agricultural Machinery Institute (PAMI) in Portage la Prairie, Manitoba.

"Many hay producers and manufacturers claim that a fixed chamber baler is better because the soft core bales will dry somewhat during storage in the low density core of the bale. Others claim that the expanding chamber baler is better because the hard core bales produced will settle less during storage and will be easier to handle in the late winter or spring. Both of these aspects are very important to someone looking for a new baler."

"So far," May says, "we haven't found any research to justify either claim." As part of their regular evaluation of round balers, PAMI measures bale settlement 100 days after baling. Over the past four years, PAMI has evaluated four expanding chamber balers and five fixed chamber balers. "We weren't able to detect any significant difference in sag between hard and soft core bales." Literature searches by PAMI did not turn up any research to indicate that soft core bales dry more than hard core bales during storage.

There are other requirements for the expanding chamber balers only ranged from 22 to 31 hp (16 to 23 kW), while the fixed considerations when choosing a baler," says May, "such as power requirements and leaf loss. Power chamber balers ranged from 41 to 74 hp (31 to 55 kW).

Leaf losses ranged from 1.8 to 4.1 per cent for expanding chamber balers and from 3.2 to 8.0 per cent for fixed chamber balers."

Forestry Foreword

By Dale Darrah
Forester in charge of Timber Management

Timber management

Imagine being sent to a Third World country to assist in establishing a local forest industry and utilize a hither-to undeveloped forest resource. Where should a person begin?

Since everything will be based on the forest, that's probably the first place to look. Answers are needed for some very basic questions:

- What tree species are out there?
- How much volume is there?
- Where are the biggest and oldest trees growing?
- How much is the forest growing each year?
- What conditions are the trees in? Healthy, sound, decaying, attacked by disease or insects, dying?

Inventory

To answer these questions, a massive ground survey could be mounted to visit all parts of the forest to measure and record necessary data. This would be very expensive and time consuming. With money and time at a minimum what can be done?

One solution would be to fly over the entire forest by airplane and use a camera to photograph the area below. The photos could be strung together to give a complete picture and enable detailed mapping and evaluation of the timber.

This requires experience and expertise and within two to three years the area is photographed, maps drawn, the forest is drawn into sub groups, and measurement plots are established to provide a feasibility plan.

Planning

Assuming the forest will be managed forever more trees must be planted than harvested.

Fortunately the gathered information provides the total growth of the forest each year and an annual allowable cut can be made.

Another problem is that the forest is just too big to handle. It is divided by a mountain range and several large rivers with no roads or bridges.

To answer this, divide the forest into several smaller units, called management units, and put someone in charge of each one. Each unit is small enough to manage as a unit by the staff assigned. So far so good!

And now, here comes the multi-national timber and pulp companies attracted to the available fibre supply, all eager to get a piece of the action. Great!

But there are several of them. Where do you put them?

Meet with them together and individually and after several rounds of tough negotiating and bargaining, assign logging areas to each company and they're all in agreement!

Formal contracts are drawn up and signed. The companies agree to log by the rules set for timber species, size, age, condition, as well as protection of the environment. Marvellous!

The adopted country sees jobs, development and economic prosperity for its citizens. The forest manager may get a medal or a raise!

Operations

The companies just can't go out and cut the trees closest to the mill. They should cut the oldest ones first, since if they don't and wait, the old timber may die or be destroyed before it's cut.

So make the companies submit plans each year showing the oldest timber being cut, where the roads and cut blocks will be, and how the company plans to protect the environment—streambeds, steep hill, game consideration...etc.

You like what they submit and give them approval to start logging, which they immediately do. Being a suspicious person, however,

Utilizing an undeveloped forest

Feller buncher, Swedish felling machine developed to utilize small-diameter timber.

you check on them to see if they are doing what they said they'd do.

Most of the time they do—sometimes they don't and you have to slap your arms and jump up and down so they listen! Thankfully they do and you can relax for a while.

Revenue

So far, everything you've done has cost your government money. The airplane, the photos, all your assistants, the wining and dining of all those corporate big wheels.

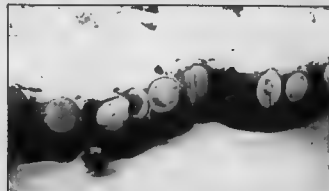

But now comes the payoff. As each company cuts trees, hauls them to their mills for processing, and sells the finished product, they have to pay taxes. You charge them for every tree they bring in, a royalty payable to the government. The companies must measure the volume of wood and calculate the amount they owe you.

Again, being suspicious, you have somebody assigned to check their numbers with a VERY large magnifying glass. They wouldn't short you, surely, but it never hurts to be vigilant!

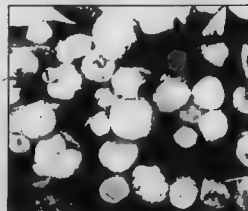

By now everyone is REALLY happy! The peasants have jobs and are buying color TV sets, the companies are making big profits, and government has all that lovely income tax and royalty pouring in to pay for border disputes, palaces for the prime minister, etc.

Inventory maintenance

By now you are a hero! Sure it has taken 10-20 years to do, but by God it's working! All you have to do now is update your maps,

A winter stream crossing constructed of aspen logs.

Decked timber ready to be hauled to a mill.

keep account of the amount of timber being cut, keep accurate records, and every 20 years or so re-photograph your forest to see how much it has changed due to logging, fires, re-growth, etc. Your assistants and specialists are re-planting the blocks and keeping a wary eye on your now priceless forest to protect it from fire, insects or disease.

You head for the beach for a little R and R and a lot of tall, cool ones. You have it made!

Except somewhere, a long way away, a coalition of concerned citizens has discovered the intrepid three-toed gibbon needs the shade of your trees for mating.

You are in league with the nefarious multi-nationals in destroying the last pristine sanctuary of these precious organisms! All logging must cease!

You suddenly find you have an interesting new career in public affairs.

Oh well! No one ever said it

Darrah is the Timber Management Forester for the Alberta Forest Service in Whitecourt. He disclaims any resemblance between the Third World country in this article and his native Alberta. Similarities are coincidental.

The timber management process is, however, the same.

AADAC introduces Payoff!

The Alberta Alcohol and Drug Abuse Commission (AADAC) is introducing Payoff! to the business community to support the workplace in its efforts to address the problems of substance abuse.

Officially called Payoff! Workplace Programs for Health, it is a practical resource for those planning or enhancing an employee assistance program. The Payoff! package will be used to increase productivity, reduce health risks, build employee morale and improve job performance.

"Its purpose is to encourage individuals to maintain or improve their health and to promote healthier workplaces," says executive director Brian Kearns.

Hard work pays off in show circuit

By Paul Cadia

Glenn Norton, 19, of Tomahawk has just completed his most successful year on the cattle show circuit.

Norton has been in the show circuit for three years and his yearling female, Norton's First Lady 31X, which weighs in at 1,400 pounds, won the point show circuit.

"This was the most consistent female of the summer," Norton said.

Norton's First Lady 31X finished eight points ahead of its nearest show competitor after the three circuit shows.

At the Calgary Stampede Norton's yearling placed first in the Young Canadian Simmental (YCS) female class and was reserve champion female.

The second show, the Red Deer Westerner Days, saw Norton place second in YCS yearling and win reserve champion female.

The Stettler County Fair, the final show on the circuit, saw Norton's First Lady take first in class in main show, grand champion female, and first in YCS and grand champion female.

Norton's success on the show circuit, is the culmination of a sustained effort.

"It's a lot of hard work. You don't just grab them out of the field and go."

The work Norton put into his prize yearling cow included a month of washing each day, taming and training the animal which encompasses training the cow in leading and posing.

"They're just like a horse; you can train them to do just about anything a horse can do."

"Every one of them has their own personality."

Norton, who graduated from Frank Maddock high school last January, started cattle showing about 13 years ago with 4-H.

"The last few years I was involved in cattle showing (with 4-H) I started winning so I thought I'd move on to bigger and better things."

Norton works and lives at Norton's Simmentals, his father's 640-acre farm about 10 kilometres outside of Tomahawk.

Norton Simmentals currently have about 70 head of cattle but Norton says they are planning on expansion.

New degradable plastics may be threat to recycling systems

By Samia Vallewand

Metal rusts, wood rots, but plastic is forever...or so it seemed until the invention of "degradable" plastics that break down in sunlight or when buried in landfill sites.

The new plastics are now being used in grocery and garbage bags as well as diapers, with more applications sure to follow. However, not everyone welcomes them. Environmentalists have always had misgivings and now there is concern degradable plastics may be a threat to new recycling programs.

There are two main types of degradable plastic. EcoLyte breaks up when exposed to sunlight and ecostar breaks apart when attacked by micro-organisms in the soil. Environmentalists worry the biodegradable materials may not actually break down in landfill sites; that if they do, they may take up no less space than before. The plastics may also encourage littering and divert attention from efforts to reduce the amount of waste produced.

One of the main concerns with degradable plastics is they may interfere with recycling programs. Plastics can be difficult to recycle. Different types often cannot be blended — but it is hard to distinguish among them. There is the worry the end product of recycled plastic could be "tainted" — possibly leading to a breakdown in sunlight or a susceptibility to micro-organisms.

All the consumer can do is stay informed. The issue is a complicated one that requires a "wait-and-see" approach. If you would like to voice your opinion call CAC-Alberta at 426-3270.

Cemetery grass- cutting today

Moon Lake By Alma Johnson

Margaret and Stan Woloszyn, along with some of their children and grandchildren, attended Klondike Days July 22. Jim and Ethel Robinson attended her niece's wedding in Grande Prairie July 22. The Eric Elliotts of B.C. visited relatives in this area and attended Jens Iverson's birthday party. They are the parents of Georgina Iverson. Ken MacRae of Victoria, B.C. has been visiting his parents, Dick and Zetta MacRae and relatives. He leaves for Finland shortly to spend a year playing and coaching volleyball. A surprise party was held July 29 at the home of Ron and Allen Woloszyn for their father's 65th birthday. Peggy Shane of Golden, B.C. and grandson were weekend visitors at the Chris Woloszyn home, along with Glenn and Yvonne Jackson of Mayerthorpe. Jim Keith suffered a minor leg injury in the 'wildest ride' at the Tomahawk rodeo July 29. There was a very poor turnout at the last grass-cutting at Brightwood Cemetery due to good haying weather. The next one is scheduled for Aug. 15. Rick and Shirley Cherrington of Calgary are visiting his parents.

HATS OFF TO OUR HEROS

Bruce Horn, a volunteer firefighter for the last 16 months, is not a man who makes hasty decisions.

He was asked by Chief Sheldon Fuson if he was interested in joining the fire department, and he said he'd think about it.

"One year later, I said, I thought about it now, and he handed me an application."

"None of it is really satisfying, seeing somebody burned out, but I just like doing it. I can't describe why," he says.

One of the disadvantages, according to Horn, is "I've left my wife and children stranded all over the countryside."

An advantage is working with the other men in the department. "They're a pretty good bunch of guys."

Construction of 40-unit campsite to start soon

Willowhaven Construction of Winfield has been awarded the $197,517.50 contract for the construction of a 40-unit camping loop at the Calhoun Bay park site located on the east side of Buck Lake.

The contract represents phase two of the development of Buck Lake Provincial Park. Work is expected to begin this month and be completed by September of this year.

"Every time his elbow bends, his mouth opens."

Have you ever been teased for compulsive behavior? The most frustrating thing about it is usually we don't realize our compulsion until someone points it out. The 'elbow' example is a funny one, but there are other behavior habits people can't control that can be irritating or even dangerous.

Here's one harmless example often used by salesmen. You can try it on your friends.

Official opening postponed

The grand opening of Willey West campground originally proposed for this season, has been put off until next year.

There are a few things left

Distance learning
Breton high school is in the process of getting ready for September with a new distance learning centre.

The centre at this point is strictly for high school correspondence students, Dr. George Bevan, superintendent of Twin Rivers school division says. He said the board has already applied for a capital grant and in September the board will apply for an operating grant.

Those students who register in the program will

From the Pastor's Pen

As you are talking to them, looking them in the eye, hold a piece of paper for them to take from you. They probably will not be able to resist their natural urge to take the paper you hold out to them.

Salesmen use this method to ensure a customer receives brochures, and to do," said municipal manager John Eriksson.

He said there would be more response from the public if it was held off until next year.

coming to Breton
do the work in a designated room at the high school and send completed assignments to correspondence teachers for marking, through the FAX machine.

perhaps even a sense of obligation to consider more seriously a proposal. Even when your friend is aware of what you are doing, he or she probably will not be able to keep from taking the paper you hold out. This is a compulsion — an irresistible impulse to perform an act that may even be contrary to your will.

Maybe now that you've been thinking about it for the last few moments as you've read this article, some of your own habits have come to mind. No doubt you can identify with the plight of man's weakness, his inability to stop doing what is harmful, even when he wants to.

Whether it is through immorality, greed, or the lust for power, man is at the mercy of his compulsive drive to self-destruction.

And this drive has no mercy. The path is always the same, being manipulated by those principalities and powers who control the realm of lust, lucrative money and the guise of power. At the end of the manipulation the result is always the same — death.

The answer to the problem of compulsive behavior comes only in the good news of the Bible. Jesus Christ loved you and me so much He gave His life to set us free from our "slavery" to the sinful nature.

He was raised again on the third day so that we too could be given newness of life. The scripture teaches that when a person accepts Christ's life and identifies with Him, laying aside everything to follow Jesus, a miracle happens. A transformation in the heart and mind takes place resulting in a new nature.

That new nature is no longer compelled to self-destruction. Instead, the Bible teaches that a freedom to choose the right behavior results. The apostle Paul wrote in 2 Corinthians 5:14-15: "For Christ's love compels us, because we are convinced that One (Jesus) died for all, and He died for all, that those who live should no longer live for themselves but for Him who died for them and was raised again."

What drives you in life? A love for money? A need to possess material things? An addiction? A need to be in control of others? You too can receive the freedom that is in Christ Jesus. He has bought it for you... will you receive it?

Fresh fish are highly perishable

By Bev Brooks

District Home Economist

Fishing is the oldest industry in Canada with more than two billion pounds of fish caught annually for market. Besides being a business industry, however, fishing has become a popular sport during the summer

A "good catch" doesn't end with the fish being pulled into the boat or onto shore. Freshly caught fish are highly perishable with the quality beginning to deteriorate soon after the fish is caught. Changes such as softening of the muscle tissue causing deterioration in texture and flavor, growth of bacteria and off-odors occur very quickly if the fish is held at warm temperatures. Further deterioration occurs by rough handling causing the flesh to bruise and internal organs to rupture.

Freshly caught fish should be chilled as soon as possible by packing them in flaked or finely-crushed ice. Canada's Department of Fisheries and Oceans suggests you place the fish, bellies up, in a clean container, preferably one with drainage holes in its base.

Limit the layers of fish to four in any one container to avoid excessive pressure on the bottom layer. Cover the fish with ice and refrigerate or hold in a cool area until they can be processed. If ice is not available to you immediately, wrap the fish and store in a cool area. The holding period of non-processed fish should be kept to an absolute minimum.

Freezing and canning are the most commonly practiced means of extending the shelf-life of freshwater fish. Of the two, freezing is the easier and safer method.

Freezing slows the deterioration of fish but doesn't completely prevent deterioration. Chemical and physical changes still take place in frozen fish causing them to lose quality and eventually become unpalatable.

To maintain good quality, a constant storage temperature of -18 C (0 F), the average temperature of a home freezer, or lower is recommended. Raising the temperature above -18 C for just short periods damages their quality.

Quality deteriorates with holding time. The recommended length of storage for lean species is up to six months, medium-fat species up to four months and fatty species up to two months.

Be sure the fish is placed in a suitable air-tight covering to prevent moisture loss during freezing.

Home canning involves sealing the fish in a container to exclude air and heating to destroy spoilage organisms. This can only be accompanied by heating the sealed container in a pressure canner for a specified time at a specified pressure. Canning fish by other methods such as open-kettle canning, hot water bath canning and oven canning is unsafe and may result in serious food poisoning.

A pressure canner reaches temperatures of up to 250 F whereas the boiling water bath can only reach 212 F. For complete destruction of the bacteria spore in fish or low-acid foods, it requires sustained exposure to a temperature of 115.6 C (240 F) or higher. This temperature can only be reached under pressure.

If you do not own a pressure canner and would like to try one prior to purchasing, give us a call at 542-5368 and ask about our rental canner.

In Memoriam

In Loving Memory of our mother and grandmother Gladys who passed away August 11, 1989.
A heart of gold stopped beating. Hard working hands at rest. God broke our hearts to prove to us, He only takes the best.
In tears we watched you sinking. We watched you fade away.
The day you slipped away.
When we saw you sleeping. So peaceful, free from pain.
We could not wish you back. God broke our hearts once again.
To some you maybe forgotten. To others a part of the past.
But to us who loved you, Your memories will always last.

Former Evansburg resident makes history

By Paul Cudla

Major Bob (Kevyn) Wade, a former Evansburg resident and graduate of the Evansburg high school, became the first pilot outside of the Soviet Bloc to fly an MiG-29 Soviet fighter jet Aug. 13.

Major Wade made the ground (air)-breaking flight during the Abbotsford Air Show in B.C.

"I was assigned to lead and command a fighter intercept for the MiG delegation until they landed in Abbotsford; which gave me the opportunity to meet and talk with MiG pilots," Wade said from the Comox, B.C. base where he is currently stationed.

Wade was asked by the Mikoyan company delegation, which builds the MiG-29s, if he wanted to fly the plane during the airshow. Wade gladly accepted the invitation.

"I was very impressed with "...pleased with open, friendly attitude of Soviet delegation..." the performance capabilities and characteristics of the MiG-29.

"The MiG-29's capability to sustain high G's; turn tightly and accelerate," was very impressive," Wade said adding the "crowd was very in the rear seat of the aircraft during flight.

"I was pleased with the open and friendly attitude displayed by the Soviet delegation at the air display," Wade said.

The Soviet openness at Abbotsford was quite unprecedented and Wade felt it most likely "has to do with the following along of the policy of Glasnost in showing their defense capabilities

He said the Soviet Mikoyan delegation likely singled him out as a pilot for the MiG because of his performance as demonstration pilot of the CF-18 fighter jet at an airshow in Namao in 1986.

During that airshow Wade pushed the Canadian-made F-18 jet to the limits of its capabilities.

The Soviets had previously offered a proposal of a trade-off which would see a Soviet pilot fly a technologically

Amoco reducing workforce with early retirement, voluntary resignations

By Susan Mosciello

The recent announcement of a workforce reduction by Amoco Canada could have a significant impact on Drayton Valley employees.

The reductions are expected to be completed by the end of September and will consist of early retirements and voluntary resignations.

Dave Thorn, senior administrative supervisor, says 20 employees in Drayton Valley are being offered early retirement packages (55 yrs. and over), and voluntary resignations could impact 50 others.

"The corporate goal is 10 per cent of the (entire) workforce. The corporation wants to reduce by 450 people."

Thorn said 1,300 people (total) will have the option of accepting the retirements or resignations, and if 450 do not accept, "there will be involuntary (departures) forthcoming after that."

"The early retirement is a generous offer and we're expecting more to accept that than the voluntary resignation package."

About 270 employees are eligible for the early retirement package.

"We must position ourselves according to the economic realities that surround us," said Don Stacy, chairman and president of Amoco Canada. "In the year since the merger with Dome, crude oil and natural gas prices have provided only marginal returns compared to the climate we anticipated prior to the merger."

Amoco is also offering voluntary termination packages for engineers.

Jake Busckert, Amoco district manager, says he will be surprised if any of the engineers in the district will be affected.
